Two Big Boats Collided

STEAMER OLYMPIC

Was Struck By the British Protected Cruiser Hawke Off Cowes Today

COWES, Isle of Wight, Sept. 20.—The White Star line steamship Olympic, the biggest passenger-carrying vessel in service, was in collision with the British protected cruiser Hawke, in Osborn bay, on the north side of the Isle of Wight this afternoon and was so damaged that her captain, E. J. Smith, beached her in the Cowes roadsted. The captain promptly signalled for assistance to Portsmouth, from where tugs were sent. At the same time assurance was given that the passengers were in no danger.

The Hawke was damaged but less seriously and anchored close by the steamer. The Olympic left Southampton at 11.25 a. m., bound for New York by way of Cherbourg and Queenstown. She sailed with the largest list of first class players that ever started across the Atlantic on one ship. The first cabin passengers numbered 412. Among them were between 20 and 30 American millionaires, something like $250,000 having been paid in passage money. All told there were nearly 3000 persons aboard.

In the collision the Olympic was struck on the starboard quarter and a large hole was stove in. When the vessels separated after the impact it was seen that the Olympic was crippled and Captain Smith immediately ordered her beached. The vessel was run into a mudbank. The Hawke was able to keep afloat but was badly damaged, her bows being crumbled and her plates torn to the water's edge. Later the Olympic was floated and started back to Southampton. The Hawke was also able to get away and proceeded southward under her own steam. After a cursory examination of the damage done the Olympic steamed slowly back to Southampton.

The Hawke was so damaged in her bow that her collision mats were gotten out but the cruiser was able to proceed unassisted. Tugs from Portsmouth proceeded to the scene but their service was not required. Naturally there was intense excitement among the liner's passengers but it was soon evident there was no cause for alarm.

An eye witness of the collision said that the Hawke was undergoing steam trials, following extensive repairs at Portsmouth and was traveling at great speed when she overtook the Olympic. The cruiser was passing the liner to starboard when suddenly she drew in and crashed into the steamer's quarter about twenty feet from the steerage. The witness thought that the warship had been drawn against the other vessel by the suction. After the crash the Hawke drew astern and the crew threw the collision mats over a badly damaged bow. The Hawke was also able to make port without aid.

There was considerable excitement but no panic aboard the liner, the passengers of which were quickly reassured by the officers. The weather was somewhat thick and there was a rain squall at the time of the accident but the haze was not sufficient to obscure either vessel from the other. No one on board had been injured.

AERONAUT INJURED

He Attempted a Double Parachute Drop

HARTFORD, Sept. 20. — Edward Berlinger of Woonsocket, R. I., an aeronaut, is reported this morning as in a very critical condition at St. Francis' hospital in this city as a result of injuries suffered when he fell late yesterday at the Rockville fair grounds while attempting a double parachute drop.

Prof. Marsh, another balloonist, was slightly hurt in an attempted triple drop from the same balloon. Berlinger cut loose first and when nearing the ground attempted to use his second parachute. Owing to his proximity to earth, however, the parachute failed to open and he was dashed to the ground, where he lay unconscious. He was brought to this city and an examination at the hospital showed that his spine was injured, his left shoulder broken and several ribs fractured.

DEATHS

GARRITY—Miss Bridget Garrity, aged 80 years, a former resident of this city and a devout member of St. Peter's parish, died today at the Sisters of Providence Home in Worcester. The body will be brought to the funeral parlors of John F. Rogers.

VIRGIN—Word has just been received in West Chelmsford of the death in New York of Rev. Dr. Samuel Henderson Virgin, at his home, 249 Lenox avenue, of apoplexy. He was a pastor in West Chelmsford many years ago, and had kept a summer home there. With members of his family he spent a part of the present summer in West Chelmsford, leaving for New York about a month ago.

CROMBIE—William Crombie, formerly of Lowell and Ayer, died in Fallbrook, Cal., September 4. Mr. Crombie was a musician in his younger days, playing the cornet and violin. He went to California about a year ago, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Eliza Findlay, who survives him.

FUNERALS

HOWARD—The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Howard took place yesterday afternoon from the rooms of Undertakers J. F. O'Donnell & Sons and was largely attended. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, where the Rev. George Mullin of St. Michael's church read the committal prayers.

PELLAND—The funeral of the late Mrs. James Pelland, nee Anna Gagnon, of New Bedford, took place this morning from the home of the deceased's father, Mr. Jean Gagnon, 87 Pawtucket street. The large cortege wended its way to St. Jean Baptiste church, where at 9 o'clock solemn high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Fr. Racette, O. M. I., assisted by Rev. Frs. Graton and Ouellette, O. M. I. The choir under the direction of Dr. George E. Caisse rendered Perrault's harmonized mass, Mr. Arthur J. Martel presiding at the organ. The bearers were Joseph Gagnon, Lazare Ouellette, J. Z. Chouinard, Edmond Perrault, Joseph Lapierre and Willie Baron. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Fr. Racette, O. M. I., reciting the committal prayers at the grave. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Joseph Albert. Among the out-of-town relatives attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Luc Fournier of Brockton and Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Perrault of Lawrence.

A LIVELY SESSION

Attempt Made to Abolish the Office of Clerk of Committees

The board of aldermen held a late meeting last night and went over quite a raft of business. The board favored the appropriation of $2700 for the continuation of smooth paving from Howe street to Fayette street in East Merrimack street. The order was introduced by Ald. Flanagan. An ordinance repealing the ordinance constituting the office of clerk of committees was defeated. The ordinance was introduced by Ald. Barrett, who said that the office of clerk of committees was an "absolutely unnecessary part of the city government." The order for $16,000 for a sewer across the Concord river at the plant of the American Hide and Leather company did not get to the meeting it having been side-tracked at a meeting of the committee on sewers held previous to the meeting of the board of aldermen. Sixteen jurors were drawn, eight to serve in this city and eight in Cambridge.

Supt. Charles A. Whittet of the park department was before the board to answer questions relative to the bill of Olmstead Brothers for work on the city hall grounds. Mr. Whittet said that the Olmstead Brothers, landscape architects, had been employed to draft a plan of the grounds, not to set out plants or shrubs, as seemed the opinion of the aldermen. Mr. Whittet said that so far as he was concerned he took his orders from the park commission and was in the habit of doing just what the commission told him to do.

The meeting didn't get started until 9.35 o'clock and the lateness of it was due to committee meetings and a caucus that preceded it.

The first up was a hearing on a pe-

THE BOARD OF HEALTH

Heard Complaint Against a Local Milk Dealer

At a meeting of the board of health held yesterday afternoon a letter was read in which it was stated that the milk delivered by Frank L. Peabody of Bridge street, Lowell, is peculiar appearing. It was stated in the letter that the milk is unnatural in appearance and looks as if it had been adulterated. Milk Inspector Melvin M. Master stated that eight samples of milk had been taken from Mr. Peabody's wagon and that the samples varied a great deal. He said the samples indicated that something foreign had been put in the milk, gelatine or some sugary substance. He also believed that it had been watered.

Mr. Peabody was present at the meeting and stated to the board that he had six raisers, and asked the board to send out a man to look over the milk of the raisers. It was voted to prosecute the case against Mr. Peabody in the police court.

The complaint against the keeping of pigeons at 52 Fifth street was discussed. The chairman said he had visited the premises and had found everything all right. He said the place was clean and that there was an entire absence of odor.

Had talked with neighbors and none seemed to have any complaint to make. Mr. Osgood said that he considered the place not only clean, but exceptionally so. Dr. Brunelle, who had visited the house in question, could see nothing to complain of there. It was voted to give complainant leave to withdraw.

David Ziskind and company were granted a license to erect a stable in Cambridge street, to accommodate five horses. The proviso attached was that he connect the stable with the main sewer and remove manure every two weeks.

Complaint was received that Louis Lambros and George Simodes are conducting a milk business at 66 Jefferson street without a license so to do. Melvin M. Master said he had issued a license to do business at this address, but that the license was issued to one Abilleas Daffos, and not to Lambros or Simodes. There being a ban against Lambros participating in the milk business in this city, it was voted to ask Abilleas Daffos to attend the next regular meeting and explain just who the real owner of the place is.

The report of the inspector on scarlet fever cases showed that there are eight in the entire city, an unusually small number. Four of these are on Watson avenue, one on South Whipple street and one on Meadowcroft street. Agent Bates reported the case of a small boy on Watson avenue who had been sick a week before a doctor was called and this undoubtedly is responsible for some, if not all of the other cases on that street, two families being involved. The parents of the boy not knowing the nature of the disease let his two sisters attend the Sacred Heart school for a few days but they were excluded as soon as Dr. Boyle diagnosed the case as scarlet fever.

Inspector O'Heir reported that some of the cases are very slight and for that reason it is difficult to maintain a strict quarantine, but the attending physicians have the cases now under control and with the aid of the board, it is hoped the disease will be prevented from spreading.

BROKE INTO A BANK

PETERBORO, N. H., Sept. 20.—A small amount of stamps and a small sum of money stolen from the post office here composed the booty which burglars collected in a raid on the village of East Jaffrey some time last night. They entered the Monadnock national bank and broke the knob off the safe but did not reach the cash. It is thought the bank was the last place visited, as burglars' tools were found there and it is thought that the men were frightened away by fear of discovery before they completed their work. The post office is in a general store, to which entrance was gained through a window. The post office safe was wrapped in horse blankets stolen from a nearby livery stable and blown open with nitro glycerine. Nothing was taken from the store. Some of the tools used by the burglars and found today in the bank had been stolen from a local blacksmith shop. The authorities are inclined to think that the burglars came and went in an automobile, as fresh tracks of auto wheels were found today in the vicinity of the store and bank and on a road leading toward Monadnock mountain. A posse today began a search for the men.

HELD IN $10,000 BONDS

They were not called upon to plead. The other three officials will appear later, two of them being on their way back from Europe.

TWO BIG BATTLESHIPS

Congress Will be Asked to Authorize Their Construction

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Estimates for the maintainance of the navy for the next fiscal year have been made with one exception—the provision for new ships. This item has been permitted to remain open, awaiting the personal consideration of Secretary Meyer and it is expected that he will take up the subject in the course of a week or so, as the estimates must be in the hands of the secretary of the treasury before the 15th of October. It is pretty well understood that the secretary will adhere to the program which has governed for the past two years and suggest to congress the addition of two first class battleships and a corresponding number of submarines, torpedoboat destroyers, colliers and other auxiliaries.

It is urged that the recent striking tests of the effects of high powered naval ordinance upon armor belts as demonstrated in the firing upon the San Marcos, once known as the Texas, has made it plain that none of the battleships now afloat is safe against such guns as it carried.

The practical objects, however, to further increase in the size of battleships, such as the limited number of harbors that would be open to such big ships and the excessive cost and difference difficult handling are believed to incline the majority of the members of the boards which submit recommendations to the secretary of the navy for new construction to a conservative course at present.

JUDGE DE COURCEY

Named for the Supreme Court Bench

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The vacancy on the supreme bench of Massachusetts was filled by Governor Foss today by the advancement of Judge C. A. DeCourcey of Lawrence of the superior court. Justice A. P. Rugg was confirmed at the same time as chief justice of the supreme court and immediately took the oath of ojce.

Judge DeCourcey was appointed to the supreme bench in 1902 and ranked as tenth on the list of judges of that court. He is a democrat.

The two appointments will go before the executive council next week for confirmation.

INSANITY PLEA

Set Forth in the Case of Melvin

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—At today's session of the trial of Edward Melvin, charged with murder in the second degree of John W. Carey in Charlestown, John J. Bresnahan, mate on the U. S. S. Wabash, identified the pistol with which it is alleged Carey was shot as one which he had sold to Melvin some time before the shooting. Bresnahan testified that Melvin was an excellent marksman.

That the defense would attempt to prove that Melvin was weak mentally and that he was under the influence of drink at the time of the alleged crime was shown when Dr. Freman Benner was called as its first witness. The physician said that the excessive use of liquor, as testified to, would weaken the defendant's self control. He then attempted to show that there was insanity in Melvin's ancestry.

SURPRISE PARTY

A pleasant surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Carney, 200 Coburn street, last evening, when a number of friends of Miss Catherine Glynn assembled and presented her a purse of gold. The presentation speech was made by Mr. Helmer Nyberg and Miss Glynn, who is about to enter a convent, though overcome by surprise, responded in a graceful speech of thanks.

A delightful entertainment program was carried out during the evening, which was enjoyed by all present. The program was as follows: Piano selections, Miss Blanche Jodoin, Miss Margaret McCormick and Mr. George Laurier; whistling solos by Mr. Robert McManus and Mr. James McNally; song, "All Alone," by Mr. Fred Mulvey; recitation by Miss Elizabeth Catterall; song, "All That I Ask Is Love," by Miss Mary Carroll. The party dispersed at a reasonable hour, all wishing Miss Glynn luck and happiness in her new life. Refreshments were served.

THE POST OFFICE IN WHICH POSTAL SAVINGS BANK WILL BE ESTABLISHED.

To Have Charge of the Postal Savings Bank

The postal savings bank, which will be established in the money order department of the postoffice on Oct. 1st, will be under the direct supervision of Postmaster Legare.

On June 25, 1910, the postal savings bank act became law. The funds deposited under this act are to bear two per cent. interest. Of the sums so deposited, five per cent. is to be kept in lawful money in the treasury of the United States as a reserve fund. The remaining ninety-five per cent. is to be deposited, at not less than 2½ per cent. interest in national or state banks in the community in which the deposit is received, such banks being required to furnish security in the form of public bonds or other security supported by the taxing power. The board of trustees, consisting of the postmaster-general, the secretary of the treasury, and the attorney-general, in whose hands the administration of the system is placed, are authorized at any time to withdraw from the banks, and to invest in the bonds or other securities of the United States, an amount not exceeding thirty per cent. of the funds deposited by the public in postal savings depositories, and the remainder or any portion of it may be withdrawn, for the same purpose, by direction of the president when in his judgment the "general welfare and interests of the United States so require." Furthermore any depositor in a postal savings depository may exchange his deposits in sums of $20, $40, $60, $80, or $100 or multiples thereof, or $500 or multiples thereof, for United States gold bonds of like denomination bearing 2½ per cent. interest, redeemable after one year, and payable after twenty years. Investments in such bonds may also be made by the board of trustees. The bonds so authorized are, however, to be issued only (1) when there are outstanding bonds subject to call, in which case the proceeds of the issues shall be applied to the redemption of such outstanding bonds; (2) at times when under authority of law, other than this act, the government desires to issue bonds for the purpose of replenishing the treasury, in which case the issues shall be in lieu of the issue of a like amount of bonds authorized by other acts. Whenever the board of trustees have funds available for investment in United States bonds they may notify the secretary of the treasury of the amount they desire to invest, subject to call, whereupon the secretary, if there are United States bonds subject to call, shall call in and redeem such quantity as may be needed, and issue to the board of trustees a like amount of similar bonds also subject to call. None of the bonds issued under the act are to be available as security for circulating notes.

It is evident that this act places the total resources of the postal savings depositories, whatever they may prove to be, at the disposal of the United States treasury, and, in case they should be large, would greatly simplify the task of carrying through refunding operations (in the case—e. g., of the $63,000,000 1908-18 three per cent. bonds now subject to call); of providing for extraordinary expenditures such as those on account of the Panama canal; or of maintaining the value of the two per cent. bonds in case they should cease to serve as a security for note issues. It is possible, therefore, that the postal banks may have an important bearing on the future debt operations of the government.

THE MOROCCAN ISSUE

May Be Settled in a Few Days

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—Several bankers stated on the bourse today that they had been informed by the foreign office that the Moroccan question would be settled in two or three days. Well informed persons considers this unduly optimistic. The adoption of the verbal method of negotiations it is thought will facilitate a settlement, as one of the chief impediments heretofor has been the reluctance of either side to abandon points once formally proposed in writing lest such action be construed as a sign of weakness.

GRANNETTA IS HELD

LYNN, Sept. 20.—Tony Grannetta, a cousin of the husband of Mrs. Pasquale Grannetta, who was killed at her home in Cliftondale on Friday last, was taken into custody today by the state police on a charge of having some knowledge of the crime. The body of Mrs. Grannetta was found on Friday with nine wounds, all apparently from a long knife.

CHAMP CLARK SPOKE

He Told kentucky People About Principles of Democracy

LAWRENCEBURG, Ky., Sept. 20.—"Triumphant democracy is now the resounding theme of every tongue. After 17 years of wandering in the Wilderness we this day stand upon Mount Victory and look into the Promised Land which we will enter and possess in 1912." So declared Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives, in an address here today. Mr. Clark was born near Lawrenceburg, March 7, 1850, and until today had not been there since he taught a country school.

Continuing his message to democracy, the speaker said:

"Democrats everywhere are cheerful, hopeful, confident, united and aggressive, while our republican friends are sad, hopeless, despondent, on the defensive and split into bitter factions constantly at each others' throats. From ocean to ocean they are fighting each other like the cats of Killkenny. President Taft leading the standpat faction, while Senator Robert Marion LaFollette—'Fighting Bob,' as his followers love to call him—heads the insurgents. With them it is war to the knife and the knife to the hilt.

"They are so thoroughly destroying each other that sometimes it seems that all we have to do is to stand still and see the salvation of the Lord; but wise democrats are not in favor of standing still or of depending on republican factionalism to give us the victory next year. On the contrary, we should continue as we have begun, press forward, advance our banners, keep everlastingly pounding them, pass more good bills until we have carried out our entire program and force the president to sign or veto meritorious democratic measures, which are designed to promote the prosperity, happiness and safety of the American people. That is a policy which will win and which deserves to win.

"The greatest statesman that ever lived, bar none, Thomas Jefferson, said: 'Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.' It is also the price of success at the polls. I recommend it most cheerfully and earnestly to democrats all over the land."

Reviewed Conditions

Mr. Clark reviewed conditions in both parties, referred to the democratic victory in 1910, and the various congressional fights, and said that "had the republicans in the 61st congress honestly redeemed the promises made in the campaign of 1908, to revise the tariff downward, they would have made their party invincible, and would have secured another long lease of power. The masses of the people without regard to party affiliations are honest, and they demand honesty and candor in public men."

"One of the chief reasons why we won in 1910, was that the democrats and insurgent republicans in congress kept constantly hammering on the broken promises of the republican standpatters, on their gross perfidy to their pledges, and upon their scorn of the righteous demands of the people. We appealed to the country on that record, and won an astonishing victory which, let us hope, is only the beginning of a long series of victories for lower taxes, for greater economies and for better government.

"The new democratic house has made a record so splendid as to surprise our friends and dumbfound our enemies. No house has in a generation achieved so much constructive legislation of such a beneficial character in so short a time, notwithstanding the fact that we had been sneered at for years as being a party of mere negation and utterly destitute of constructive statesmanship. That sneer is now frozen on the faces of the sneerers. That gibe disturbs nobody any more.

"The great battle of 1912 must be fought on the splendid record of the democrats in this congress and upon that record we can win not only next year, but for years to come.

"Duty is the sublimest word in our vocabulary. To do one's duty honestly, faithfully, courageously and patriotically is the greatest achievement in statesmanship or in any other field of human endeavor. To their eternal credit be it said that the democrats of the 62nd congress at the extraordinary session discharged their duty to the utmost and deserve well of the country."

The Extra Session

Mr. Clark reviewed some of the party accomplishments, and said: "What we did at the extraordinary session is only an earnest of what we will accomplish at the next two regular sessions.

"The very best and most important result of the extraordinary session was that we formed the habit of acting and pulling together and have come to take pride in so doing.

"In this connection, it should be stated that the democrats in the house of the 62d congress, aided by some republicans, passed the reciprocity bill, as they had done in the 61st. President Taft, with all the power, prestige and patronage of his mighty office, could in neither congress muster a majority of the republican representatives to his aid, which shows that the gulf separating the republican factions is as wide and deep and impassable as that which separated Dives and Lazarus.

"We did not pass the Reciprocity bill to please President Taft, but because it will help to lower the tariff. But defective as it is, the Reciprocity bill is a step in the right direction—that is, in the direction of reducing the high protective tariff to a revenue basis. That's one reason why democrats supported it. Another reason is that we believe it will benefit the American people, and at the same time, benefit our Canadian neighbors. True, President Taft, exercising ruthlessly a power which King George V. could not exercise without being driven out of the three kingdoms, vetoed not only our Farmers' Free List bills and our Tariff bills, but also the joint resolution admitting Arizona and New Mexico.

"The president's veto of the statehood resolution was made upon doubtful constitutional authority. After an enabling act is passed and after a territory, in conformity therewith, has adopted a constitution providing a republican form of government, she is entitled to admission. In his veto the president claims that the principal point at issue was the recall, particularly the recall of judges. He is entirely mistaken. He raised a far greater and more far-reaching question and took the wrong side of it, and that is whether a state has the right to adopt for itself such constitution as it desires, subject, of course, to the constitution of the United States, and provided it establishes for itself by its constitution, a republican form of government. The American people who love a square deal, will not permit him to shift the issue from the great question of a state's having the right to adopt any sort of constitution which suits it within the limitations named, to a petty squabble about the recall.

"The provisions to go into a state constitution do not depend, under the federal constitution, upon the whim, prejudice or taste of the man who happens to occupy the White House, or of the men who happen to be representatives or senators in congress, but upon the will of the voters of the state itself; but the president seems to be laboring under the delusion that he knows better what the people of Arizona need and desire than they know themselves, and that his wishes and desires rather than theirs should be incorporated into their constitution, which is a queer opinion to be entertained by an American president.

Referring to President Taft's veto of the various tariff bills, Mr. Clark said:

"His action makes it clear the sun shining at midday in a cloudless sky that the people can hope for no relief from tariff extortions at the hands of the republican party, but must look to us for relief from the monstrous load which they are now carrying.

"The language of the president's veto messages raises a very grave question. He seems to think that congress should not consider or pass any tariff bills except such as he recommends, which is reversing the modus operandi of making tariff bills provided by the Fathers of the Republic. The assumption that congress shall neither consider nor pass a tariff bill until recommended by the president, is not only absurd but is revolutionary, utterly subversive of our theory of legislation, if submitted to, will be only another long step in the process of usurpation, which in late years has so greatly increased the powers of the executive at the expense of the legislative branch of government.

"For the last thirty odd years the enormously increased patronage of the executive has increased his power to an extent never dreamed of by the founders of the Republic and which should set men to seriously thinking as to whether so much power in the hands of one man is entirely salutary.

"It is written: 'By their fruits ye shall know them.' That test for human conduct was established by highest authority. By it, democrats are willing to be judged, for it is a fair and just standard. By it, we stand or fall. We feel certain that a verdict in our favor will be rendered by the grand inquest of the American people. We await that verdict with supreme confidence."

C. M. A. C. MEETING

HELD LAST NIGHT AND WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the C. M. A. C. was held last night to the club rooms in Pawtucket street. The meeting was presided over by President Xavier Delisle and a grist of business was transacted and several new members were initiated.

A committee was named to arrange plans for the annual pilgrimage of the society at St. Joseph's cemetery. This event will take place on the last Sunday in October and the committee in charge is as follows: Joseph Payette, Adolphe Brassard, Adelard Payette, George Simars and M. Beaulieu.

The members of the society headed by Garde d'Honneur and a band, will leave the club house at 2 o'clock and march to St. Jean Baptiste church where a libera will be sung at 2.30 o'clock for the repose of the souls of the deceasd members. Then special electric cars will convey them to St. Joseph's cemetery, where taps will be sounded by a squad from the guard. This ceremony will be held at the grave of the late Rev. A. M. Garin, O. M. I., where a sermon will be delivered by a renowned preacher.

At last night's meeting the members of the C. M. A. C. also voted to keep open house tomorrow evening for everybody. The reports of the Canadian elections will be given out on a white screen through a stereopticon machine, as well as the pictures of the different candidates, the latter to number over one hundred.

Admission to the hall will be free and as a number of people besides the French speaking element are interested in these elections on account of the reciprocity question, everybody is invited to be present. The election reports will be given in the upper hall which will be opened at 9 o'clock.

NUMBER OF OFFENDERS

Appeared in Police Court This Morning

"We have enough to take care of our own drunkards without being bothered with drunks from other places," was the statement made by Judge Hadley in police court this morning when he learned that several of the offenders in the dock belonged in places other than Lowell. Judge Hadley has intimated, from time to time, that he does not intend to have Lowell made a rendevous for drunks and that if there is an increase it will warrant his imposing heavy fines or jail sentences.

Billerica Case Continued

The case of William O'Hare and James J. Lannon of Boston charged with breaking and entering the building of Josephine Dixon in Billerica, on August 17, and the larceny therefrom of carpenters tools and an umbrella, was called for trial this morning, but inasmuch as one of the men mentioned in the complaint has not yet been apprehended the case was continued for one week.

Stole a Watch

Henry Fletcher was charged with stealing a watch valued at $15 from Edward Fitzgerald on September 2. Fletcher admitted that he purloined the timepiece and later pawned it. The court found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to five months in jail.

Neglected His Wife

"My husband hasn't given me a cent to support myself or family for the past year," said Mrs. Matilda Guimond in court this morning when she testified against her husband whom she had brought into court on a complaint charging him with neglect. The court after considering the testimony offered in the case found the man guilty and ordered him placed in the hands of the probation officer on condition that he pay $4 a week towards the support of his wife.

Using Profane Language

Drunken Offenders

There were 17 persons arrested for drunkenness during the 24 hours which elapsed between the sessions of court yesterday and this morning. Twelve of the persons were arraigned in court this morning and five were released by the probation officer before the opening of court.

Thomas Hefferman was charged with being drunk and he made an able plea for another chance in order that he might reform and make a man of himself but after Deputy Downey had produced the man's record and Probation Officer Slattery informed the court that the defendant had been on probation on five occasions the court sentenced the man to five months in jail.

Albert Frechette was found drunk in an alleyway last night by Patrolman P. B. Clark. Inasmuch as the man is a good worker and unfortunately gets drunk only now and then and also has a family to support, Judge Hadley thought it would be advisable to give the man a chance and imposed a suspended sentence of five months in jail.

Dennis O'Neil appeared in court this morning on a complaint charging him with being drunk. The court sentenced him to two months in jail.

John Hayes was on parole from the state farm and he will be returned to that institution. Owen McKenna will spend the next three months in jail.

John Mullen and Harrison Tyler were ordered to pay fines of $6 each.

There were five first offenders who were fined $2 each.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

SACRED HEART SCHOOL

In Sacred Heart Parish Has 637 Pupils—No Danger From Scarlet Fever

Since the opening of the schools in this city the attendance at the Sacred Heart school has been astonishing. The new school has been a great attraction to the parents on account of its admirable equipment, its modern appliances, and its perfect system of ventilation by which the air in every room is steadily changed, the fresh air being taken in and in cold weather seated without any draught on the children.

Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., was annoyed this morning when he read that the Sacred Heart school was mentioned at the board of health meeting in connection with scarlet fever cases that occurred before the school opened.

Dr. Fred Murphy, the medical inspector of the school, when seen today by a Sun reporter, said there was no carelessness anywhere in connection with the cases of scarlet fever, except on the part of one family who was slow to call in a physician.

"There is no danger of an epidemic in that district?" the doctor was asked.

"Certainly not," he replied. "The cases are now quarantined and the prospect is, that few, if any new cases will develop."

"Did any of the cases originate in the Sacred Heart school?" the doctor was asked.

"I suspect that one case originated there but I am not positive of that."

"Are the 637 children attending that school exposed to any danger?"

"None whatever," said the doctor. "This school is the most airy, the best ventilated and the most sanitary in the city and the utmost precautions have been taken since the first case was reported. Every child that showed any sign of illness, a headache or a sore throat, was sent home to await developments and they are all back again in good health. I now inspect the school daily, and I am certain that the pupils attending are not exposed to the slightest danger."

PAWNED JEWELRY

To Get Money to Support Her Children

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Elbridge Gerry Snow, 3d, and Dorothy Violet Snow—the children who were conspicuous in the marital troubles of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Gerry Snow, Jr. have again become a source of anxiety to their mother.

The former Mrs. Snow, who is now the wife of Louis L. Debost, in applying to Supreme Court Justice McCall for double the allowance she is now receiving from her former husband for the support of the children, declared she had been obliged during the past year to pawn some of her jewels to obtain money to support young Elbridge and Dorothy. Despite this fact she is $750 in debt for their maintenance.

Mrs. Snow divorced Elbridge Gerry Snow, Jr., millionaire insurance officer, seven years ago, and was awarded the custody of the two children. Snow was ordered to pay her $333 a month for the support and education of the children. His wife afterward married Debost and Snow married Mrs. Marie Antoinette Hoppe of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Snow-Debost, in asking for $666 a month allowance, declared that her former husband's position in life and manner of living warrants this expenditure on his part. Last year, she said, she spent about $2000 more than the $4000 allowance upon the two children.

The coming year, Mrs. Depost asserts, will be an expensive one for young Elbridge and Dorothy, because they should both be sent to boarding school. Dorothy must be placed under the care of a dentist for two years to straighten her teeth. The cost of this is estimated at $500. Mrs. Depost says she has instructed the children in dancing, vocal and instrumental music, drawing and painting.

Mrs. Depost told the court her divorced husband has an income of $75,000, lives in a Riverside Drive mansion, spends $50,000 a year for his present wife's dresses, and is helping support five children of his second wife's brother.

Snow characterized the $50,000 dress item as "absurd." He admitted his income to be about $40,000. He said he thought $333 a month was sufficient to provide for a boy of thirteen and a girl of twelve.

Snow admits paying $350 a year for tuition of his second wife's son, but denies that he supports the five children of his wife's brother is false.

"I am willing," he told the court, "to provide for Elbridge and Dorothy if Mrs. Debose will surrender them to me."

Justice McCall denied the application to double the allowance.

PATROLMAN COGGER

Has Been Assigned to Liquor Squad

Patrolman Daniel W. Cogger has been appointed to act temporarily as an inspector on the liquor squad of the police department, but it is understood that eventually the temporary appointment will be made permanent.

The assignment was brought about as a result of a vacancy in the quota of the department. When Inspector Frank Goodwin, who acted as court officer, was pensioned on June 4, 1910, the vacancy was not filled, but Inspector Philip Dwyer of the liquor squad was assigned to do the work and from time to time other members of the department assisted. Recently the board decided that it would be necessary to fill the vacancy and Inspector Dwyer will now devote his time to the court work and for the present at least Patrolman Cogger will act as a liquor inspector.

PATROLMAN COGGER

Patrolman Cogger is one of the most efficient men in the department and he has been publicly commended on several occasions for good work. He was appointed to the force in December, 1892, and Supt. Welch considers him one of the best members of the force.

THE PRICE OF MILK

Has Been Advanced by the Farmers

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—Milk at wholesale was advanced 2 cents per can of 8 1-2 quarts at a meeting of the directors of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' company yesterday at the American house. A short hay crop and government reports of enormous grain shortages were given as reasons for this advance to 37 1-2 cents per can for for the next six months. The action of the milk contractors now is awaited. An all-day meeting was held behind closed doors.

"A meeting of the directors of the B. C. M. P. Co. was held today, at which were present representatives from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine and Connecticut. A full discussion of the situation disclosed the fact that, owing to the drought, the hay crop was very short and high in price. Other feeds are rapidly advancing, as the government crop reports indicate enormous shortages of grain production. We have also had the severest frost experienced for many years, which has greatly injured the forage crops. Because of these and other reasons, milk production will be very expensive the coming season. Accordingly, it was voted that we demand a minimum price 37 1-2 cents per 8 1-2-quart can for the coming six months, to be paid on the middle zone (55 to 75 miles from Boston).

"This is an advance of 2 cents per can over the corresponding price of last winter. This minimum price was presented by committees to various dealers. The producers adjourned for one week in order that dealers might consider the proposition and consult the producers to find out more definitely their attitude on this issue."

Asked whether the directors had taken action in reference to the proceedings of the federal courts against some of the officers, Mr. Abbot said:

"The only officer who has been indicted is the secretary, Mr. Hunter, because he was the most active man in the company. The feeling of the directors is that we should go right ahead, regardless of anything which has happened in the federal courts. There will be arguments on demurrers perhaps within a week."

A CARGO OF SUGAR

Worth $700,000 Reached Boston Last Night

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—More than $700,000 worth of sugar floated into the harbor last evening in the hold of the British steamer Imani, Capt. Penberthy, from ports in the island of Java.

All hands were glad that the long passage was ended, for there had been sickness among the crew and two of the Lascar sailors were down with beri-beri and were taken off at quarantine by the health boat Vigilant. They will be kept at Gallups island until they recover.

Since the steamer left Tjilatjap on July 30 the value of her cargo has increased $150,000. The officers of the steamer appeared very much elated when they learned of the sharp advance in sugar.

Capt. Penberthy, the commander of the big freighter, said his vessel had steamed 26,000 miles since she left England in April. She went to Rio Janeiro and, after discharging, went to Java, where she loaded 13,207 baskets and 21,022 bags of sugar. On the way to Boston the steamer encountered very fair weather up to four days ago, when she struck into easterly gales and very heavy seas. The decks were buried most of the time and the greatest care had to be exercised by the men to keep from being swept overboard.

The Imani came to anchor in the stream and this morning she will proceed to her discharging berth at the refinery wharf in South Boston. Uncle Sam will be about $250,000 richer when the duty on the cargo is paid.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of Mt. Horeb Royal Arch chapter, was held last night in Masonic temple in Merrimack street, with Most Excellent Charles Dana Burrage, grand priest of the M. E. St. John Chambre, Edward S. Crandon, George E. Collins, Robert W. Browning, Edward P. Hatch, Edward O. Burton and Col. Everett C. Benton.

They were received by Horace S. Bacon, high priest of Mt. Horeb chapter and other officers. At the close of the reception, dinner was served in the banquet hall and the tables were handsomely decorated.

At the post-prandial exercises, Mr. Bacon presided. Addresses were made by all the visitors and a number of members of Mt. Horeb chapter. The principal address was by High Priest Burrage on "Symbolism of the Order."

A LEADING WITNESS IN McNAMARA CASE, AND PROMINENT COUNSEL FOR DEFENSE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20.—The approach of the time of holding the trial of James J. McNamara on the charge of dynamiting the building of the Los Angeles Times causes national attention to centre on the case, which is of profound importance to organized labor. One of the principal witnesses, aside from Ortie McManigal, alleged accomplice in dynamiting crimes, who has confessed, will be D. Jones, the Indiana farmer in whose barn near Indianapolis a large stock of dynamite was found and alleged to have been stored there by McNamara. Leo M. Rapaport, a well known member of the Los Angeles bar, will conduct most of the affairs of the defense. He will, it is said, endeavor to prove through Jones that McNamara had nothing to do with storing the dynamite in the barn.

THREE VIEWS OF WILLIAM BURGESS, WHO RECENTLY SWAM ENGLISH CHANNEL

LONDON, Sept. 20.—William T. Burgess, who after sixteen unsuccessful attempts finally succeeded in swimming the English channel, announced recently that for a $60,000 prize he would try to swim across the channel and back again. Burgess entered the water in St. Margaret's Bay, Dover, at fifteen minutes past 11 a. m. Sept. 5 and reached Cape Gris Nez, a headland in Pas au Calais and the nearest point in France to the English shore, at 10.40 a. m. Sept. 6. His time was 22 hours and 35 minutes. The temperature of the water was 66 degrees, the highest in a decade, but Burgess said afterward: "I was extremely groggy at times, and I don't think I could have been more miserable. I had hallucinations and saw all sorts of things too horrible to describe. I was stung by a jellyfish a hundred times," Burgess was born in Yorkshire, but was naturalized in France. He tried first in 1894 to duplicate the feat of Captain Matthew Webb in 1875. Webb lost his life in trying to swim Niagara rapids. Picture No. 1 shows Burgess resting in bed after long swim, with his aged mother at his side; No. 2, Burgess before he started; No. 3, Burgess in the water nearing the end of the feat.

LOWELL PEOPLE

Had a Delightful Trip to Quebec

Beautiful weather, a party of most agreeable tourists under the personal guidance of one with twenty-five years' experience in conducting tours, made Mooney's 25th annual tour to the White Mountains, Quebec, the far famed Saguenay river, Montreal, and home again to the dear old United States, one of the most delightful trips of the season.

The party left Lowell on Monday, September 11th under most favorable weather conditions. The Crawford Notch in the White Mountains was reached early in the evening, where comfortable reservations were provided at the Crawford House, one of the finest hotels in the mountains. After arriving there the tourists immediately undertook to explore the mountains which at sunset were magnificent. Outside of the grandeur of the mountain scenery one of the most interesting attractions was a visit to Jack the Hermit's hut in the woods at the base of Mount Willard. English Jack, or Jack English, as he calls himself, has lived the life of a hermit here for 39 years, and although reported dead in the Boston papers about a year ago, the visitors found him very much alive at 89 years of age.

Leaving Crawford Notch on the morning of the second day the party journeyed on in private Pullman cars to Quebec, passing through the picturesque scenery of the White Mountain range, on the west side, in full view of Mount Washington and other famous mountain peaks, arriving in the city of Quebec at night. After a night in Quebec on the steamer Murray Bay, the tourists were on their way up the beautiful St. Lawrence and the picturesque Saguenay river bounded by hills and precipices of sombre and impressive grandeur. Chicoutimi, a busy little lumbering town at the head of navigation, was reached early in the morning, where the tourists visited the cathedrals and seminaries. On the return trip a stop was made at Tadousac, a quaint village picturesquely situated above the confluence of the St. Lawrence and Saguenay rivers, where early in the 16th century the French traders fixed their first post. The most interesting spot to visitors here is the little chapel of the Jesuit mission, the oldest church in Canada. The next important stop was at Murray Bay, the famous watering place of the lower St. Lawrence. Here President Taft learned to play golf and for many years previous to his election he and his family spent their summers in a cottage which he still owns, over which the American flag still waves. Farther down the river Cape Trinity is reached and is quite easily recognized by its formation. It rises from the dark waters in three distinct elevations, each one about six hundred feet in height, one great mountain cape with three crowns surmounted by an immense statue of the Blessed Virgin. After a sail of two days and two nights the party returned to Quebec in the morning. From Quebec a journey was made in privats cars to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre and Montmorency falls.

At Quebec splendid accommodations were provided at the Chateau Frontenac, and the next day given to carriage drives around the city visiting the principal churches and other points of interest.

Montreal was reached on Saturday evening and the tourists proceeded to the Place Viger hotel, where they were comfortably located during their stay in Montreal. On Sunday the party in private carriages visited Mount Royal and the magnificent churches throughout the city. Owing to the low water the trip to the Lachine Rapids had to be abandoned, but instead Mr. Mooney arranged a delightful trip around the city in private cars.

At the present time in Montreal there is great excitement over the reciprocity issue to be voted upon at the election on the 21st instant. The opposition is putting out all kinds of bogeys and false statements to scare the people into voting against reciprocity.

The return trip was made in private Pullman cars leaving Montreal at 9 o'clock Monday morning, passing along the east slope of the White Mountain range, affording a grand view of the mountains and lakes, and reaching Lowell at 7.30 in the evening.

There were 75 in the party including tourists from Salem, Lynn, Marblehead, Swampscott, Somerville, Charlestown, Newburyport, Methuen, Lawrence, Chelmsford and Lowell. The Lowell people on the trip were:

Miss O. C. Peterson, Miss Maud McPherson, Miss Etta Robinson, Mr. Francis E. Appleton, Mrs. F. E. Appleton, Mr. Millard F. Davis, Mrs. M. F. Davis, Mr. M. H. Reidy, Mrs. M. H. Reidy, Mr. C. K. Miller, Mrs. C. K. Miller, Mr. E. F. Saunders, Mrs. E. F. Saunders, Mr. Harry A. Thompson, Mrs. H. A. Thompson, Miss Katherine W. Snow, Miss Mary S. Howarth, Mr. Nelson Brown, Mr. Laforest Beals, Mrs. Laforest Beals, Mr. A. W. Greeley, Mrs. A. W. Greeley, Mrs. Dr. F. H. Drew, Miss S. A. Leahey, Miss E. C. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Laycock, Mrs. Charles L. Marren, Mrs. Fred A. Pilling, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bartlet.

It was one of the most delightful tours ever conducted by Mr. Mooney, the entire trip being made without mishap of any kind. Mr. Mooney has the experience and the skill necessary to make an excursion of this kind enjoyable, and he makes his trips so delightful that anybody taking one of them will be sure to long for others.

Mr. Mooney was accompanied by Mrs. Mooney, who made the trip exceedingly pleasant for the ladies.

When Lowell was reached a rousing cheer was given for the popular conductor, and the remainder of the party went on to their respective homes.

THE BLARNEY STONE

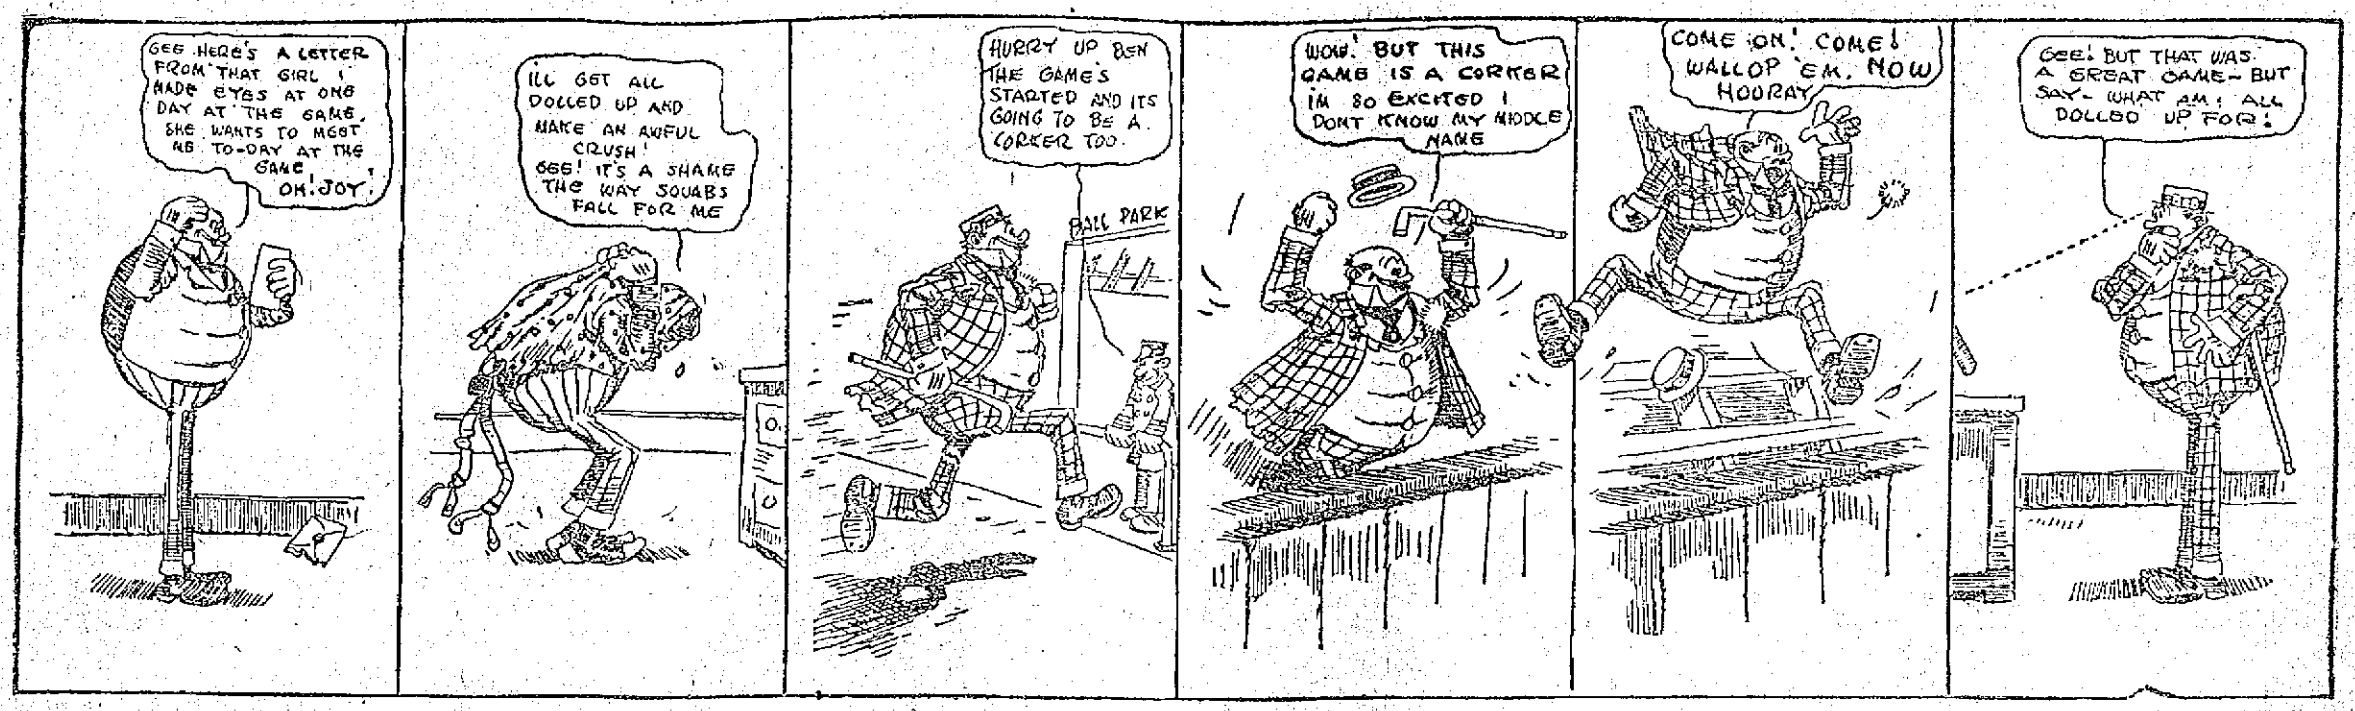

Humphrey O'Sullivan Has a Rare Relic

Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan who recently returned from a trip to Europe during which he combined business with pleasure, is the proud possessor of a piece of the Blarney stone. Mr. O'Sullivan was in Boston Monday and took occasion to visit his intimate friend, Governor Foss, whom he had not seen since he left this country for Europe. He had with him the piece of the Blarney stone and insisted on having the governor kiss it, a ceremony that the governor assured him he was pleased to take part in. Mr. O'Sullivan is very proud indeed of this souvenir as it is rarely that one is permitted to secure a portion of the historic stone. Mr. O'Sullivan had a strange experience on his return to this country. It seems that he had purchased 112 pounds of Irish bacon, had declared the same properly to the customs officers and when he arrived here he found that he could not get his shipment made to this city for the customs officer in this country had held up the bacon, although Mr. O'Sullivan was willing to pay any price to have it sent to Lowell. Mr. O'Sullivan reports that he was most successful in the business end of his trip.

An anniversary mass of requiem for the soul of Mrs. Thomas P. Boulger was celebrated at the Immaculate Conception church yesterday morning.

"BATTLING" NELSON

Was Given the Decision Over Billy Nixon Last Night

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—Fifteen seconds after the start of the 10th round in the bout between Battling Nelson, ex-lightweight champion, and Billy Nixon of Cambridge, at the Armory A. A. last night, Referee Sheehan parted the boxers and sending both to their corners, declared Nelson the winner.

The referee did the right thing, for Nixon had no chance and would have probably been knocked out before the round ended.

The battle that Nelson put up did not show he was a come back, but it will take a rugged fellow with a good punch to whip him.

The Battler did not box fair, according to the rules. Nixon was examined by a physician after the bout and it was shown that Nixon had been hit low in the ninth round.

The referee declared that the punch referred to was fair. There were those at the ringside who thought otherwise. Nelson, however, had Nixon beaten, but the latter might have gone through the 12 rounds had he not received the punch.

Nixon showed poor judgment in the way he boxed. Instead of stepping around, he preferred to take Nelson at his own style, which is at close quarters.

Did Not Mind the Blows

The Battler did not mind the blows and kept coming all the time till he got Nixon to clinch. Then the Battler got his arms working. He kept driving short rights and lefts into the body, to the kidneys and up to Nixon's face. In the third round one of the rights caught Nixon on the eye and put that optic out of commission. It proved a big handicap to Nixon.

While the Battler missed many times with his stiff right and left-arm swings he landed many of them on Nixon's face. He also sent Nixon's head back many times with straight lefts on the mouth and nose. Often, however, Nixon landed some good counters with both hands to the face and jaw.

Several times the hopes of Nixon's friends were raised by the fast attack he made on Nelson's jaw and face with both hands. Several times Nelson wobbled for an instant.

Nixon was continually advised to keep out of the clinches, but he did not pay a great deal of heed to it. In the clinches Nelson did not forget to resort to his old trick of rubbing his hair in his opponent's face. Once he grabbed Nixon by the nose and wrung it.

The body punching that Nelson had been handing out to Nixon began to show its effect after the fifth round. Nelson, evidently, too, felt the hard work, for he was continually working to get his right over on the jaw for a knockout. A number of times he succeeded in getting it over, but it landed too high to bring about the result he sought.

Nixon Grows Weaker

Up to the ninth round Nixon continued to get weaker, although occasionally he made a spurt and dashed in with a right or left to the face or jaw. He could not stop the Battler, however, who kept forcing him about the ring, sending stiff jabs and swings to the face and jaw. Nixon did more clinching only to get more punishment.

That Nixon was certain to be defeated was evident to the fans, but they figured he would go the limit. Near the close of the ninth round, Nixon went into a clinch, and when the referee ordered them to break Nixon had his left arm around Nelson's neck. He started to pull it away when Nelson whipped over the stiff left-hand blow that is claimed to be the low one.

The minute's rest in his corner did not help Nixon any and when he answered the sound of the bell for the 10th round he was in a bad way. The battler started in to finish up the job and was in a fair way of doing so when the referee stopped the contest and declared Nelson the winner. The battler looked and acted as fresh as when he started and made a short speech.

A FAST ELEVEN

PROMISED AT THE HIGH SCHOOL THIS YEAR

The second day of football practice by the candidates for positions on the High school football team was held yesterday afternoon at Washington park under the supervision of Coach Mahongy. There was an increased attendance yesterday, and it is the opinion of those who have watched the candidates work that Lowell should have a fast team this year.

Yesterday the back line candidates were given starts and dashes of five and ten yards, stop watches "clocking" the young men.

BOYS DISAPPEARED

NASHUA MAN SAYS HIS MONEY ALSO IS MISSING

NASHUA, N. H., Sept. 20.—The police last night stated that Joseph Salman, who lives on a farm on the Pine Hill road, three miles from the city, reported that $400 was missing from his house.

He wished the police to find two boys, one of whom worked on the farm. The other came to visit him and the pair were left alone in the house. When the family returned the boys had disappeared and the money, which was between the matresses of a bed, was gone. Mr. Salman got the money to pay a mortgage on the place.

The boys are Joseph Kissell, who lived in School street, and Michael Nefallvich, who lived in Pattens court. The lads, who are each about 15 years old, were traced to Haverhill, where one has relatives, but disappeared from that city before being overtaken.

SERIOUSLY INJURED

REV. J. F. GILLIS WAS RUN OVER BY AN AUTO

BURLINGTON, Vt., Sept. 20.—Rev. J. F. Gillis, V. G., rector of the cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, was seriously injured yesterday when he was run over by an automobile driven by Miss Anna Reynolds of South Willard street.

Fr. Gillis was rushed to the Fanny Allen hospital, where his injuries were found to consist of several bad gashes about the face and head. The wounds were dressed at the hospital and the patient was reported last night as resting comfortably.

The accident occurred near Hoods crossing in the village of Winooski. Fr. Gillis was riding a motorcycle, which he uses to make his parish calls, and was going toward the Fanny Allen hospital. When nearing the Hood crossing he attempted to turn out to avoid striking a workman who was on foot. The roadway is steep at this point and in turning out Fr. Gillis lost control of his machine and fell.

The automobile driven by Miss Reynolds was following close behind and had gathered some speed in order to make the steep hill. Before Miss Reynolds could turn her machine aside the front wheel passed over Fr. Gillis' face.

LOWERS THE RECORD

Peter Thompson Made a New World Mark at Detroit

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—In a brilliant contest, Peter Thompson won the trotting division of the Matron stakes at the state fair track yesterday and in so doing reduced his own world's record for 3-year-old trotting geldings to 2.08¼.

Three heats were necessary, Atlantic Express having won the first one by a superb sprint through the stretch, while Peter Thompson beat him by a head in the same sort of a finish in the second.

The third heat saw Atlantic Express in front at the end, but he had been caught beyond the distance by Peter Thompson and ran the last part, so the judges awarded the verdict to the colt, which had stuck to his gait.

Each of the heat winners took a race record of 2.08¼, and as the track and day formed a condition that many experts estimated cut off two seconds, the exhibition of speed was impressive.

Another feature was the dropping of the red flag in the face of Thomas H. Murphy, who has won nearly all of the stakes of consequence this year. This occurred in the $5000 event for 2.11 pacers, in which Sir R was the logical favorite. He jumped in the Chamber of Commerce stake and he did it again yesterday, falling so far back that he could not beat the distance. Murphy, however, won the first race on the card with Charley Mitchell, who had the speed of the party.

Atlantic Express Drew the Pole

The 2.11 pacing event went to Hal B Jr. and the Canadians profited thereby. The trotting division of the Matron stakes was third on the card. Mainleaf, which beat Miss Stokes, was a strong favorite and brought $100 in pools of $190 in which Atlantic Express sold for $45 and Peter Thompson $10.

Atlantic Express drew the pole, while Mainleaf was on the outside. At the quarter Margaret had half a length on Mainleaf, and Atlantic Express was several lengths back, and Jack Swift lapped him.

The filly was leading as they passed the three-quarters, with Mainleaf hanging on and Atlantic Express was lapped on Jack Swift. Mainleaf and Margaret Parish raced their limit in the stretch.

The fast first half was telling, and bringing Atlantic Express up on the outside, Dickerson gave that colt a drive for his life, catching the others two yards from the end and beating them half a length.

In the second heat Margaret led Atlantic Express to the quarter with Mainleaf, Margaret Parish and Peter Thompson in close attendance. The order was much the same as the half in slower time than in the other heat. On the far turn Mainleaf began to drop back, Peter Thompson coming to him.

Atlantic Express was leading halfway down when Peter Thompson began to step and in a superb burst of speed gained at every stride, getting to Atlantic Express in the last few yards and beating him by a head in 2.08¼, a new world's record for 3-year-old trotting geldings.

In the third heat Atlantic Express was leading in the stretch with the bunch close behind him. Peter Thompson drew up at the seven-eighth and was within striking distance. As he collared Atlantic Express inside the distance that colt made a tired break under the drive and ran to the end in front.

The $5000 event for 2.11 pacers brought but only four, and Sir R sold at more than 2 to 1 over the others. Just after passing the half Sir R made a desperate break, and in a few seconds the others had swept by. Murphy had to bring him to a standstill to get him righted. Zulu Hal kept on, but at the head of the stretch Hal B Jr. whizzed by, winning easily. Sir R had paced very fast, but what slight chance he had went glimmering when he made a second break in the stretch, and the red flag fell. Hal B Jr. had the race to himself after this.

Cox tried at different points with Branham Baughman, but he could not reach. Hal B Jr. paced the second quarter of the second mile in 30¼s and the last in 30⅝s, pulled up. He went the first quarter in the third mile in 30s.

Miss De Forest defeated a select company in the Matron stake for pacers. The purse distribution was: Miss De Forest, $1076.94; Olive O'Beirne, $448.44; Fred De Forest, $269.06.

DR. HOLMES, HEAD OF MOVEMENT TO REDUCE MINE FATALITIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The great conference of miners at Pittsburg during the last week of October to discuss methods of reducing the fatalities in mine accidents will, from all indications, be attended by no less than 30,000 men. President Taft will deliver an address. Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the United States bureau of mines, originated the idea of the conference, and is now working on the plans to make the meeting one of pronounced value.

THE WATER BOARD MET

Looked Over the Plans for the New Pumping Station

The water board held a long meeting last night. The board looked over charts describing buildings for the new pumping station at the boulevard and considered a raft of petitions.

The charts for the new pumping station were received from F. A. Barber of Boston. One of the charts were accepted, and it was voted to have specified plans drawn up within the next two weeks and presented to the board, so that work might be begun on or before Oct. 15. A letter from Mr. Barber stated that the station would be completed by the end of the year if begun on that date.

The board decided not to begin any of the proposed concrete work on the new reservoir until next spring, but to have the work of excavation begun and completed as soon as possible, so that the construction of the reservoir might be started early in the spring.

There was a petition by Fred W. Holmes for 200 feet of piping to be laid from Stevens street to Preston avenue, where he is constructing a new house. The board voted a view of the premises.

Mr. O'Neil requested that a pipe be laid from Weed street to Stromquist avenue. The board decided to view this property, also, at some early date.

Mr. George E. Libbey petitioned the board for a rebate on a bill which he claimed called for more than should have been charged, the question arising from a leak in the city pipe which was not discovered until much water had been wasted. It was voted to grant a rebate of $35 on the bill in question.

Patrick Owens petitioned the board for 150 feet of pipe, to be laid from Stevens street to Lake avenue. Mr. Owens is building a house on that avenue. It was voted to instruct the commissioner to view the property and report the matter to the committee at the next meeting.

Property which was recently seized by the water board brought a protest from Albert Winslow & Co. of Boston, from the fact that two corner lots were not taken, but were not so valuable as formerly on account of the wells being sunk in the next lot. Robert Ellis represented the company and said that it was anxious to sell these two lots with the rest of the property. The committee agreed to look into the matter and visit the lots.

A petition to lay water pipes from Stevens street through Fairfax park, and also from Fairfax street through Highland avenue to Waite street was presented by Eugene G Russell. Mr. Russell recently purchased the property from Shepard & Fuller and, as it includes 15 lots that are soon to be built on, he is anxious to have the matter considerd. The committee voted to view the district before taking definite action in regard to the laying of the proposed water system.

Mr. Byam, of Byam Bros., appeared to ask the board to consider the matter of buying a shanty belonging to one Caronious, whose property on the boulevard has been recently seized for the construction of the new wells. The matter was laid on the table until after the committee had seen the property and the lumber.

DENTAL SOCIETY

TENDERED FAREWELL BANQUET TO DR. KINNEY

Dr. E. E. Kinney, who leaves soon for Vancouver, B. C., to practice his profession, was tendered a banquet at the New American hotel last night, by about a score of members of the Lowell Dental society of which he is a member.

All sat down around the table shortly after 7 o'clock and after an excellent menu had been discussed Dr. Hugh Walker, acting as toastmaster, called to order. Dr. V. E. Darling made a short speech in which he reviewed Dr. Kinney's work in this city and told of the high esteem in which the doctor was held by the fellow members of his profession, presented the guest of the evening with a handsome picture of the forum in Rome. Dr. Kinney responded in an appropriate manner, after which short speeches were made by those present.

Dr. Kinney has practiced in this city for 14 years and is considered one of the best dentists in this city.

TERRACE GABLES

FASHIONABLE HOTEL AT FALMOUTH RAIDED

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The fashionable Terrace Gables at Falmouth, one of the largest hotels on Cape Cod, was raided yesterday by representatives of the Law Enforcement league, and from evidence secured a warrant was granted by Judge Frederick C. Swift, charging Proprietor Draper of the hotel with the illegal sale of liquor. It is expected that the warrant will be served today, and that the case will come up for trial Friday in the Barnstable district court.

Hundreds of the summer guests of the hotel were about at the time the representatives of the league, disguised as yachtsmen and golfers, entered the hotel in search of evidence. In this they had little difficulty, according to James Ray, a private detective in the employ of the Law Enforcement league, who with Felix W. McGettrick, attorney for the league, made the trip to Falmouth and return by automobile. "We obtained clear evidence of the sale of cocktails, rye whiskeys, gin fizzes and other liquors," he said, "and downstairs our men bought liquor at the bar, besides seeing other sales." Ray swore out the warrant.

GENERAL TREPOFF

Man Who Protects Jews From Mobs

KIEV, Russia, Sept. 20.—To General Trepoff, one of the sternest military men in the Russian empire, has devolved the task of preserving order in districts where disturbances are threatened owing to the death of Premier Stolypin from an assassin's bullet. Reports of threatened massacres in the Jewish districts of the big cities are frequently heard, as Stolypin's assassin, Begroff, is a Jew, but, according to the authorities, every possible precaution will be taken to preserve the lives of the natives.

That was a frightful accident that occurred at the grounds of the state fair in Syracuse, N. Y., when an automobile going at high speed left the course and dashed into a crowd of people, killing ten outright and wounding many others. This is one of the results of the prevailing high speed mania that revels in such dangerous contests. What occurred at Syracuse might occur at any of the automobile races where the people line up in dense masses along the course if an accident turns a machine from its course. The drivers are usually the ones to suffer, but in the Syracuse accident the spectators were the victims. The people are now learning that the elevated seat on the grand stand either at auto or aviation races is none too safe.

THE PRESIDENT'S DEFENSE OF THE TRUST DECISIONS

The president's speech in defense of the supreme court decision in the trust cases, notably the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust, is an able argument from the legal standpoint and would doubtless have more influence on public opinion if the president were not on a political tour of the country. He argues strongly in favor of the construction of the Sherman law laid down by the United States supreme court when it decides that trusts that are not guilty of "unreasonable" restraint of trade are not guilty of violating the law. His whole speech is a plea for the "reasonable" construction of the act and against any amendment of the Sherman law. His challenge to Mr. Bryan and others to show any trust guilty of unreasonable restraint of trade that this law will not put out of business is immaterial. The Standard Oil company as a trust was put out of business nominally, but reduced to its component parts it is conducting its business the same as ever. The various branches can act on a private understanding instead of all acting as a united whole. President Taft in this speech, however, puts the decision in the best possible light. The whole address has the judicial tone and the smooth and polished diction so characteristic of all the president's legal utterances. In this address he puts forth all his legal ability and it is not improbable that the points made were adopted after consultation with the justices of the United States supreme court responsible for the recent decisions. But the president is responsible for his own utterances and this speech will stand as the strongest defense yet made of the position of the supreme court on the trust question.

THE RUSSIAN TRAGEDY

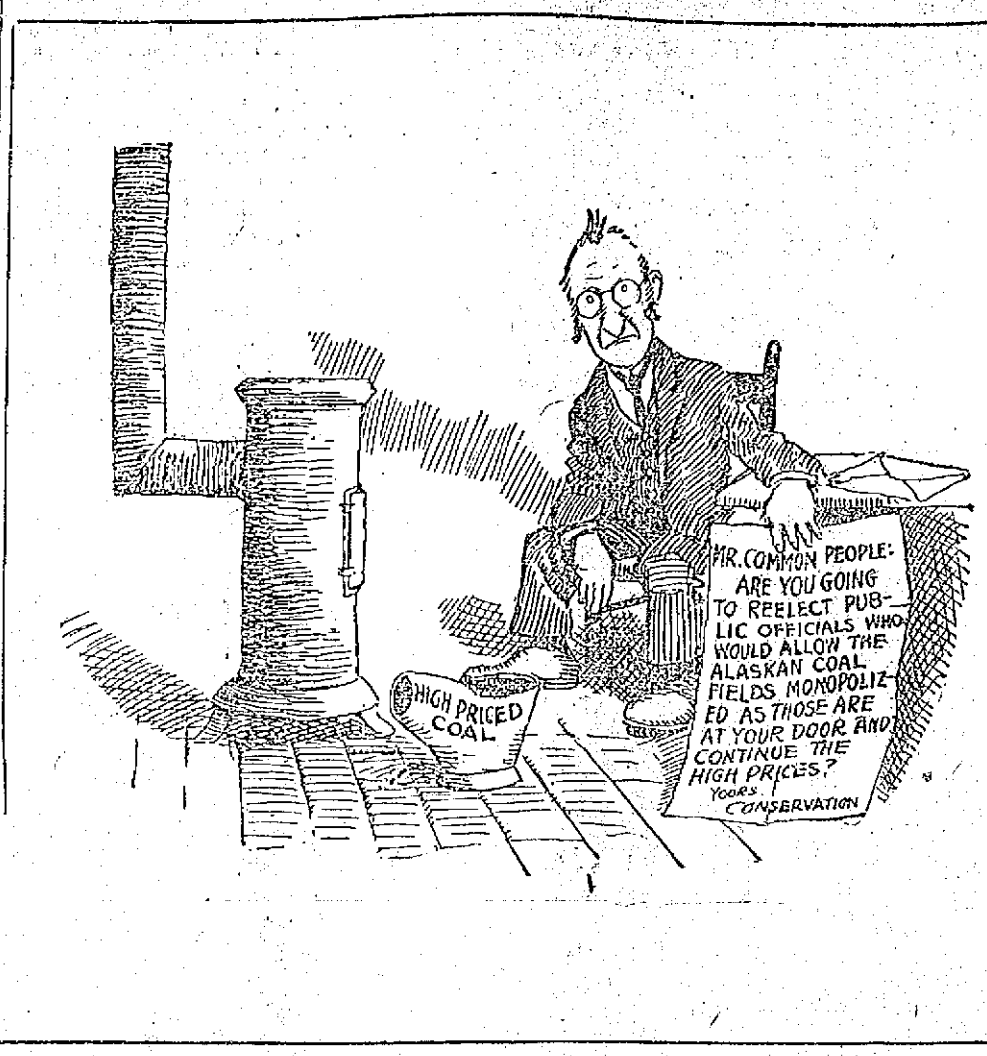

The Russian Premier Stolypin is dead, as a result of being shot at a theatre at Kiev last Thursday night. It appears that this act is the beginning of a new reign of terror in Russia. The revolutionists are determined to make more trouble, and it is rather surprising that the emperor who was present at the same performance was not also fired upon. The reforms that have been promised in Russia have miscarried to a great extent, and it is not at all surprising that some revolutionary movement lifts its head to combat the absolutism that seems to reign supreme in Russia. However just the cause of the people may be, their course cannot be approved when they resort to assassination, the dynamite bomb and other methods favored by anarchists and nihilists. The late premier was an able man, but if he had induced the emperor to promote reforms more generously instead of helping him to maintain despotic sway, regardless of popular rights, the situation today might be very much different.

It is true that Russia has a nominal constitution and that the douma has at least the privilege of expressing its opinions. One douma after another had to yield to the imperious will of the emperor and in every conflict Stolypin steered what he believed to be the middle course between reform and despotism. He restored order in a degree by the harsh application of force and he applied the death penalty so readily on the slightest appearance of resistance to the government that a large portion of the Russian people will rejoice at his assassination, cowardly and treacherous though it was. Russia has few men competent to fill the place occupied by Stolypin and it is not improbable that the revolutionists encouraged by his removal will endeavor to wreak their vengeance upon other high officials.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER'S GREAT BATTLE

The province of Quebec is said to be loyal to Laurier in his fight for reciprocity. This was demonstrated the other day when Henri Bourassa was howled down at a meeting in that province while attempting to follow Premier Laurier. Bourassa is a skilful speaker and has carried audiences with him on many occasions when the sentiment seemed strongly against him. He has been doing his utmost to turn the French Canadians against Laurier, but this rebuff at Saulanges in the heat of the campaign would indicate that Laurier is master of the situation. If the province of Quebec stands solidly with Laurier, it will be very difficult for the other provinces to beat him.

In spite of all the protestations of Mr. Laurier that reciprocity has no other motive than improved trade between the United States and Canada, his opponents hold out the annexation bogey and unfortunately they are able to quote some statements from publications on this side the border to give their charge the color of confirmation. These statements have been put out for the purpose of defeating reciprocity and it would appear that the high protectionists on this side the line, including the lumber trusts, have a finger in the pie. It was a paper representing the lumber interests that said this country will ultimately annex Cuba, Mexico and Canada. Premier Asquith, Chancellor George and other liberal leaders in England have expressed their utmost confidence in the honesty of purpose on the part of the United States in seeking reciprocity. They further assert that Canada is likely to gain fully as much from the change as would the United States. The battle is being bitterly fought and Sir Wilfrid Laurier for a man of seventy is making a noble fight. He is a wonderful campaigner and the greatest statesman Canada has seen for a generation. The Canadian opposition to Laurier is undoubtedly receiving assistance from the trusts and high protectionists of this country and all are combined to defeat reciprocity for which he is making such a vigorous fight. If he wins he will have vanquished immense odds by his own native ability. If he loses he will go down with flying colors, a victim of deceit, distortion and the corrupt use of money. The loss of reciprocity would be worse for Canada than for the United States and it would probably result in higher duties against Canadian imports than have formerly prevailed.

A TIMELY QUESTION

SEEN AND HEARD

In his book, lately published in the Hungarian language and translated into almost every modern tongue, Dr. Lorand says that from recent reports of the register offices of Austria, Germany, he able to prolong the lives of many are justified in assuming that though life is usually limited to 55 or 60 years it may occasionally be prolonged to 100, or even more, by the operation of certain internal and external agencies.

By studying these, we may eventually be able to prolong the lives of many individuals beyond 80 or even 90, and to prolong our term of youthfulness by 10 or 20 years. We need no longer grow old at 40 or 50. This can be brought about by improving the functions of a certain few of the glandular structures of the body, provided one or more of the main organs have not already been too gravely compromised by incurable organic disorders.

To prevent old age coming on too soon, the first condition necessary is the possession of healthy ductless glands (chief among them being the thyroid, the adrenals, the pancreas and the liver), and this depends upon heredity.

Marriage is an invaluable aid in the struggle against old age. If married life is one of the best means of resisting the approach of old age, on the other hand, it is positively certain that unhappy marriages are the surest means of hastening its oncoming.

To avoid premature old age and early death we have to follow the rules:

Wear loose collars, because a tight collar prevents obstacles to the free circulation of the blood through the thyroid.

Do not take too much meat, because abundance of meat alters the ductless glands.

Take large quantities of milk, this being the extract of various glands, and especially that of the thyroid.

Be as much as possible in the open air, and especially in the sunshine; and take plenty of exercise, taking care to breathe deeply and regularly.

Take a bath daily, and, in addition, once a week or every two weeks take a Turkish or vapour bath.

Wear porous clothing, light hat, and low shoes.

Go early to bed and rise early.

Sleep in a very dark, very quiet room and with a window open; and do not sleep less than 6 nor more than 7½ hours.

Have one complete day's rest in each week, without even reading or writing.

Avoid mental disturbances or worries.

Be temperate in the use of alcohol and also in the use of coffee or tea.

Avoid places that are overheated, especially by steam, and badly ventilated.

Replace or reinforce the functions of the organs which may have become changed by age or disease, by means of the extracts from the corresponding organs of healthy animals. But, of course, the application of this precept must be adapted to the individual case

Sir: The rather remarkable poem, or fragment, given below is taken from a volume published recently in London entitled "The Pillow Book." No author is given credit, and search has so far failed to find one. A thought so striking, so well expressed and so much a part of the philosophy of so many high minds ought not to remain long anonymous as to authorship.

Media, Pa., May 20, 1911.

"GOD AND I"

God and I in space alone,
And nobody else in view,
"And where are the people, O Lord?" I said,
"The earth beneath and the sky o'erhead,
And the dead whom once I knew."

"That was a dream," God smiled and said,
"A dream that has ceased to be true.
There were no people, living or dead,
No earth beneath and no sky o'erhead,
There was only Myself and You!"

"And why do I feel no fear," I said
"Meeting you here this way?
For I have sinned I know full well,
And is there heaven, and is there hell,
And is this judgment day?"

"Nay, those were but dreams," the great God said,
"Dreams that have ceased to be.
There are no such things as fear and sin,
And you yourself—you have never been;
There is nothing at all but Me."

WHEN MY SHIP COMES HOME

If all my ships come home, my dear,
Deep-laden from bottom to deck,
I'll buy you bright diamonds to hang on your ear
And rubies to twine round your neck;
No queen shall be fine as this lady of mine
If all my ships come home.

If half my ships come home, my dear,
We'll travel to look for the rest;
The near shall be the far and the far shall be the near,
And we'll roam from the East to the west.
You shall journey in state, love with me for your mate,
If half my ships come home.

If one of my ships comes home, my dear
With a garden to work in all through the sweet year,
And roses to pluck at your will.
If one of my ships comes home.

But if none of my ships come home, my dear,
If all of them sink in the wave—
Then, bankrupt, with nothing to forfeit or fear,
I'll bind me to service, your slave,
And proudly I'll take what you give for love's sake,
If none of my ships come home.
—Stephen Gwynn in the Pall Mall Magazine.

How to Destroy The Dandruff Germ

BY A SPECIALIST

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well known fact, but when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many of the worst cases of catarrh and consumption, we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are, therefore, particularly pleased to give herewith the prescription which an eminent scientist states he has found, after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hairgrowth after years of baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you: 6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavona de Composee, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after standing half an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the fingertips. If you wish it perfumed, add half a teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. While this preparation is not a dye, it is unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color.

Before publication we presented this prescription to Riker-Jaynes Drug Co., of this city, and they state that they have filled it many times for their patrons who report most astonishing results from its use.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Chicago Evening Post: A political judge is a constant affliction to a community. A local bench is as strong only as its weakest link. If there is but one judge who places personal party obligations above justice and public duty, all cases involving politics invariably drift into his court. And there is then and there created new sentiment in favor of judicial recall.

The fact that the public notice is fixed upon the judiciary with unusual intentness, owing to the recall propaganda, is a potent argument in favor of the nomination of men who will make able and upright judges.

PRESIDENT MELLEN'S ASSURANCE

Fall River Herald: The assurance by President Mellen that nothing short of a "business cataclysm," which he does not foresee, will make it necessary for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company to reduce its annual dividend from eight per cent will be cheering to the thousands of investors in the railroad company's stock in this vicinity. Lack of business and increase of operating expenses have cut down the earnings of all the railroads, and for that reason the rumors that the New Haven road would reduce, following the reduction of the Boston & Maine dividend, seemed to have good foundation. President Mellen's recent announcement will dispell the uncertainty.

HEADED FOR THE DITCH

Boston Post: Perhaps the republican "machine" of Massachusetts is putting subterranean props under the candidacy of Mr. Frothingham; perhaps Senator Crane has whispered that Mr. White is a fine young fellow—yes, a very fine young fellow; perhaps Mr Ledge has sent a snake-skin of bullets to Mr. Walker. Perhaps a dozen or so of the charges and counter-charges, rumors and suppositions flying around the tripartite camp of the faithful are true.

What difference does it make, anyway?

Mr. White sourly accuses the republican bosses of trying to "put the party in a ditch," by their support of Frothingham. But it is not they who will do that particular act, but the people in November. The crowd seems headed for the ditch, no matter who drives.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK

Haverhill Gazette: The most important step in the development of the postal savings banks system is its extension to the four leading cities of the Union. The test of the value of the postal savings banks will be supplied in these cities, where there are dense wage-earning populations. Foreign-born persons aggregate in the four cities 1,550,000 and their savings sent abroad reach the great sum of $17,500,000. Every postmaster general for a score of years has called attention to the outgo of American money because of our refusal to adopt the postal savings bank system. The American congress cannot be accused of acting hastily in some matters.

LEDUC'S EXCUSE

Boston Globe: R. Leduc, Laurier's political opponent in Quebec, who was said to have withdrawn from the contest in favor of the premier, now comes forward to say that he did no such a thing. He alleges that he drank with strangers, got doped, and when he came back to consciousness found that he had signed his own resignation from the contest. We don't know how these things work in Canada, but if M. Leduc were running on this side of the line he would do just as well to resign anyway, after a confession like that.

WALTER SUYDAM JR.

REQUESTS HIS WIFE TO MARRY YOUNG NOBLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Stipulating that his young wife should first enter into an agreement to marry young Frederick Noble, the plumber's son, with whom she recently ran away from her home in Blue Point, L. I., Walter Dispenard Suydam, Jr. offered yesterday to free her by suing her for divorce.

Suydam, his millionaire father, and a lawyer called upon the young woman at the flat where she and Noble have been living and made the stipulation as an alternative to never having a divorce suit begun. They demanded also that the agreement be signed by Noble.

Previous to their arrival Mrs. Suydam complained of her husband's delay in starting divorce proceedings. She said she had no intention of going back to her husband and wanted a divorce immediately. Young Suydam had hoped for a reconciliation, but finding it hopeless began to consider the divorce situation.

His one thought, he announced, was that the future of his wife should be provided for.

CHELMSFORD

An important meeting of the voters of the town of Chelmsford was held Monday evening in the Centre town hall, the purpose of which was to discuss the question of a lighting system in the town. After considerable discussion on the question a vote was taken and by a majority of 30 it was decided to authorize the board of selectmen to enter into a contract with the Lowell Electric Light Corporation to light up the town irrespective of location, for a term of five years at a rate not to exceed $19.50 per light per year. An amendment to the effect that the price for East Chelmsford be $23.25 instead of $19.50 was defeated by a large majority who were willing, however, to contract for a five year contract over the entire town at the lower rate.

The question now is to find out how far the selectmen can go in the event of the Lowell Electric Light corporation refusing to lower their terms for the lighting of East Chelmsford. Can the selectmen enter into a five-year contract for a certain portion of the town and leave the remainder to be charged for under a yearly contract at a higher rate? Many voters claim that no authority has been given the selectmen to sign up the town for different rates and various periods of time. If that is the case, East Chelmsford, which section was the bone of contention, may find itself without any electric lights at all, unless the corporation sees fit to accept the terms of the voters. In the opinion of others, it would be possible for the selectmen and the corporation to sign the proposed contract at $19.50, with the elimination of the East section, but some doubt as to whether the majority of the board, in all fairness, would sanction such a course. The question has now become one of a complex nature, unless the Lowell Electric Light corporation is willing to accede to the terms as voted upon—a flat rate of $19.50 over the entire town. Otherwise, it looks as though no contract could be legally entered into, which would allow conditions to remain as they are for some little time longer.

FOWLER'S MOTHER

SAYS THAT HER SON WILL WIN BIG PRIZE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 20.—"My boy's going to win. I admire his nerve. He is a born birdman. I will not worry at all over his flight through space from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast. Why, I am so happy over his grit that I am accompanying the special train across the continent that is following him." This tersely shows the grit of Mrs. Robert Fowler, mother of Bob Fowler, the California aviator who is flying a Cole motor equipped Wright biplane for a $50,000 prize.

Mrs. Fowler, a middle-aged motherly woman, full of American grit and keen for progression, is truly proud of her boy. She is confident that he will win and recalls incidents that have happened during his life to show he was the one destined to make a successful cross country flight in an airship."

The big blue eyed chap who has worked unceasingly since last January preparing for the great flight loves his mother. He has asked her time and time again to tell him truthfully if she regrets the decision he has made. Each time the motherly face of the California widow has looked straight into the manly face of the son and said: 'No Robert. You are sensible. You know what you are about. I have confidence in you. Mr. Cole, Mr. Henderson and Mr. Grundy also have confidence in you. Mother will not worry. Just go in and win."

The grit and determination of the mother is the talk of the western coast. She is admired for her spirit, for the western citizens know that the motherly confidence will do much to inspire the youth to victory.

Mrs. Fowler is solicitous because her son does not get what she believes is sufficient sleep. He is working day and night. When not on his plane or motor he is taking sky observations. He does not, however, neglect proper nourishment, and this pleases his mother and C. Fred Grundy, his manager.

"When Bob was a youngster," his mother says, "he was always keen for kite flying. When four years old he fell from a four story window and was picked up unhurt. The first words from him were, 'mother the wind hurt me.' He was able to judge the speed of a ball through the air, and when playing the games with his companions he would stop and gaze at something that made his companions feel he was not right. When he came home he would propound the most peculiar questions about the air. He knew more about air currents than anyone I ever knew.

"From the first he was wild about flying machines. It seems as if he was born under an aviation star, if there is such a thing. It might be called hereditary, for our family throughout have been of an astronomical turn of mind. When driving an automobile he has shown an ability to determine things along the road before the machine reached the place that was wonderful. It was always the subject of comment among those riding with him. Many called it second sight, but neither Robert nor I believe such a thing. Then that argument would not hold good because it is only in matters where road or air conditions are concerned that my boy's mind is so acute."

Fowler is 23 years old. His home is at Gilroy, Cal. He is a graduate of Leland Stanford university.

POLYGAMY CHARGE

CAHILL ON TRIAL IN COURT IN LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Sept. 20.—In superior court yesterday Judge Brown sentenced Robert Peterson of North Andover to not less than two and a half and not more than four years in state prison for attacking a child.

Charles L. Corey of North Andover, for a statutory offence, was given not less than four and not more than five years in state prison.

Joseph Plouff of Salisbury was sentenced to nine months in the house of correction, and Thomas Hamel for four months for breaking and entering.

Patrick J. Cahill was on trial on a charge of polygamy. Evidence was offered that he married Mary C. Haggerty in Nashua, N. H., and deserted her in this city. He was found in Providence, where it is alleged he had a wife and three children. Defendant denied that he was legally married to the second wife. Both women were in court, the Providence woman with her three children.

WIGGINVILLE SEWER

The Committee Could Not Agree on a Definite Plan

The committee on sewers met last night ostensibly for the purpose of arriving at something definite relative to the Wigginville sewer proposition and incidentally to juggle with other matters. The committee could not agree on a plan for the Wigginville sewer though it was stated that the members had agreed upon a sewer under the Concord river at a point on the premises of the American Hide & Leather company. Ald. Daly said that this was not the proper time to start so important a work and refused to sign the order already signed by Ald. Rountree to start the work. Ald. Jodoin, the third member of the committee, also refused to sign the order until certain promises had been obtained, in writing, from companies interested.

Widen Rogers Street

At a brief meeting of the streets committee held last night it was voted to recommend that Rogers street be widened from Knapp avenue to Boylston street, at an estimated cost of $700. It was also voted to recommend that the name of Merrill street be changed to Munroe street.

The Outing Committee

The outing committee met last night to take action on the invitation extended by the Manchester, N. H., city government to the local city fathers to visit the up-river community. An "inter-city athletic carnival" was proposed by the New Hampshire statesmen, which is probably intended to mean a baseball game.

The committee decided to suggest Thursday, Sept. 28, as the date on which the local members would find it most convenient for them to attend, and the clerk was advised to communicate with the up-state brothers and find out if the suggestion was agreeable.

Councilman Coughlin was unanimously elected manager-captain for the Spindle City representatives, and Clerk Dowling was appointed a subcommittee of one to look after transportation.

LEAKING GAS

CAUSED FIRE IN A BROCKTON HOME

BROCKTON, Sept. 20.—Thomas Madden of 23 Kingsman avenue heard a noise that sounded like one of his children falling out of bed shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday evening and, getting a lantern, went to the floor above to investigate. Suddenly there was an explosion and Madden found himself surrounded by flames. He jumped back and then ascertained that there was a leak in a gas pipe. The fire was quickly extinguished by Madden and neighbors. Madden's right hand was slightly burned. The damage to the house was slight.

CARS NOT RUNNING

Street Railway Men in Detroit on Strike

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—Fifteen hundred employes of the Detroit United Railway company went on strike this morning and no street car is running in the city. The men get 23, 25 and 28 cents an hour. They asked 25 and 30 cents an hour.

Last night the leaders of the local street car men's association took up headquarters in the Knights of Equity hall and as soon as crews finished their respective runs they marched to the hall. At dawn hundreds of the men still wearing their uniforms came marching in every direction toward the hall.

"Practically all of the men were at the meeting this morning," said one of the men. "There was not a dissenting vote on the strike proposition."

A great array of workmen early this morning found deserted car tracks. State fair officials were out early, worried about the conditions about the fair. With the big fair in progress and with thousands of people expected today and all the rest of the week it means to them a great loss.

Out of the 2400 men employed by the D. U. railroad 1700 are members of the association. The remaining 700 are men who have been employed by the company for less than 90 days and who are not entitled to membership until they have worked that length of time. The men assert, however, the 700 will go out.

BILLERICA

The board of selectment of the town of Billerica met in regular session on Monday night in the office in the town hall, and considerable business was transacted. It was expected that the board would elect a police officer to fill the vacancy caused by the death of late Police Officer Livingston, but the members failed to agree on a man.

Two ballots were taken, the vote on each being: Henry D. Livingston, 1; William J. Canning, 1. For Livingston, Selectman Sheridan; for Canning, Selectman Singhi; Selectman Sanford not voting. The police work at the Centre is at present being done by Chief Conway and Special Officer Livingston, the latter also having the care of the town hall, which is a part of the regular officer's duties. This arrangement will probably continue until the appointment of a permanent officer is made. During the session John Conley and William Ballington were drawn to serve as jurors at the coming term of the superior court, which sits Oct. 2.

The following were appointed to serve as election officers for the next year: Precinct 1, John Reardon, warden; Michael H. McElligott, deputy warden; Daniel J. Donohue, inspector; Alfred Lyons, deputy inspector; Clarence A. Bowman, clerk; Charles A. Wright, deputy clerk; Herbert A. King, inspector; Warren Holden, deputy inspector. Precinct 2: Natt H. Hutchins, warden; Frederick Wain, deputy warden; William B. Chambers, inspector; Joseph Brown, deputy inspector; Edward Riley, clerk; John J. McSweeney, deputy clerk; John Twomey, inspector; Bartholomew Hayes, deputy inspector.

BOSTON'S MAYOR

Hands Out Some Advice to Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Branding Chicago's union loop structure as a disgrace to the city and denouncing traffic conditions as shameful, John F. Fitzgerald, Boston's aggressive mayor, said yesterday that this city should expend $250,000,000 in the next ten years for the installation of a complete subway system and in driving the Illinois Central railway off the lake front downtown.

Mayor Fitzgerald is in Chicago to attend the international municipal congress. At his hotel he kept his family awaiting breakfast while he plunged into the subway question. Meantime delegates to the congress acknowledged him to be the greatest municipal expert in the country.

"Chicago's debt is a paltry sum compared with the indebtedness of other cities at home and abroad," said the mayor. "The city easily could expend $250,000,000 in installing a complete subway system and in wiping out the Illinois Central nuisance.

"I visited one of the busy downtown elevated stations at the evening rush hour. The wild scramble of men, women and children is a disgrace to the city. I would not think of permitting members of my family to become entangled in that crowd for a moment. It appears to me it is about time the city harkened to the cry of the strap-hanger.

"Boston has expended $18,000,000 in preliminary work on a system which will reach the outskirts of the city. I expect to sign an enabling act when I return which will permit the expenditure of $20,000,000 more. Ultimately the subway will come under the complete control of the city.

"Chicago practically has no debt. You have unlimited money to spend for public improvements and any sum almost would be paltry compared to the proportionate indebtedness of other cities.

"This is a city of unequaled opportunities. I like your enterprise and public spirit. I like the big scale on which you do things.

"Without presuming to tell how to run Chicago affairs, I do believe that in failure to carry out plans for a subway the progress of the city has been hampered."

"DON" NICHOLS

FORMER HARVARD MAN TO WED A COUNTESS

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The engagement of John Donaldson Nichols, Harvard '06, and Countess Beatrice von Beylandt of The Hague, daughter of a member of the Dutch parliament, is announced. Mr. Nichols is the son of the Rev. Harry P. Nichols of New York, and was once half-back on the Harvard football team. He is known to Harvard men as "Don" Nichols. He was instructor in Groton school, where he prepared for Harvard, a short time, but is now in the mercantile business in New York.

DODGED THE VOTE

Senators Fled From the Senate Chamber

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 20.—During discussion of the Connecticut River Company's charter, which had just been passed in the house over the governor's veto, senators left the chamber yesterday and refused to return when sent for by the lieutenant-governor. Two senators were accused of having gifts made them ostensibly from the rest of the senators, but actually from other people.

Senator Hooker of Hartford offered a resolution to the effect that lawyers and and lobbyists in the employ of the Connecticut River company be excluded from the floor and the ante-rooms. He said: "I wish to voice my disgust at the action of lawyers and lobbyists employed by the company. They have caused senators to be absent when their case has been in doubt. They walk in and out among us and tell us what to do. Was there ever a state in such disgrace? The senator from the 25th district (Stiles Judson, Republican leader of the senate) is above corruption, but he was influenced by them. We all recall the picture a few days ago when these lawyers stood on both sides of him at his desk over there during the debate and dictated the only amendment we are allowed to pass."

The point of no quorum was raised. Senators sent out into the corridors to bring in others were unsuccessful. After a recess the chair was asked to have the doors locked. Senator Spellacy said that he would go out whether the doors were locked or not, but he was willing to stay until 7 o'clock in order to vote. A few minutes later he disappeared.

Senator Mahan of New London said that 48 hours after the passing of the franchise to the Connecticut River Company it would be sold to parties outside the state.

Senator Hooker, a member of a committee that bought loving cups for senate officers, said that at a recent dinner given by Senator Mahan substantial gifts were made to Senators Spellacy and Barnum. Afterward some other senators, he said, demanded the committee the reason for spending money for those gifts. "We explained," he continued, "that the committee did not buy those gifts with money collected of the senators. The gifts were engraved as coming from the senate. They did not come from the senators as represented by the contributors."

Adjournment then was taken.

FIRE IN BILLERICA

Caused a Loss That is Estimated at $1200

The cottage on High street, North Billerica, owned by Allan Bottomley and occupied by Henry Lutender and family, was practically destroyed by fire last night. The main part of the building was gutted but the ell was saved. The loss is estimated at about $1200, which is covered by insurance.

The fire had its origin in one of the sleeping rooms on the second floor, and is thought to have been due to a defective chimney. The blaze spread rapidly and when discovered the whole upper portion of the house was afire.

The North Billerica fire company was summoned and the apparatus responded quickly and did effective work but the flames had reached such proportions before the department arrived that it was found impossible to save the main portion of the building.

FORMER PRISONER

WOMAN SAYS HE IS NOT HER SON

NILES, Mich., Sept. 20.—Almost the entire population of Niles met at the railroad station yesterday the prisoner from Auburn, N. Y., who represents himself to be George A. Kimmel, the son of Mrs. Stella Kimmel, but who she denounces as an imposter trying to deprive her of $25,000 insurance which she held on the life of her son, who, she asserts, is dead.

Up to late last night crowds thronged the station expecting to see the prisoner who says he lived here 13 years ago. Meantime, secluded in her little home, Mrs. Kimmel, who is 70 years old, bitterly denounced the expected visitor.

"He is not my son," cried Mrs. Kimmel yesterday in unison with her daughter, Mrs. Edna Kimmel Bonslett. "My son died long ago and this is only a weird trick to rob me of the insurance."

The real Kimmel is said to have left here 13 years ago. Evidence came later suggesting that he had died, and the insurance money was asked for. The insurance company is then said to have expended thousands of dollars in running down a theory that Kimmel did not die. He was traced to Arkansas, Kan., where, so far as his family proless to know, he was last seen.

Then a man answering the description of Kimmel was found in a dazed condition in St. Louis. He recovered in a hospital and later left for New York, where, under the name of Andrew J. White, he was arrested on a larceny charge. After more wanderings he was found in an asylum in New York, and afterward traced to Auburn penitentiary. This is the man who, the insurance company says, is the real Kimmel.

PACIFIC FLEET

WILL BE HELD IN SAN FRANCISCO FOR THE FAIR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. — After having declined to postpone the cruise of the Pacific fleet to the Hawaiian Islands, on the ground that it would interfere with the efficiency of the navy, the navy department yesterday took an "about face" and ordered the vessels detained until after President Taft's visit to San Francisco, Oct. 14, to attend the groundbreaking ceremonies of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. This action, it is understood, was taken on instructions from the president.

The fleet was scheduled to sail for Honolulu Oct. 1. As the postponement of the trip for more than two weeks will bring the ships so close to the date for their fall target practice and manoeuvres, it is probable that the Hawaiian cruise will be abandoned.

Numerous petitions have reached the navy department, urging that the ships be held in California waters until after the exposition ceremonies. A week ago the department announced that this would be inadvisable as most of the vessels had been undergoing repairs for some time past and had had no opportunity for cruising, manoeuvres and target practice. As their detention, it was said, would work detriment to the efficiency of the fleet the requests were denied.

REFUSED WHISKEY

WOMEN SAID THEY WOULD NOT PAY BILL

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 20.—Because they could not have whiskey served with their lunch, two well dressed women started a small riot in the business centre Monday. After spending several hours shopping the women entered a restaurant and ordered an elaborate meal, including liquor.

"We do not serve bar orders to ladies unaccompanied by gentlemen," the waitress told them.

The women protested, but when they found the rules of the house could not be modified they left, refusing to pay the bill.

The proprietor of the restaurant followed to the street. The women ran, and the proprietor and a policeman gave chase, followed by 300 men and boys. After going three blocks the women were surrounded by the crowd. The policeman told them they must pay the bill or submit to arrest. They paid.

LOCAL POLICE BOARD

Granted a Few Minor Licenses Last Night

The board of police met in regular session last night but the meeting was a comparatively short one.

The principal business before the body was the reading of the complaint brought by Martin F. Cashman against Frank C. Surprenant, licensee of the New Merrimack hotel. In the complaint Cashman alleges that while on the premises occupied by the licensee he was assaulted by Surprenant and employes of the latter and when he threatened to use his legal rights against Surprenant that the latter caused him to be discharged from the position he then occupied.

It was the opinion of the members of the board that the complainant should have brought the matter before the court or bring civil suit, but in order to ascertain the merits of the complaint Supt. Welch was instructed to make an investigation.

William J. Griffin applied for a billiards and pool license at 48 Adams street but inasmuch as J. Joseph Hennessy, acting for a client, remonstrated, action on the matter was deferred until Friday morning.

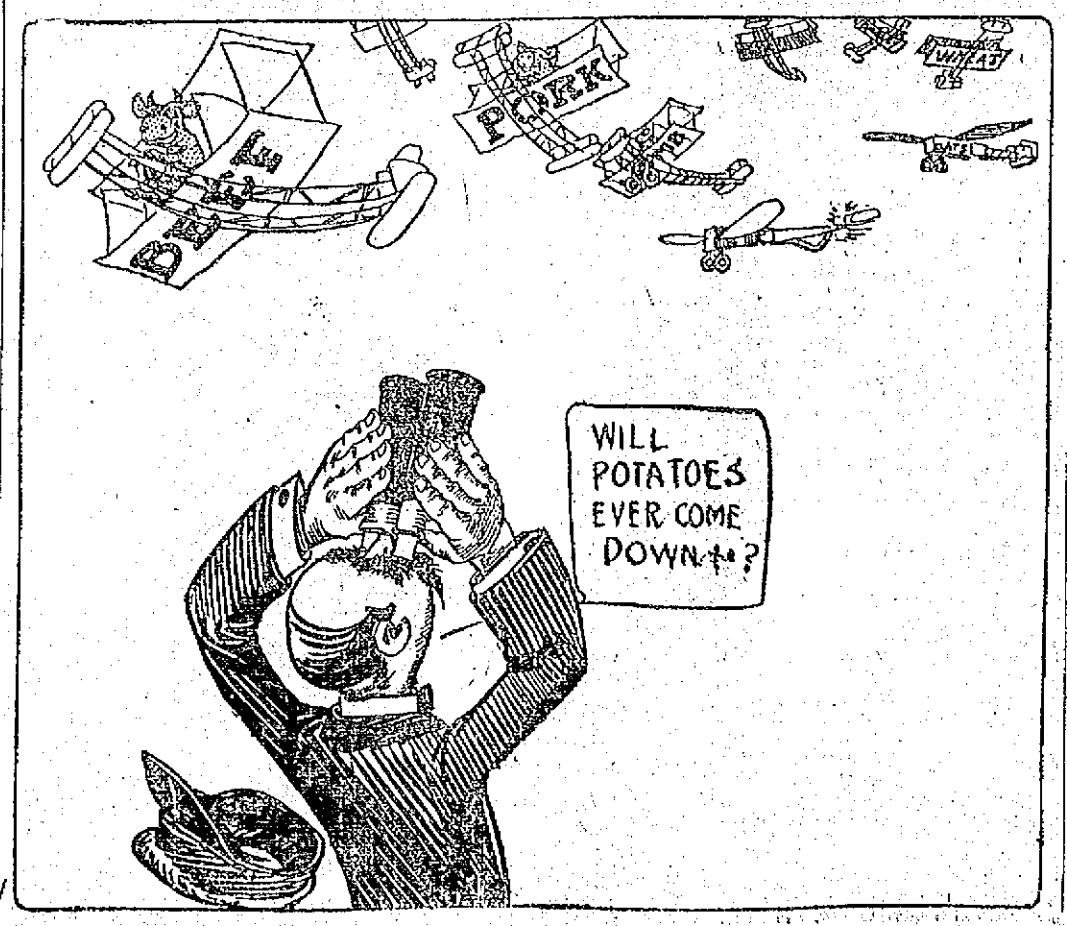

The following minor licenses were granted:

Second hand articles, Joseph Parmentier, 705 Aiken street. To sell ice cream, fruit, etc., on Sunday, Haralara, Ilox Lowres, 20 Tremont street. Hawker and peddler, Simon Blavaski, 23 Davidson street.

Surrendered and cancelled: Druggist's sixth class license to sell liquor, William A. Burton, Hall & Lyon Co.; billiard and pool, James A. Dugdale, 359 Market street; Joseph A. Dumais, 366 Moody street.

BOARD OF CHARITIES

Discussed the Necessity of an Automobile Ambulance

The board of charities met last night and discussed at great length the necessity of an auto ambulance. The matter was introduced by Commissioner Howe. Commissioner Coupe was opposed to the proposition and while the chairman, Dr. McCarty, believed that the ambulance auto was a necessity, he did not think that the board was going at it in the right way. Commissioners Burns and Ricard favored the proposition. It was finally voted to recommend to the appropriations committee a special appropriation of $5000 for an auto ambulance, Commissioners Howe, Ricard and Burns voting in favor and Commissioners McCarty and Coupe against.

The regular monthly report of Supt. Conley was submitted, showing a trifle above $4300 remaining with which to piece out expenses at the Chelmsford Street hospital for the remainder of the year. This sum will not more than carry through the month of September, and a call on the appropriations committee is scheduled for the immediate future. The figures submitted by Supt. Conley showed that the expenses of this year compared favorably with those of the year previous.

Supt. Conley reported that the meat which had been delivered at the institution of late had improved somewhat over what had been previously delivered.

On motion of Commissioner Ricard it was voted to visit the French-American orphanage in Pawtucket street, and also St. Peter's orphanage, on Thursday afternoon of this week.

When the matter of an automobile ambulance was introduced by Mr. Howe, Mr. Burns gave his hearty endorsement, and said he would vote for it. Chairman McCarthy said that he believed in an auto ambulance, but that it would prove rather indefinite to ask the city government for a sum of money to cover the proposed work without first finding out more of the detail, how the service should be conducted, where it would be placed and under what conditions it would be used. Mr. Coupe said that he knew in his own mind that such a proposition would be turned down by the city government, more especially when it is known that the department will soon be obliged to go before the appropriations committee and ask for money to pay the current expenses of the department for the last few months of the year.

Mr. Howe believed that something definite should be done at once. "I am sure we all realize," he said, "that as a board we are here to conserve and promote the interests of the people of this city in every way possible through this department. It is the duty, the responsibility and obligation of this board of charities to improve the service and increase the efficiency in the various branches of this department. One of the most important responsibilities which is ours, is the cares and supervision of the ambulance service. When we stop to consider the question of aiding the injured or saving human life through the present methods of our ambulance system, and if we become convinced that there is a way that the service can be improved upon, insuring a greater possibility in the saving of life, then it's the duty and obligation of this board of charities to put into effect, without delay, any improvement in the service that lies within its power.

There recently occurred on the Pawtucket Boulevard, a most unfortunate casualty, in which one person lost his life and several others were injured, and removed to one of our hospitals.

We have with much concern and interest read from day to day of the improved condition of one of the injured persons.

You let a man of prominence, or possibly a member of his family, meet with some fatality, and it is heralded far and wide by the public press, but let the person occupying some humble station in life meet with an accident and it's hardly mentioned.

This accident occurred three miles from the center of the city. The ambulance was called by phone and so was the Auto-fire-protective and they hastened with all possible speed to the scene.

Two men were found lying in the roadway in a pool of blood and two or three others were lying about badly injured. The men with the Auto-protective arrived on the scene first. They placed the almost lifeless bodies of two men on the Auto-protective and then seeing the lights of the horse drawn ambulance coming in the distance, they waited until the ambulance arrived.

The injured men were transferred to the ambulance, the horses were turned about and started on a mad pace, and after another two miles hard drive, they pulled up to the hospital entrance.

I want to say right here, that I am a lover of horses and realize that even a horse has its limitations, and if it were an individual instead of a municipal body, that was forcing a horse on a dead run for several miles with a heavy wagon attached, that person would be brought before the court, charged with cruelty to animals.

We pride ourselves on being a humane board, but let us be consistent. Let us be humanely concerned in the horse as well as in the human being.

Nearly forty minutes were consumed from the time the accident occurred until the injured were placed upon the cots in the hospital where proper attention could be given them.

One man died in the ambulance a half hour after the accident.

Now no matter how splendid may be our present horse-drawn ambulance service, there is one thing certain: that when an accident occurs in the suburbs or outskirts of our city, every sensible, logical, reasonable person knows that an auto ambulance can reach the place of accident in one-half the time that a horse-drawn ambulance will require. If an auto can reach the scene of accident a long distance away in one-half the time as can the horse-drawn wagon, then when a person who is injured, lies bleeding and dying, it's the duty of this board, with the responsibility of the ambulance service in our care, to put into commission any improvement in the service which may aid in the saving of human life. A human life is a "human life" and we should have an ambulance service that would reach the place of accident in the quickest possible time to aid the person injured, whether he be the most prominent and influential citizen in our community, or the very most humble.

I have been opposed to installing the auto ambulance in this department unless it was proposed to do it right, and have an all-round up-to-date, efficient service, and being on the scene of that accident on the Pawtucket boulevard a few minutes after it happened that night. I made up my mind then and there that if there was anything that I could do to secure the quick service of an auto ambulance for the people of Lowell, it was my duty to do so. I am not going to propose a radical change in the system of the ambulance service at present. The auto ambulance must come in the near future, and the horse-drawn ambulance for emergency calls will be as much out of place as would the old horse cars if drawn through our city streets today.

I have always believed that the ambulance service for emergency calls should be under the police department control, but I am frank enough to admit that I am not in favor of this being done under our present political system.

This department is free from politics at present, and I am not in favor of having this important department of the board of charities, thrown upon the present political checker board to be tossed and pushed and pulled, and dickered and traded with, as is in nearly every instance where anything of importance is considered under our present political system.

If I had my way gentlemen, I would instruct our superintendent to cast aside all red-tape, and tomorrow morning put in a requisition for a first class auto ambulance for immediate delivery.

I would retain our present system for the time being. I would have that auto-ambulance placed in one of our garages, centrally located under the control of Dr. Sparks, and I would direct him that it should be used in long distance emergency calls, or whenever in his judgment it should be used.

Then to have the service what it ought to be, I would put on another ambulance doctor, pay him at least five hundred dollars a year and have the doctor on call for eight hours continuous service. The ambulance, in my opinion should never be sent out on an accident call without a doctor, and the doctor should be in that immediate vicinity to accompany the ambulance at all times.

Mr. Howe then made a motion to purchase an ambulance auto. The motion was seconded by Commissioner Burns and after some discussion it became a vote.

THE NEW PRIMARY LAW

Will be Given Its First Test Next Tuesday

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The first trial of the new primary method of selecting candidates for the state election will take place in Massachusetts on Tuesday. In addition to a dozen aspirants for places on the state tickets of the different parties there are more than 7000 names for minor offices throughout the state, ranging from members of the governor's council and the legislature to town and ward committees.

General interest, however, centered in a three-cornered struggle for the republican nomination for governor by Louis Frothingham, Speaker Walker and Rep. Norman White. The renomination of Gov. Foss by the democrats is contested by Thomas Hisgen of Springfield, the presidential candidate of the Independence league three years ago.

Neither Gov. Foss nor Mr. Hisgen has done any campaigning, although the latter has spoken at a few autumn fairs. Mr. Frothingham, Mr. Walker and Mr. White have been actively at work for more than six months and during the past four weeks have visited nearly every city and town in the state seeking support.

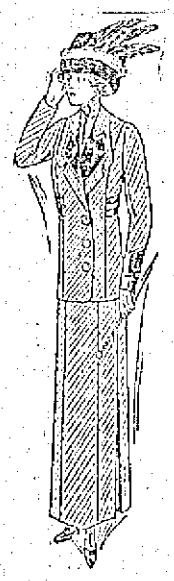

While the primaries will be held in all the cities and towns on Tuesday in many of the little communities the polling of the vote will occupy but a few hours and will be carried on during the early evening. It is anticipated that about half the republican vote cast at last year's election will come out and about one-third of the democratic vote, and that owing to the evening voting the results will not be known until very late Tuesday night.

LEAVES HOSPITAL

Fred H. Rourke Able to Return Home

Fred H. Rourke, the well known coal dealer, returned home yesterday afternoon from the Charles Choate Memorial hospital at Woburn, where he has been confined since a week ago today when he met with a very serious automobile accident. Mr. Rourke sustained very painful injuries, including fractured ribs, crushed shoulder and severe bruises about the arms and body.

A reporter for The Sun called on Mr. Rourke at the latter's home in Central street last evening. Mr. Rourke had made the trip from the hospital in Woburn to his home in an automobile. He was tired and suffering considerable pain when the reporter saw him, but he has good courage and tries hard to keep the bright side out. The doctors did not want him to leave the hospital, but he was anxious to get home and decided to take a chance. This is his busy season of the year in the coal business and he wanted to be in a position to keep in touch with the business. "I admire your courage," said the hospital physician to Mr. Rourke as the automobile left the hospital.

It will be some time before he will be able to be about again. While his condition is much better than might be expected under the circumstances, he suffers a great deal of pain and cannot move without assistance. He has some difficulty in breathing and to take a long breath is out of the question.

Despite all this, however, he is as optimistic as ever and says he's glad to be living. "I pulled out of a tight hole," he said, "and I'm thankful that I'm alive. I'm sorry it happened, but it was an accident, pure and simple. I presume I should have remained at the hospital a little longer, but I knew that I could get good care at home and you know this is a very busy season of the year. At a long distance I would do more or less worrying but at home and knowing that everything is going along all right the worry is eliminated. My customers will not suffer at all on account of my mishap. They will receive the same treatment as though I were up and about and the business will go along just the same. Every order will be filled as promptly and cheerfully as though nothing had happened, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank my friends for their many kind inquiries during my stay at the hospital."

The men who were in the automobile with Mr. Rourke at the time of the accident, Messrs. Michael Lynch, George B. McKenna and Andrew J. Donohoe, and who were all more or less injured, are getting along all right. Mr. Rourke said to the reporter that it was a great comfort to know that his comrades had escaped without serious injury. "It was a narrow escape for us all," he said, "and I thank God that we were not killed."

BOY WAS KILLED

HE WAS RUN OVER BY AN AUTOMOBILE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—"Hitching" on a wagon cost the life of Frank McQuillan, thirteen years old, of New Rochelle, last night. He was struck and instantly killed by the automobile of Stanley L. Silver, a wealthy cloak manufacturer, of No. 10 East Thirty-sixth street, Manhattan, who was hurrying to his residence on Beechmont Drive, Beechmont.

The victim was the son of Daniel McQuillan, a member of the executive committee of the democratic city committee of New Rochelle. The McQuillans live on Summit avenue, New Rochelle. The boy was a favorite in his class in High school and was a promising athlete.

Silver, when he heard the boy was dead, ordered his chauffeur, Fred Wrieth, to drive to police headquarters, where he asked Police Captain Edward J. Timmons to hold him. The chauffeur later was paroled by Coroner Brennan in Silver's custody.

When the game began I began to find things to holler about, but she sat there without the slightest enthusiasm. Once she remarked that she wished she had gone to a moving picture show instead, but I didn't say anything until Wiggs made his home run. Then I hollered to beat the band and begged my wife to holler with me."

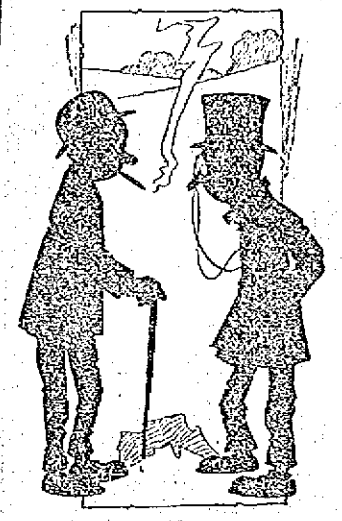

"'What for?'" she asked.

"'Why, for that home run.'" I replied.

"'Did he run home?'"

The Girls of Yore

In the good old days of yore,
To Polly, and Molly, and Dolly, and Sue,
In the good old days of yore.

BUT I'm still heart-free, and it's simply due
To the fact that I can't wed four!
In the good old days of yore.

He Never Dies.

THE open car will vanish soon,
Like landscape in a fog;
And then, oh, friends, what will become
Of that 'ere street car hog?

For five long months and twice a day
In weather foul or fine;
You've seen him seated at the end,
A playing up the swine.

His weight has been two hundred pounds—
We've had to crowd and jam!
We've had to clamber o'er his legs,
And give his knees a slam.

But will it better us?
Will we no longer glare and glint,
And in good English cuss?

Don't bet we won't, ye weary souls,—
There'll be no brighter skies;
The street car hog is sometimes ill,
But never, never dies.

The first closed car will see him there,
With that same porky smile;
Two hundred pounds—he fills two seats,
And feet across the aisle!

Fair Warning.

"DO you think the President has injured his prospects by vetoing the free wool bill?" I asked of a farmer whom I found at the village postoffice.

"I dunno," was his reply.

"Perhaps you are not a wool-grower?"

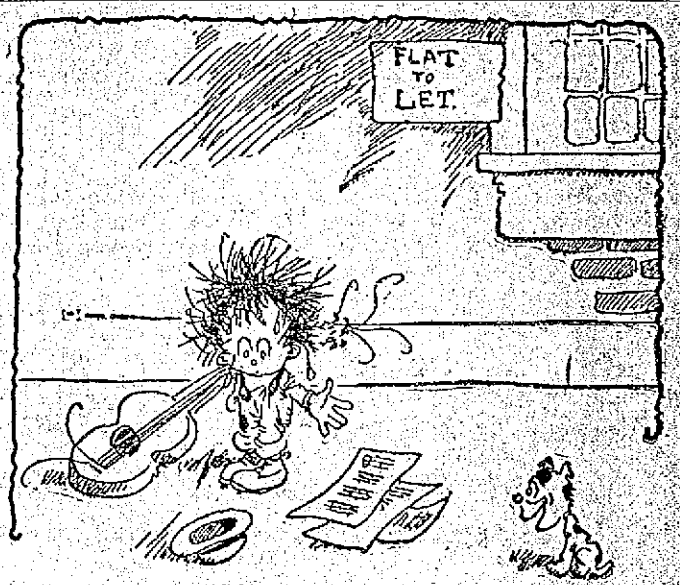

"No, hain't got no sheep."

"Then you can't be greatly interested."

"Noap, but I'm thinkin' of something else."

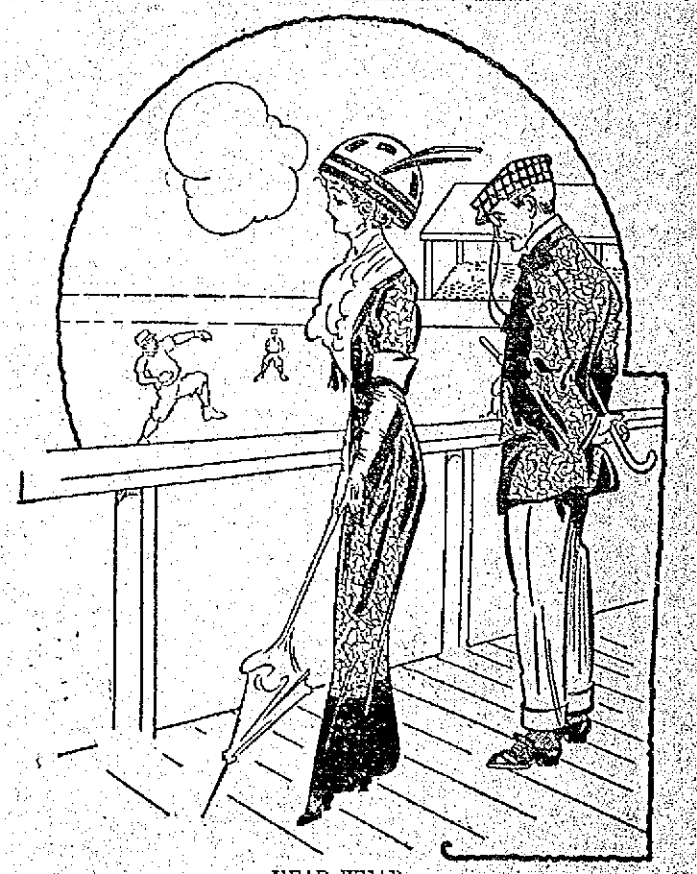

"Indeed."

"I hain't carin' a durn what Mr. Taft does with wool, but I want him to distinctly understand that the minit he lays his paw on coonskins the farming community in this county will rise up and frizzle him to a frazzle!"

LOVE'S LABOR LOST.

The Musician: Well! If I ain't de prize goat! Here I been serenadin' me goil 'till I'm blue in de face, an' do family's done moved away!

HEAD WEAR.

"Every now and then you see a woman take her hat off at a baseball game."

"Yes, but it is usually to give her hair a chance to expand and take up more room than the hat did."

PERHAPS.

Men are nothing; principles everything.

But wouldn't men be something if they had more principle?

He and Jones.

"I HEARD this morning that Jones was dead," said Smith as he overtook Brown on the street.

"Yes, poor fellow."

"You knew him well, didn't you?"

"Over forty years."

"And he was a good man?"

"I never expect to find his equal. He was honest, just and truthful, and he has surely gone to his reward."

"Forty years, eh? And you never had a hard word between you?"

"Never. We were like brothers."

"Can you recall what first attracted you to him?"

"As if it were but yesterday. I had been up to Big Lake on a fishing trip, and had caught over 200 pickerel. When I got home and told of my luck—"

"No one believed you, of course."

"No one but Jones. He believed and embraced and we became friends, and—and—excuse this emotion, sir, but I must hurry along and make arrangements for the funeral."

ALL IN THE BUSINESS.

"I HAVE been in the retail grocery trade for the last ten years," said the man with the bad cigar, "and up to three months ago I had given all my orders to a certain drummer. I liked him and liked his house, and although other drummers came along and sought my trade I held steadfast. About a year ago, however, I did yield enough to promise a certain man that if anything happened to my favorite he should come next. He came into the store occasionally, but did no more soliciting. He said he was willing to wait, and felt that Providence would befriend him."

"And did it?" was asked.

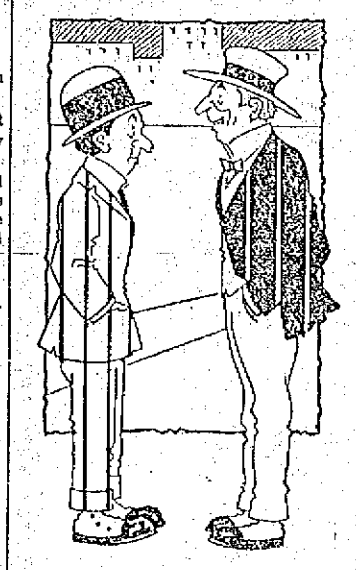

"You shall hear. About four weeks ago he and my favorite came to town on the same train. When they arrived at the depot a thunderstorm was raging and they were detained there. They were not ten feet apart when a thunderbolt struck the building, and queerly enough my favorite drummer was the only one killed. In the pouring rain, and with the lightning playing around his hat, the other man received my store. Gave himself a shake, and then pulled out his order book and said:

"'What shall it be today, Mr. Williams?'"

"'But I order from Pete, as you know.'"

"'I know you did, but you won't again. Pete has just been struck by lightning at the depot.'"

"It may seem heartless," continued the grocer, "but business is business and can't be delayed, and I gave the enterprising man a $600 order and sent him on his way rejoicing."

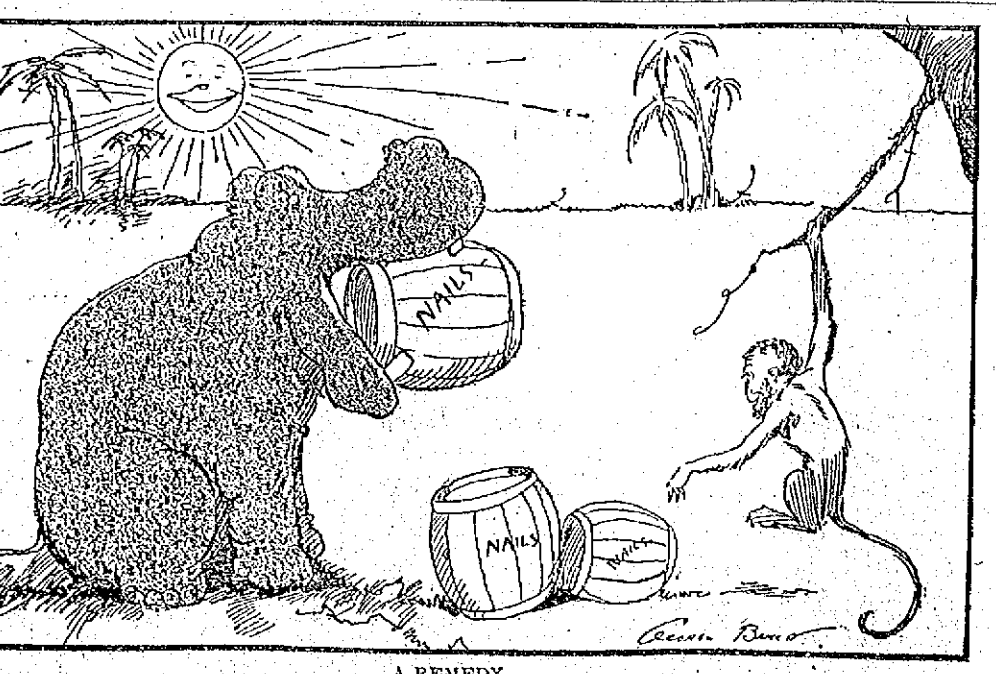

HIS FORTE.

What are you doing, old man?

Looking for a place as night watchman.

How's that?

Well, I was making love to a girl at Narragansett Pier all summer and I don't sleep nights any more.

A REMEDY.

Monk—What are you doing with that keg of nails?

Hippo—Why, they told me my system needed a little iron.

THIS AGE OF PROGRESS.

But you must remember I've had it for some time. It's a 1912 model.

A GOOD START.

The paper tells about a wedding where rice was thrown at the bride and bridegroom and some of it lodged in the ear of the bridegroom and made him deaf.

I don't see what more a married man could ask.

STUNG.

Virginia—Did you hear about the awful way in which Mrs. De Swell was stung by that wealthy contractor?

Gweldolyn—Mercy, no. How?

Virginia—Why, she was foolish enough to marry him without making any investigation of his finances and didn't find out he was hopelessly involved until she asked for alimony.

Gwendolyn—Goodness! How careless of her.

RECIPROCITY FIGHT

The Final Rallies Were Held in Montreal Last Night

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—The reciprocity campaign, which has been the most bitterly contested in the history of the Canadian regions and has made Dominion politics as never before a matter of world knowledge and interest was brought practically to a close last night, when enormous outdoor meetings in French districts of this city were addressed by two leading and strikingly contrasting figures in the contest, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Henri Bourassa.

Both the premier, who has been reciprocity's most prominent exponent, and the national leader, whose unique opposition and propaganda probably have done more than anything else to increase the number of question marks set against names of constituencies by political forecasters, were greeted with enthusiasm.

Sir Wilfrid's first speech was delivered from a stand on Atwater avenue, the dividing line between two important west end constituencies. Thousands of persons solidly packed the converging thoroughfares. From this meeting he was escorted by a torchlight procession through streets in gala decoration and illumination to St. James Market at the East end. Hundreds joined the procession which was loudly greeted by the thousands assembled in the market area. The premier addressed this meeting in French. Mr. Bourassa's followers were recruited at a skating rink a few blocks from the Laurier meeting in the East end.

The Monument National, a large auditorium, was filled with those anxious to hear Sir William Van Horne, former president of the Canadian Pacific railway, express his views in opposition to reciprocity.

Although obviously worn by his five weeks of travel and speechmaking, the premier made his appeal for ratification of reciprocity with notable vigor and was alternately severe and facetious in assailing those who, he said, had sought to insult the intelligence of the Canadian voter by persisting in the attempt to substitute the dead bogey of annexation for the live issue of reciprocity.

"I admire the great American republic," said the premier. "I was born in Canada. It is my land, and I do not want it merged into the American republic. Under reciprocity we shall be even better friends and furnish in the American continent an example of great peoples living on either side of an invisible line in peace and amity. This is the goal desired by my friends and party, and if there be ulterior motives, it is not with us, and I believe it is not to be found the other side of that line."

The government, he declared, would not remove the protective tariffs, which had nursed and were still to nurse the manufacturing industries of the Dominion.

"It indeed would be suicidal to throw Canadian manufacturers into open competition with American manufacturers," he said.

Sir Wilfrid declared that if the manufacturer persisted in refusing to accede to the request of the farmers for the American market and should make their refusal effective, it would not be surprising if the farmers would refuse to bear the burden of the protective tariff which was fostering Canadian industries. The farmers might go even a step further and ask for more drastic tariff changes, said the premier. However, he did not intend to make any threats.

FOR LAURIER

ALBERTA AND SASKATCHEWAN HOPE FOR RECIPROCITY

CALGARY, Alberta, Sept. 20.—One does not need to spend much time in what is still spoken of as the ranch country to form a definite idea as to the trend of sentiment in the present campaign. It is distinctly pro-reciprocity, and if all the settlers who have come in within the last 10 years could exercise the franchise to which they are morally entitled, there would be no doubt about the result on Thursday next. As it is, the Liberals are confident of sweeping Alberta and Saskatchewan. In the late parliament they had four members to their opponents' three in the former, and nine to one in the latter, or 13 to four for the two new provinces. This time they expect to make gains in Alberta—the more sanguine talk of a clean sweep—and they have no doubt of holding their own in Saskatchewan.

There were some divisions in the Liberal camp at the outset of the campaign. Frank Oliver, minister of the interior, and member for Edmonton, had been accused during the last parliament of what amounted to malfeasance in office. The charges had been referred to a parliamentary committee, but parliament had dissolved before the inquiry had gone far. Thus Mr. Oliver came back to his constituents under a cloud. The conservatives naturally made the most of it, going as far as to say that the government had dissolved parliament in a hurry to choke off the revelations which the inquiry would lead to. In his own party Mr. Oliver found himself opposed by a faction headed by F. W. Rutherford, former premier of Alberta. However, he faced the situation manfully, and pleaded for fair play. He denied categorically the wrongdoing imputed to him as head of his department, and demanded at least suspension of judgment until the case had been fully investigated. The reasonableness of this was felt by his party, and Mr. Rutherford withdrew his candidate, leaving the field to Mr. Oliver and his conservative opponent, W. A. Griesbach. From all appearances Mr. Oliver is sure of a large majority.

Changes of a Decade

They still raise cattle in Alberta, and connoisseurs praise the flavor of the range-fed beef. In this favored region the Canadian climate is tempered by physical conditions. The great plains in the shelter of the Rockies owe much to that great natural barrier, and the best known breeze is the zephyr-like Chinook which early banishes the winter's snow that lies like a pall over the East. Cattle feed out of doors all the year, and the virgin pastures give all that is needed for the raising of the choicest stock.

Still, the character of the country is changing. Dollar wheat is doing it. There is still much unsettled land, but vast tracts have been cut up into quarter sections, and one can travel for miles through fields of waving grain. Once land was going a-begging on these prairies; today you must travel 75 to 100 miles from the railway if you want free government land worth taking.

Dollar wheat is doing it. We Canadians of earlier migrations take a lot of the credit of Canada's progress to ourselves. We are an enterprising, intelligent, energetic, thrifty and industrious people. We have been told it hundreds of times. We are being told it every day now, and we believe it. Still, it cannot be denied that the demand for fresh sources of food supply which has been so persistent for 15 years, has had much to do with present flourishing conditions. But for that demand we should still be raising stock, an excellent business; but calling for more capital, not so profitable as wheat-raising, and not employing so many persons.

As the cattlemen of 20 years ago were fascinated by Sir Charles Tupper's scheme of imperial preference, by which Canadian beeves were to be admitted free into Britain, while Texas steers, alive or dead, were to be subject to tariff duties, so today the agricultural population of Alberta and Saskatchewan takes kindly to the idea of reciprocity with the United States. Imperial preference by all means; but why not both? In fact, the farmers of the west have formally demanded both. They want the imperial preference rate raised to 50 per cent., besides supporting the reciprocity agreement. But reciprocity is the present question, and reciprocity they mean to have. They pay no heed to the loyalty cry. The men who have come over the border to settle are thoroughly well affected to the British connection. They came here to build up homes for themselves and not to tear down institutions. It suits certain tory organs to represent them as plotting the destruction of the British empire; but no one takes that seriously.

FINAL ORDERS

WERE SENT TO THE POLITICAL WORKERS TODAY

HALIFA, N. S., Sept. 20.—Politicians were everywhere today closing the seven week's campaign which has stirred Vancouver to Halifax as never before. Final instructions were sent to the political workers today and complete arrangements for getting out a tremendous vote tomorrow were made by both parties. The liberals are making a determined attempt to defeat Robert L. Borden, the conservative leader in one of the Halifax divisions which he represented in parliament at the time of the dissolution of the house of commons, and that General Leman has been devoting much time to the situation in Halifax city and county. Mr. Borden expects to receive a large personal, complimentary vote, which he believes will offset any strength which pro-reciprocity conservatives may throw his opponent.

Another prominent man, Hon. W. S. Fielding, finance minister of Canada and Premier Laurier's lieutenant, who was largely instrumental in perfecting the reciprocity agreement, is having a stiff fight in the Queens Shelbourne district at the southern extremity of the province. The finance minister is opposed by G. B. McCurdy, a leading citizen of Halifax. It has been reported that several hundred employes of American fishing firms, which are opposed to reciprocity, will vote the conservative ticket in Nova Scotia tomorrow. Many of these Canadian fishermen are residents of Mr. Fielding's district. The liberal leaders, however, say that they will not be injured by this vote, as many of the fishermen are in favor of the party.

The Anglican archbishop of Rupertsland, Most Rev. Matheson, primate of Canada, and Most Rev. Dr. Hamilton, archbishop of Ottawa, acting for all the bishops of the church in Canada, have issued the following appeal to the voters:

"In view of the near approach of election day the bishops of the church of England in Canada hereby appeal to the Christian public throughout the dominion to promote at this time by every means at its command a high standard of political morality and a greater sensitiveness of conscience respecting the exercise of a voter's responsibility.

"If this dominion is to attain thorough and lasting greatness and to accomplish the position of influence which would appear to be offered it by Divine Providence, it must set its face against all practices that threaten the foundations of truth and righteousness amongst us.

"The bishops, therefore, desire at this time to remind men of all political views and parties that political purity is one of the essential foundation stones upon which national greatness and prosperity must rest, and in particular that to buy or sell a vote is to act the part of a traitor to our country and to invite the just contempt and condemnation of all good men.

"S. P., Rupertsland, Primate.
"Charles, Ottawa, Metropolitan."

"About two months ago my hands started to crack open and bleed, the skin would scale off, and the good flesh would burn and itch dreadfully. When my hands first started to get sore, there were small blisters like water blisters which formed. They itched dreadfully, it just seemed as though I could tear the skin all off. I would scratch them and the skin would peel off, and the flesh would be all red and crack open and bleed. It worried me very much, as I had never had anything the matter with my skin. I was so afraid I would have to give up my employment.

"I consulted my doctor, and he said he didn't think it would amount to anything. But it kept getting worse. One day I saw a piece in one of the papers about a lady who had the same trouble with her hands. She had used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was cured. I decided to try them, and my hands were all healed before I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment. I am truly thankful for the good results from the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, for thanks to them I was cured, and did not have to lose a day from work. I have had no return of the skin trouble." (Signed) Mrs. Mary E. Breig, 2822 Brown Street, Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 12, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are for sale everywhere, but those who wish to try them without charge may do so by sending to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 6A, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, together with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp.

tition of the New England Telegraph & Telephone company for pole locations in Third street. W. D. Brown appeared as a remonstrant. He said he had recently purchased some land with about 225 feet of frontage in Third street and that he intended to build houses there. He didn't relish the idea of unsightly poles directly in front of his buildings and he thought the company ought to be made to put its wires under ground. Mr. Brown was informed by the company's representative at the meeting that the poles were needed to hold the wires for the fire alarm box at the corner of Burnham and Third streets. The matter was referred to the committee on wires.

The names of eight men to serve as traverse jurors of the superior court for the October term, to be holden in Lowell, were drawn by Ald. Barrett, as follows: Charles E. Thurston, 24 Lane street, teamster; Greenleaf C. Brock, 118 First street, druggist; John J. Cassidy, 263 Thorndike street, machinist; Donat Rousseau, 185 Salem street, clerk; Frank L. Weaver, 479 Westford street, gravel roofer; Frederick L. Welch, 466 Fletcher street, furniture repairer; Fred C. Amadon, 760 Stevens street, clerk, and Arthur W. Saunders, 18 Georgia avenue, shuttle manufacturer.

Ald. Flanagan drew the names of eight men to serve as traverse jurors in Cambridge the first Monday of October, as follows: Chester S. Goodwin, 880 Gorham street, shipper; Edwin

ALDERMAN CONNORS.

Cole, 342 Pawtucket street, retired; Leon Mullin, 232 Moore street, coal dealer; James Gilligan, 392 Concord street, currier; Charles H. Hobson, 164 Holyrood avenue, president and treasurer; Edward F. Gormley, 31 Washington street, foreman; George H. Dozois, 171 School street, machinist, and Arthur J. French, 35 Victoria street, paper cutter.

The mayor's appointments of Thos. McDowell, Walter S. Kelman and E. C. Walker to be weighers of hay and other articles were confirmed.

Various street petitions were read and referred to the committee on streets.

A petition asking compensation for injuries received by James L. Crann and a petition from Walter L. Booth, asking damages for injuries to his horse were referred to the committee on claims in concurrence.

Sidewalk assessments for residents on the north and south sides of Corbett street, as recommended by the city auditor, were read. Mr. Barrett wanted to know the authority of the city to assess sidewalks to the abuttors. Statute law says not more than one-half the assessment shall be levied on the abuttor, he said. There is no law which allows the city to assess for the total amount. The assessments were referred to the city solicitor for an opinion.

A resolution to accept a sidewalk on the westerly side of Puffer stret in front of No. 35 was adopted in concurrence.

A resolution to lay out and accept Aberdeen stret, from Methuen street to Tenth street, was adopted.

A joint order for $200 for the additional care of trees was taken from the table on motion of Alderman Rountree. Alderman Connors said that the order had been laid on the table at the last meeting, pending the taking down of some trees in Lakeview avenue by persons in that vicinity who would do it for the wood that they could get out of them. Wires run through the trees and when it was made known that danger lurked in the branches the proposition was all off with those who had intended to take them down for the wood that was in them.

Alderman Barrett said he understood that the park department had about $100 that it was holding in reserve in case of a wind storm and he said the department ought to use that money to cut down the trees in question. Alderman Rountree said people of the section had been told of the danger attached to the work of removing the trees and the reports so scared them that they would not attempt it. Alderman Flanagan said the trees were delaying and obstructing building progress there. The question came on the adoption of the order for $200 additional for the removal of the trees and it was adopted. Alderman Barrett voted against.

A joint communication from the committee on accounts protesting against the bill of $106.47 of Olmstead Brothers, for planting trees and shrubs about city hall was read.

Supt. Whittet of the park department was asked to explain. He said it had been the policy of the park department to secure good landscape architects and plan for the future. He said that Olmstead Brothers were employed by order of the park commission and that they were employed to prepare plans for the city hall and memorial building grounds, not to plant flowers and shrubs as seemed to be the opinion of the critics.

Alderman Barrett said that Mr. Green, a member of the park commission, told him he would not have voted for the work if he had known.

"I can't help what Mr. Greene told you," said Mr. Whittet.

Mr. Barrett asked Mr. Whittet about the money expended by the park department. "The report will tell you that. I don't carry those things in my head," said Mr. Whittet.

Mr. Barrett then said something about Shedd park, and Mr. Whittet said that Shedd park had nothing to do with the bill under discussion.

"I see by the report," said Alderman Barrett, "that the park department has spent $45,000, and that money of course was spent under your direction. I should think that a man capable of looking after the proper expenditure of that amount should be able to take care of the grounds about city hall without the assistance of a landscape architect."

"I followed the instructions of my superiors, and will continue to follow them," said Mr. Whittet. Then the communication was referred back to the committee on accounts with the recommendation that the bill be paid.

A communication from the park board, recommending the purchase of land in Livingston street for playground purposes for the Butler school, was laid over to the next meeting.

Alderman Barrett's ordinance to repeal the ordinance creating the office of clerk of committees was read. Mr. Barrett said that this reason for bringing in the ordinance was because he thought the office of clerk of committees was an absolutely unnecessary part of the city government. He said that the work done by the clerk of committees could be taken care of by other employes. He said that the work connected with the committee on appropriations should be done by the city auditor and that the city should be saved $1600 a year by abolishing the office of clerk of committees. He further stated that the work of the two biggest committees, streets and sewers, was taken care of by the city engineer. "The job of clerk of committees is nothing but a soft snap, and the people who know about it refer to it as a joke," said the alderman.

"From my experience," said Alderman Connors, "I believe the present incumbent of the office in question to be a very competent servant." He said he had never heard his sincerity, honesty or integrity questioned. He said it was not a matter of friendship or protection and if there were any personal feeling between the author of the ordinance and the present incumbent of the office of clerk of committees the matter should not be considered by the board. He didn't know, he said, that there was any personal feeling. He moved that the ordinance be rejected. Alderman Jodoin seconded the motion.

Alderman Barrett asked a ruling from the chair as to whether Alderman Connors' motion was out of order. Alderman Barrett wanted to know if it were not an order rather than an ordinance and the chair ruled the point well taken on the technicality of designation. The question would be, he said, on referring the matter to the committee on ordinances and legislation.

Alderman Barrett referred to the absence from Lowell last spring of the clerk of committees, Frank M. Dowling, and said that Mr. Dowling was paid $141.66 for the time he was absent and that he sent in a bill of $25 to pay a man for doing his work while he was gone. He said that he protested against it at a meeting of the committee on accounts, but that nothing was said about it in the public press. He said that the clerk of committees should be removed from office. The question came on referring the ordinance and it was not referred. Aldermen Barrett and Daly voted to refer, and Messrs. Burns and Gallagher didn't vote. Alderman Barrett gave notice of reconsideration to be acted upon at the next meeting.

A joint order to borrow $2700 for paving East Merrimack street between Howe street and Fayette street was read. The order was introduced by Ald. Flanagan and he explained it. He said it meant a short continuation of smooth paving and that it was badly needed could not be questioned.

Ald. Barrett believed that the portion of the street mentioned in the order should be paved but he did not believe there was any necessity to borrow money for that purpose. He said that the superintendent of streets has money enough to do the job. Ald. Flanagan hoped the order would pass and it did pass, unanimously.

A resolution to lay a sidewalk, to be laid on the easterly side of Tremont street, was ordered to remain several days in the city clerk's office. Adjourned.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

BATTLE OF SEBASTOPOL

SEPT. 20.—The Russians had been looking with wolfish eyes to the dismemberment of Turkey, and had asked England to join in the spoils. The latter refused, and instead effected an alliance with France and both in turn cast their lot with the Turk to repel the invaders. The Russians were encamped at Sebastopol where they had stored great munitions of war and had a great army in addition to the fleet lying sheltered in the Black Sea. The allies under Lord Raglan and Marshal St. Arnaud started after the Russians and on September 20, 1854, the clash occurred. It wasn't exactly a clash but rather a push. The allies never stopped running in one direction and the Russians never stopped running in another. Prince Mentschikoff who should have known better than to go into any kind of a fight with such a name tried to hold his forces but they had important business up the road, and they kept running for three days, while the allies sat around counting the spoils of war.

Prof. Norton will join the other American archaeologists in London this week, having sailed for that city from New York a few days ago.

MATRIMONIAL

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Joseph's rectory when Mr. Olivier Desaulniers, a popular member of the C. M. A. C., and Miss Severine Leclair, the well known milliner, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock in the private chapel of the rectory, Rev. Fr. Baron, O. M. I. officiating.

The happy couple were attended by Messrs. Zoel Leclair and Clovis Desaulniers, the former father of the bride and the latter brother of the bridegroom. After the ceremony the party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zoel Leclair, 14 West Bowers street, where a dainty wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives of the contracting couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Desaulniers who received many costly gifts left on the 12 o'clock train for a brief honeymoon trip in the White mountains. They will return Monday and make their home at 14 West Bowers street.

Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Leclair, the former a brother of the bride, of Lawrence.

FAY—SHEEHAN

Thomas J. Fay, the popular president of the Gotham club, and member of several other fraternal organizations, and Miss Margaret Sheehan, a well known resident of St. Peter's parish, were united in matrimony at St. Peter's rectory this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John T. O'Brien. The bridemaid was Miss Catherine Sheehan, sister of the bride, and Mr. Andrew Fay, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

The bride was becomingly attired in a cream colored silk dress. She wore a large picture hat and carried a beautiful bouquet. The bridemaid's gown was of white silk. She wore a picture hat and carried roses.

After the ceremony the couple repaired to the home of the bride, where supper was served. They will leave Lowell tonight on an extended wedding tour and will be home to their friends after Oct. 1.

Last evening at the home of the bride in Mead street a reception was tendered the happy couple. A large number of guests were present including many from out of town. An excellent musical program was given. Selections were rendered by the Manhattan orchestra. Songs were sung by Miss Katherine Fay and selections by the Bleachery quartet, Philip Baxter director. The orchestra selections were well received and greatly enjoyed. At 10 o'clock there was a lull in the festivities, during which time a sumptuous supper was served. After supper, the merriment was resumed and continued till midnight.

The couple had on exhibition in two large rooms the gifts received from their friends. That they are popular was attested by the preponderance of articles received.

At the close of the affair all departed wishing the young couple success and prosperity.

TRAINS WERE IN COLLISION AT SOMERSWORTH

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., Sept. 20.—An excursion train on the Boston & Maine railroad bound from Boston to lake Winnipesaukee, was run into by a switching engine here today. One or two passengers were slightly cut and both engines were badly wrecked. The cars were subsequently sent north on a regular train with most of the excursionists.

THE OPERA HOUSE

"The Climax," one of the most interesting of plays, was presented at the Opera House last night. Strange as it may seem, the company includes only four people and they are decidedly clever and it would be difficult to select any one individual as the star. The cast is as follows:

Luigi Golganti, the teacher,
Theodore Kerwald
Pietro Golfati, his son.... Walter Dale
John Raymond, the doctor,
Arthur Linden
Adelina Von Hagen, the pupil,
Gretchen Wicke

Mr. Kerwald as the old Italian teacher is an artist. He is an accomplished actor and his delightful work was most pleasing. Miss Wicke was most pleasing and carried out the difficult work that came to her as a pupil in a most satisfactory manner. Mr. Dale as the son of the Italian teacher, and Mr. Linden as the doctor were excellent and carried out their parts in such a manner as to win the plaudits of the audience.

The story of the play is most interesting. The girl whose mother has been a public singer is being trained in New York by her Italian uncle for the operatic stage. She is loved by his son—a young teacher and prospective composer—and by a physician who does not approve of her contemplated stage career. While treating her for a throat trouble, he gives her the mental suggestion that she can never sing again, and her voice apparently fails. At the end of six months they are about to be married, when she makes the discovery that she can sing, and he confesses his unprofessional conduct. She denounces him: the old teacher, whose fortunes are bound up in her own, advises her to abandon even a career for love: and the play ends with her singing the song that the young music teacher has composed, and the audience remains in some doubt as to which course she finally elects to follow.

"HIS HONOR, THE MAYOR"

Mr. Harry Kelly, who is appearing in a revival of his greatest success, "His Honor the Mayor" will be the attraction at the Opera House tomorrow night.

Mr. Kelly needs no introduction to the public of Lowell as he has played here many times before and is an old favorite of this city. The cast includes Miss Nellie Daly, Geo. T. Reed, John H. Pratt and others, all of whom were with the original Wallack's theatre production.

"THE NEST EGG"

Annie Caldwell's latest comedy of American type, "The Nest Egg" with Zelda Sears in the stellar role, will be the attraction at the Opera House for the day beginning Monday, Sept. 25.

This comedy of semi-rural life tells the story of a middle-aged spinster, who by taking in sewing by the day and raising chickens succeeds in keeping the wolf from the door. The one sole object of her life is to get a husband, and as a last resort she writes a message on one of her eggs, which she sends to the market. The egg instead of being sold is placed in cold storage where it remains for three years, and she has almost forgotten about it, when she gets a telegram stating that the sender has received her message, and will arrive on the noon train the following day. Of course the message is taken for a proposal of marriage, but instead it develops that a spinster is wanted as principal witness in a Pure Food Trial, which is at that time being held in Albany.

The complications arising afford more than plenty of possibilities for the unique work that Miss Sears has been identified with. The cast and production are the same that played for for five months at the Bijou theatre, New York and the Chicago Opera House, Chicago and came here direct from the Park theatre, Boston.—Adv.

"THE GIRL IN THE TAXI"

The story of "The Girl in the Taxi" concerns the escapades of pretty Mignon, wife of a perfume manufacturer, and the efforts of Bertie Stewart to keep an appointment with her for a midnight supper at the Cafe Churchill. Papa Stewart, Bertie's father, while posing as the possessor of all the domestic virtues, goes away to the same restaurant to meet a couple of chorus girls. Bertie's cousin from Philadelphia, Percy by name, who has come to New York for throat treatment by a physician who practices chiefly among girls of the stage, turns up at the same dining room to keep an appointment with a vaudeville artiste. Father, son and nephew meet under rather embarrassing and laughable conditions and confusion runs rampant. The third act unsnarls the mix-ups in a way least expected and all the guilty parties swear, with hands upraised, that it will never occur again.

A cast of unexcelled comedians present "The Girl in the Taxi" which contains just enough dancing, singing and music to relieve the rapid-fire pace maintained by the numberless complications which crowd the play from curtain to curtain.—Adv.

"THE NEWLYWEDS AND THEIR BABY"

Charles A. Morgan as Ferdinand Newlywed, the father, in "The Newlyweds and Their Baby" company, is all that could be desired. His makeup as the McManus here is a wonderful piece of work. He is also a singer and dancer of much ability.—Adv.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

The bill at this theatre this week is bound to satisfy the most fastidious patron. If variety will give satisfaction, this week's offering is certainly as varied as the vaudeville goer would care to have it. As the leading feature of the bill which has several acts of headline calibre is Rose Coghlan, the popular star, who, for several years, has been prominently associated with all the leading comedies. She is presenting a sketch, written by herself, called "Between Matinee and Night," showing how a young woman, with an ambition for the footlights, is prevented from sacrificing her all in the attaining of a position as a star by the leading woman of a traveling company, who graphically describes to her what is expected from a newcomer to the stage. The actress through her conversations with the young woman discovers that she is talking to her own daughter, and is about to tell the girl, when her former husband appears and begs of her not to make herself known. The piece gives herself and the other members of her company opportunities for excellent acting, and they make the most of them. Miss Rosalind Coghlan, daughter of the actress, plays the part of the stagestruck girl admirably.

The remainder of the bill is made up of: Leo Carello, the mimic and monologist, who dispenses more humorous sayings in five minutes than the average monologist does in his entire act. "The Iceman," an excellent exemplification of how an innocent man is made the object of undue notoriety, is given by Thomas Mohr and his company; Hilda Hawthorne, the lady ventriloquist, has an act different from the others, and her yodeling is a pleasure to hear; the Great Santell, a modern Hercules, jungles with monster dumbbells and weights with as much ease as the average man carries a newspaper. His comedy is a good asset to his act; Boulden and Cutter are entertainers with various talents; Kit Karson, with his rifle can hit an object at a great distance. His display of marksmanship while swinging on a wire is the best ever seen in this city. Moving pictures close the bill.

Tickets for the remaining performances of the week can be ordered in advance by 'phone 28.—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

In selecting "The Barrier" as the third week offering at this playhouse, Donald Meek, stage director of the Donald Meek Stock company, picked a drama which shows the ability of each member of the company. "The Barrier" is founded on the novel of the same name, and a work, of Rex Beach, author of several thrilling books of the frozen north and northwest. As the place for the development of his novel, Mr. Beach selected the little hamlet of Flambeau, in the Yukon river valley, inhabited by a few prospectors and their families. The first act of the drama shows the general store of the little town, which is also the distributing station of supplies. The quietude of a typical village with few inhabitants changes to city-like activity and it becomes a place reeking with industry, after the first successful strike of gold is made in the property of No Creek Lee. Among the new comers there are some men of questionable character who have come from the state of New York for the purpose of trying their machinations among the people of the village having claims in the new mines. The United States government sends a detachment of soldiers under the command of Lieut. Burrell, to prevent the outbreak of violence and thievery. It is with the coming of the lieutenant and his command to the town that the romantic love match between Neela and Lieut. Burrell has its origination.

Donald Meek, the talented comedian of the company, is cast as Poleon Dorel, "the man of the great heart," and in this character, which is a departure from the ones he most generally assumes, he is a success. Miss Marie Horton plays the part of Neela, who is thought to be a half-breed, but who, is in reality a white girl, and Rockcliffe Fellowes, as Lieut. Burrell, is excellently cast and displays his thorough training as a dramatic actor.

Tickets for the coming performance may be ordered in advance by 'phone 811.—Adv.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

One of the best bills of the season is drawing large and enthusiastic audiences at the Merrimack Square theatre afternoon and evening. Miss Mabel McKinley, the talented soprano and song writer of note, continues to receive generous recognition on her every appearance and the other acts also share in the honors of the week. "For Him," the pretty one-act play by Henry D. Coolidge, presented by the members of Our Stock company, is the most entertaining bits of entertainment that a Lowell audience has had an opportunity to enjoy in some time. Kendal Weston, Miss Phelps and Mr. Reese, are all pleasingly cast and their interpretation of the piece is very cleverly done. The stage effects are elaborate and quite up to the minute in every detail—Nelson and Milledge are most amusing in their latest success "The Secret," and Miss Anna McMahon, soloist, continues to win popularity in her rendition of the latest song hits. Ed. Winchester's act is a real winner for its kind and is sure to please. The photo-plays are the best to be secured from American and foreign markets. Tonight, which will be observed as "Anniversary Night," the Merrimack Square theatre concert orchestra, Phil M. Lederman, leader, will play for the first time "The Anniversary March," a composition by Mr. Lederman and dedicated to the theatre on its completion of the first year in Lowell. GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL

Paid a Visit to the State Hospital This Afternoon

This is "Governor's Day" at the state infirmary at Tewksbury, and although the governor was unable to be present owing to an important engagement, Lieut. Gov. Frothingham and all of the members of the governor's staff, with the exception of one, were present.

The party arrived at the institution about 12.15 o'clock in automobiles and were escorted through several of the buildings by Supt. John H. Nichols, M. D., resident physician, and George A. Pierce, M. D., assistant superintendent of physicians, after which dinner was enjoyed. At the conclusion of the dinner the lieutenant governor and his party were shown through the remainder of the buildings.

The members of the party were loud in their praise of the condition of the buildings and the manner in which the patients were being cared for. Special attention was paid to the tuberculosis and insane patients and all of the members as well as the lieutenant governor inquired of different patients in various departments as to the treatment received and in every case it was found that the inmates were receiving the best of treatment.

At the conclusion of the tour of inspection the party returned to Boston, feeling gratified that the institution was being conducted in a capable manner.

FEDERATION OF LABOR

Deferred Action on Street Car Men's Nine Hour Bill

HAVERHILL, Sept. 20.—The next legislative committee of the state branch, American Federation of Labor, will be composed of three instead of five members, an amendment to the constitution providing for that number being passed at today's session of the annual convention in this city. The amendment was proposed by the special committee of five named late yesterday after the matter of the reorganization of the state branch had been under discussion all day. The report of the committee also fixed the functions of the legislative committee and the executive council and was accepted without discussion with one dissenting vote. As to the legislative program for another year the committee on the legislative committee's report endorsed the recommendation that all bills supported by labor last year be supported in 1912, together with bills from the different crafts when called upon to do so by those crafts.

A motion to make the street car men's nine hours in eleven bill, defeated last year, a federation bill was made, but a motion to defer was before the convention and, after long discussion, the latter motion was carried. A resolution covering the different phases of the question will be submitted later.

HOME TO VOTE

Men From Lowell on Way to Canada

That interest in the reciprocity fight in Canada has been very keen in this city is a fact that is very well known and it was stated this afternoon that a number of Canadians in this city who are entitled to vote in Canada, both in upper Canada and the Maritime provinces, have gone home to take part in the big squabble.

A man who arrived here this afternoon from Halifax, N. S., said to a reporter for The Sun that R. L. Borden, the opposition leader, has made himself felt in the provinces. He said that his warning to them not to forget that the momentous choice about to be made is for all time and that if the two tariffs are interlocked by the proposed treaty the strongest party will always carry the key, made a strong impression.

A traveling man, just in from Montreal, says it's almost a walk-over for Laurier. This man comes to Lowell at least four times a year and is a pretty keen observer. He says that no political battle has ever been waged in this country along more systematic lines than has been the reciprocity fight in Canada and he says that some of the ablest speakers he has heard for many a day he heard in Canada. "I am not a betting man," he said, "but if I were I would bet on Laurier by all means.

HELD IN $1000

GIRL ATTEMPTED TO END HER LIFE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—An attractive young woman, about 25 years old, wearing an old rose suit, was standing with half a dozen other passengers at the South Ferry subway station yesterday afternoon as an uptown train pulled in.

When it drew quite near she jumped from the platform to the tracks and laid across the rails, apparently wanting the train to cut her in half, but the motorman put on the brakes and she was hauled out by a policeman, with only a scratch on her forehead.

At the Old Slip station, where the girl was taken, it was learned that she was Gretchen Lauterbach, an employe of the Eagle hotel in New Rochelle. She declined to say why she had attempted suicide.

Mrs. Albert Kreitler, who conducts the New Rochelle hostelry, said that the girl had been suffering from vertigo and dizziness lately, and that her fall must have been an accident. She had no love affair, she said. The girl was held in $1000 bail by Magistrate Barlow for examination today.

Invitations were authorized to be sent to all active members in foreign jurisdictions. The Boston meeting will precede the international conference to take place in Washington later in the month.

STEAMER OLYMPIC

Was Struck By the British Protected Cruiser Hawke Off Cowes Today

COWES, Isle of Wight, Sept. 20.—The White Star line steamship Olympic, the biggest passenger-carrying vessel in service, was in collision with the British protected cruiser Hawke, in Osborn bay, on the north side of the Isle of Wight this afternoon and was so damaged that her captain, E. J. Smith, beached her in the Cowes roadsted. The captain promptly signalled for assistance to Portsmouth, from where tugs were sent. At the same time assurance was given that the passengers were in no danger.

The Hawke was damaged but less seriously and anchored close by the steamer. The Olympic left Southampton at 11.25 a. m., bound for New York by way of Cherbourg and Queenstown. She sailed with the largest list of first class players that ever started across the Atlantic on one ship. The first cabin passengers numbered 412. Among them were between 20 and 30 American millionaires, something like $250,000 having been paid in passage money. All told there were nearly 3000 persons aboard.

In the collision the Olympic was struck on the starboard quarter and a large hole was stove in. When the vessels separated after the impact it was seen that the Olympic was crippled and Captain Smith immediately ordered her beached. The vessel was run into a mudbank. The Hawke was able to keep afloat but was badly damaged, her bows being crumbled and her plates torn to the water's edge. Later the Olympic was floated and started back to Southampton. The Hawke was also able to get away and proceeded southward under her own steam. After a cursory examination of the damage done the Olympic steamed slowly back to Southampton.

The Hawke was so damaged in her bow that her collision mats were gotten out but the cruiser was able to proceed unassisted. Tugs from Portsmouth proceeded to the scene but their service was not required. Naturally there was intense excitement among the liner's passengers but it was soon evident there was no cause for alarm.

An eye witness of the collision said that the Hawke was undergoing steam trials, following extensive repairs at Portsmouth and was traveling at great speed when she overtook the Olympic. The cruiser was passing the liner to starboard when suddenly she drew in and crashed into the steamer's quarter about twenty feet from the steerage. The witness thought that the warship had been drawn against the other vessel by the suction. After the crash the Hawke drew astern and the crew threw the collision mats over a badly damaged bow. The Hawke was also able to make port without aid.

There was considerable excitement but no panic aboard the liner, the passengers of which were quickly reassured by the officers. The weather was somewhat thick and there was a rain squall at the time of the accident but the haze was not sufficient to obscure either vessel from the other. No one on board had been injured.

HELD IN $10,000 BONDS

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—Three of the indicted officials of the United Shoe Machinery Co., President Winslow, Asistant Treasurer Hurd and Counsel Howe appeared in the United States circuit court here today and furnished $10,000 bonds for their appearance at their trial on the criminal charge of conspiracy and violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws. They were not called upon to plead. The other three officials will appear later, two of them being on their way back from Europe.

VESSEL WAS WRECKED

LOUISBURG, C. B., Sept. 20.—A large vessel which struck on the rocks of Main-A-Dieu near Scatterie last night was identified today as the Norwegian bark Record bound from Bahia Blanca, Brazil, for Matane, Que. The vessel was wrecked during a thick fog and in the heavy sea the crew of 20 men were in great peril. The Canadian government lifesavers on Scatterie island at some risk took off eleven of the men but Captain Grandsen and the others remain on board. Today they were in no immediate danger but the lifesavers continue to stand by the wreck and will rescue them when opportunity offers. The bark is badly damaged and may be a total loss. The Record was formerly the British bark Nellie Troop. She was built at Bristol, England, in 1889 of steel and registered 1312 tons net.

SOLDIERS ON DUTY

They Are Aiding the Police in Madrid

MADRID, Sept. 20.—The soldiers are doing police duty here today. Arrests were made in the course of the night in several parts of the city. At Barcelona many were taken into custody. Despatches from different towns in the interior state that conditions there are quieter.

There have been some disorders in small industrial centers. The revolutionaries apparently are still in possession of Jativa, toward which troops are marching from Valencia. At Jativa and Carcagente rioters set fire to the public buildings and tore up the railway tracks.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGED

COATESVILLE, Pa., Sept. 20.—The most important development in the negro lynching case came today when warrants charging two members of the mob with murder and two policemen with involuntary manslaughter were issued by Judge Butler on the recommendation of the special grand jury. The jurors were discharged. They had been in session for three weeks.

TO WIN SEPARATION

MRS. PERKINS USES LANGUAGE OF LITTLE ONES

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—"Let's play house and I'll yell like pap yells at mamma."

Mrs. Freda Perkins, of No. 353 East One Hundred and Forty-second street, yesterday quoted her five-year-old son as having made this remark to his sister, to show how her husband treated her while she lived with him at Mamaroneck. She is suing Perkins, a dentist, at No. 40 East Forty-first street, for separation.

Mrs. Perkins was a Normal College student of seventeen when she eloped and married Bertram Raymond Perkins, in December, 1901. They lived together at Mamaroneck until September 7 last. For two months prior to that date Mrs. Perkins says her husband did not speak to her. He made her go to bed at 8.30 p. m., she declared, when he came home early. When he did not come early she said he stayed out "joy riding" all night.

Perkins explained that his wife's fondness for Attorney William Smith, of White Plains, caused her to grow tired of her home. Mrs. Perkins denied the charge and was allowed $30 a week alimony pending the trial.

JUDGE DE COURCEY

Named for the Supreme Court Bench

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The vacancy on the supreme bench of Massachusetts was filled by Governor Foss today by the advancement of Judge C. A. DeCourcey of Lawrence of the superior court. Justice A. P. Rugg was confirmed at the same time as chief justice of the supreme court and immediately took the oath of office.

Judge DeCourcey was appointed to the supreme bench in 1902 and ranked as tenth on the list of judges of that court. He is a democrat.

The two appointments will go before the executive council next week for confirmation.

AGED HORSES

ALLEGED TO BE USED AS FOOD PRODUCTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A charge that horses which died of old age or disease were being cut up and exported from this country as food products, was made yesterday against the Schwartz Bros. Co., of Kearney, N. J., a suburb of Newark. It appeared that Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, of the Department of Agriculture, had for several months employed investigators to look into the methods of the concern, and that they had satisfied themselves that horse flesh was being shipped to Holland as edible meat.

Dr. Wiley acted in co-operation with Dr. R. B. Fitz-Randolph, of the New Jersey board of health. They arranged matters so that several physicians acted as drivers of "dead horse wagons" and cutters-up of the meat. Still others assisted in the packing of the horse meat and the shipping of it to Holland.

MAN WAS MURDERED

His Body Was Found in a Freight Car

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20.—A well-dressed man, whose appearance indicated wealth and refinement, was found dead in a freight car here today with a bullet hole in his breast and his pockets turned inside out. The police believe that he was murdered last night and that his body was placed in the car in hope that it would be carried to some other part of the country before it was discovered. The dead man was about 40 years old, weighing about 165 pounds, with thick black hair and clean shaven. Nothing was found about him that might lead to identification.

THE BOARD OF POLICE

Will Hold Special Meeting Friday Night

A special meeting of the board of police will be held at 7.15 o'clock Friday night when two hearings will be held. One of the hearings will be on the application of William E. Griffin that he be granted a billiards and pool license in Adams street. At last night's meeting of the board it was shown that there were remonstrants but inasmuch as they were unable to be present it was voted to hold a special session Friday morning but subsequently it was voted to hold it in the evening.

George F. Kearns & Co. has applied for a transfer of a liquor license from Salem street to Chelmsford street and a hearing will also be given in this matter at the same meeting.

THE "BLACK HAND"

Shielded from the Police By Victim

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Several of the best detectives at police headquarters labored for hours yesterday over Vincenzo Sabella, a cheese and oil importer, who lives at No. 369 East Broome street, and at the end of a protracted "third degree" session, said: "It's no use. We can never get an Italian to say anything against the Black Hand, even when it has tried to rob him, and has beaten him almost to death. No wonder the Black Hand flourishes, when it has its victims scared like this."

The detectives declared that Sabella had endeavored to compromise with the dread society—which nearly two months ago kidnapped his little son—and that because he had not paid its agents the full amount they demanded, had been assaulted.

The merchant denied this, and asserted stoutly that he had been held up by ordinary highwaymen for the purpose of an ordinary robbery. But he was badly frightened when he was giving this explanation.

Just fifty days ago Sabella's son and namesake, a boy of five years, was kidnapped from in front of his home. The father a day or two later received a letter stating that if he would meet representatives of the Black Hand at a lonely spot and give him $5000 in case he might have his boy back unharmed. Sabella showed this letter to the police, but the very next day was silent and refused to give them any assistance.

On Monday afternoon Sabella was making his rounds collecting from the little grocers who buy his imported articles. He reached the store of Giovanni Gramanti, at No. 506 East Fourteenth street. After Gramanti had paid what he owed, three masked men suddenly appeared and assaulted Sabella. One struck him over the head with a lead pipe and the others made a grab at his pockets; but were frightened off before they could get anything from him.

When the police learned of this incident—it was after Sabella had been taken home from Bellevue hospital—he said: "I had about $700 in my pockets which I had collected. These men were ordinary robbers. They didn't get any of the money, because it was a large roll of small bills, and they couldn't drag it from my pocket. No, I couldn't recognize any of them."

The storekeeper, Grammanti, and a woman customer, likewise asserted that they couldn't identify the trio which had so mysteriously disappeared.

The police, however, said last night: "We have information that Sabella several weeks ago paid the Black Hand $1,700 as part of the ransom for his boy, and that on Monday he went to this East Fourteenth street shop with $1,700 more, which he intended to give them, and try to effect a compromise so that his child might be returned. But they apparently became angry and beat him and then tried to get his money without any return.

"If he would tell all he knows we could get his son and the kidnappers. But the Black Hand has him scared to death, like it has all its victims."

HOSPITAL ASSO. CONFERENCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—More than 500 physicians, hospital superintendents and nurses attended the second day's session of the American Hospital association's annual conference today. Among those who read papers was Dr. N. L. Richardson, superintendent of the Providence, R. I., city hospital.

CONDITION IS SERIOUS

Denis O'Neil Operated Upon at Hospital

Denis O'Neil of this city, who is an attendant at the state infirmary at Tewksbury, is in a serious condition as a result of an operation performed on him Monday afternoon. Mr. O'Neil, who is about 23 years of age and formerly resided in Claire street, has been one of the most efficient attendants at the infirmary, and recently suffered an attack of tonsilitis, and it was decided to operate upon his throat.

Monday afternoon an operation was performed and although it proved to be successful the patient lost so much blood that at one time the doctors despaired of his life. He has made rapid improvement during the past 24 hours, however, and although he is in a serious condition the doctors state that he is out of danger.

A HOPELESS WRECK

Schooner Kaplan Met With An Accident

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 20.—With only her masts and jibboom above the water the four-masted schooner Stella B. Kaplan, which struck on the tail of the Horseshoe in lower Chesapeake bay near Old Point Comfort, Monday night, today rested on the bottom of the Horseshoe bar, a hopeless wreck. Capt. Charles W. Dow of Melrose, Mass., who was making the trip in the Kaplan from Norfolk to Savannah for her regular master, Captain Merritt, while the latter visited his family in South Portland, Me., went today aboard a wrecking tug to the scene of the wreck but, finding the vessel beyond saving, directed its stripping.

Judge Morton will hear the case on Friday.

THE POST OFFICE IN WHICH POSTAL SAVINGS BANK WILL BE ESTABLISHED.

To Have Charge of the Postal Savings Bank

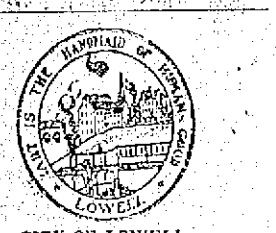

The postal savings bank, which will be established in the money order department of the postoffice on Oct. 21st, will be under the direct supervision of Postmaster Legare.

On June 25, 1910, the postal savings bank act became law. The funds deposited under this act are to bear two per cent. interest. Of the sums so deposited, five per cent. is to be kept in lawful money in the treasury of the United States as a reserve fund. The remaining ninety-five per cent. is to be deposited, at not less than 2½ per cent. interest in national or state banks in the community in which the deposit is received, such banks being required to furnish security in the form of public bonds or other security supported by the taxing power. The board of trustees, consisting of the postmaster-general, the secretary of the treasury, and the attorney-general, in whose hands the administration of the system is placed, are authorized at any time to withdraw from the banks, and to invest in the bonds or other securities of the United States, an amount not exceeding thirty per cent. of the funds deposited by the public in postal savings depositories, and the remainder or any portion of it may be withdrawn, for the same purpose, by direction of the president when in his judgment the "general welfare and interests of the United States so require." Furthermore any depositor in a postal savings depository may exchange his deposits in sums of $20, $40, $60, $80, or $100 or multiples thereof, or $500 or multiples thereof, for United States gold bonds of like denomination bearing 2½ per cent. interest, redeemable after one year, and payable after twenty years. Investments in such bonds may also be made by the board of trustees. The bonds so authorized are, however, to be issued only (1) when there are outstanding bonds subject to call, in which case the proceeds of the issues shall be applied to the redemption of such outstanding bonds; (2) at times when under authority of law, other than this act, the government desires to issue bonds for the purpose of replenishing the treasury, in which case the issues shall be in lieu of the issue of a like amount of bonds authorized by other acts. Whenever the board of trustees have funds available for investment in United States bonds they may notify the secretary of the treasury of the amount they desire to invest, subject to call, whereupon the secretary, if there are United States bonds subject to call, shall call in and redeem such quantity as may be needed, and issue to the board of trustees a like amount of similar bonds also subject to call. None of the bonds issued under the act are to be available as security for circulating notes.

It is evident that this act places the total resources of the postal savings depositories, whatever they may prove to be, at the disposal of the United States treasury, and, in case they should be large, would greatly simplify the task of carrying through refunding operations (in the case—e. g., of the $63,000,000 1908-18 three per cent. bonds now subject to call); of providing for extraordinary expenditures such as those on account of the Panama canal; or of maintaining the value of the two per cent. bonds in case they should cease to serve as a security for note issues. It is possible, therefore, that the postal banks may have an important bearing on the future debt operations of the government.

PRESIDENT TAFT

PREPARING TO ENTER THE "INSURGENT" COUNTRY

MARQUETTE, Mich., Sept. 20.—With the conclusion of his visit to Marquette, President Taft today turned southward to the lower peninsula of Michigan, to Illinois and the states beyond the Mississippi, where next week he will invade the real "insurgent" country. The program of the president's stay here made it a rather easy day for him. He was the guest of Alton T. Roberts overnight and after breakfast was the central figure in a parade through the city. Other features of the day were the president's address to a mass meeting and a luncheon for him.

TO HOLD SMOKE TALK

The third smoke talk of the season will be held tonight at the Citizens-Americains club, rooms in Dutton street, the main feature of which will be interesting talks on the new proposed city charter. The speakers of the evening will be Alonzo G. Walsh, who will address the assembly in English, and Thomas J. Goyette, who will give an interesting talk on 20 reasons why a voter should cast his vote for the adoption of the said charter. Another large attendance of voters is expected to be on hand this evening.

THE MOROCCAN ISSUE

May Be Settled in a Few Days

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—Several bankers stated on the bourse today that they had been informed by the foreign office that the Moroccan question would be settled in two or three days. Well informed persons considers this unduly optimistic. The adoption of the verbal method of negotiations it is thought will facilitate a settlement, as one of the chief impediments heretofor has been the reluctance of either side to abandon points once formally proposed in writing lest such action be construed as a sign of weakness.

GRANNETTA IS HELD

Charged With Knowing About Murder

LYNN, Sept. 20.—Tony Grannetta, a cousin of the husband of Mrs. Pasquale Grannetta, who was killed at her home in Cliftondale on Friday last, was taken into custody today by the state police on a charge of having some knowledge of the crime. He was taken to Boston by Deputy Chief Teal for further examination at the office of the state police.

The body of Mrs. Grannetta was found on Friday with nine wounds, all apparently from a long knife.

JUDGE GROSSCUP

SAYS HE WAS SHADOWED FOR TWO YEARS

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Following the announcement yesterday by Judge Peter Grosscup that he would resign from the federal bench, he confirmed last night a report that he had been under surveillance for two years by some unfriendly agency, whose motive he could not give. He said he had nothing to conceal from the public and that the shadowing did not cause him to resign. His motive was mere personal and political freedom, he said.

300 ARE IMPRISONED

The Trouble in Madrid Still Continues

MADRID, Sept. 20.—The government, acting under the imperial decree of yesterday suspending the constitutional guarantees because of revolutionary activities, has ordered the arrest of workingmen's committees and political agitators in the disturbed districts. Three hundred persons were imprisoned in this city last night. Among those arrested here was Senor Large Caballero, general counsel for and vice president of the General Union of Labor. His offices were closed. The general strike in this city, called for today was prevented by the action of the authorities and the railways were running as usual.

Vanderbilt, Sr., were married today by Mayor DeLaney of Vauville, a village of 150 inhabitants near here. The civil right was performed at the village offices.

The official witnesses were Mr. Reid, the American ambassador at London, the Earl of Granard, who married Miss Beatrice Mills, Mrs. Samuel Sands, and W. K. Vanderbilt. Later the party returned to the Vanderbilt place at the chateau Duquesney, where a religious ermony was conducted by Rev. Mr. Morgan in the chapel of the chateau, in which additional kingspeople and friends were assembled.

CHAMP CLARK SPOKE

He Told Kentucky People About Principles of Democracy

LAWRENCEBURG, Ky., Sept. 20.—"Triumphant democracy is now the resounding theme of every tongue. After 17 years of wandering in the Wilderness we this day stand upon Mount Victory and look into the Promised Land which we will enter and possess in 1912." So declared Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives, in an address here today. Mr. Clark was born near Lawrenceburg, March 7, 1850, and until today had not been there since he taught a country school.

Continuing his message to democracy, the speaker said:

"Democrats everywhere are cheerful, hopeful, confident, united and aggressive, while our republican friends are sad, hopeless, despondent, on the defensive and split into bitter factions constantly at each others' throats. From ocean to ocean they are fighting each other like the cats of Kilkenny. President Taft leading the standpat faction, while Senator Robert Marion LaFollette—"Fighting Bob," as his followers love to call him—heads the insurgents. With them it is war to the knife and the knife to the hilt.

"They are so thoroughly destroying each other that sometimes it seems that all we have to do is to stand still and see the salvation of the Lord; but wise democrats are not in favor of standing still or of depending on republican factionalism to give us the victory next year. On the contrary, we should continue as we have begun, press forward, advance our banners, keep everlastingly pounding them, pass more good bills until we have carried out our entire program and force the president to sign or veto meritorious democratic measures, which are designed to promote the prosperity, happiness and safety of the American people. That is a policy which will win and which deserves to win.

"The greatest statesman that ever lived, bar none, Thomas Jefferson, said: 'Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.' It is also the price of success at the polls. I recommend it most cheerfully and earnestly to democrats all over the land."

Reviewed Conditions

Mr. Clark reviewed conditions in both parties, referred to the democratic victory in 1910, and the various congressional fights, and said that "had the republicans in the 61st congress honestly redeemed the promises made in the campaign of 1908, to revise the tariff downward, they would have made their party invincible, and would have secured another long lease of power. The masses of the people without regard to party affiliations are honest, and they demand honesty and candor in public men.

"One of the chief reasons why we won in 1910, was that the democrats and insurgent republicans in congress kept constantly hammering on the broken promises of the republican standpatters, on their gross perfidy to their pledges, and upon their scorn of the righteous demands of the people. We appealed to the country on that record, and won an astonishing victory which, let us hope, is only the beginning of a long series of victories for lower taxes, for greater economies and for better government.

"The new democratic house has made a record so splendid as to surprise our friends and dumbfound our enemies. No house has in a generation achieved so much constructive legislation of such a beneficial character in so short a time, notwithstanding the fact that we had been sneered at for years as being a party of mere negation and utterly destitute of constructive statesmanship. That sneer is now frozen on the faces of the sneerers. That gibe disturbs nobody any more.

"The great battle of 1912 must be fought on the splendid record of the democrats in this congress and upon that record we can win not only next year, but for years to come.

"Duty is the sublimest word in our vocabulary. To do one's duty honestly, faithfully, courageously and patriotically is the greatest achievement in statesmanship or in any other field of human endeavor. To their eternal credit be it said that the democrats of the 62nd congress at the extraordinary session discharged their duty to the utmost and deserve well of the country."

The Extra Session

Mr. Clark reviewed some of the party accomplishments, and said: "What we did at the extraordinary session is only an earnest of what we will accomplish at the next two regular sessions.

"The very best and most important result of the extraordinary session was that we formed the habit of acting and pulling together and have come to take pride in so doing.

"In this connection, it should be stated that the democrats in the house of the 62d congress aided by some republicans, passed the reciprocity bill, as they had done in the 61st. President Taft, with all the power, prestige and patronage of his mighty office, could in neither congress muster a majority of the republican representatives to his aid, which shows that the gulf separating the republican factions is as wide and deep and impassable as that which separated Dives and Lazarus.

"We did not pass the Reciprocity bill to please President Taft, but because it will help to lower the tariff. But defective as it is, the Reciprocity bill is a step in the right direction—that is, in the direction of reducing the high protective tariff to a revenue basis. That's one reason why democrats supported it. Another reason is that we believe it will benefit the American people, and at the same time, benefit our Canadian neighbors. True, President Taft, exercising ruthlessly a power which King George V. could not exercise without being driven out of the three kingdoms, vetoed not only our Farmers' Free List bills and our Tariff bills, but also the joint resolution admitting Arizona and New Mexico.

"The president's veto of the statehood resolution was made upon doubtful constitutional authority. After an enabling act is passed and after a territory in conformity therewith has adopted a constitution providing a republican form of government, she is entitled to admission. In his veto, the president claims that the principal point at issue was the recall, particularly the recall of judges. He is entirely mistaken. He raised a far greater and more far-reaching question and took the wrong side of it, and that is whether a state has the right to adopt for itself such constitution as it desires, subject, of course, to the constitution of the United States, and provided it establishes for itself by its constitution, a republican form of government. The American people who love a square deal, will not permit him to shift the issue from the great question of a state's having the right to adopt any sort of constitution which suits it within the limitations named, to a petty squabble about the recall.

"The provisions to go into a state constitution do not depend, under the federal constitution, upon the whim, prejudice or taste of the man who happens to occupy the White House, or of the men who happen to be representatives or senators in congress, but upon the will of the voters of the state itself; but the president seems to be laboring under the delusion that he knows better what the people of Arizona need and desire than they know themselves, and that his wishes and desires rather than theirs should be incorporated into their constitution, which is a queer opinion to be entertained by an American president.

Referring to President Taft's veto of the various tariff bills, Mr. Clark said:

"His action makes it clear the sun shining at midday in a cloudless sky that the people can hope for no relief from tariff extortions at the hands of the republican party, but must look to us for relief from the monstrous load which they are now carrying.

"The language of the president's veto messages raises a very grave question. He seems to think that congress should not consider or pass any tariff bills except such as he recommends, which is reversing the modus operandi of making tariff bills provided by the Fathers of the Republic. The assumption that congress shall neither consider nor pass a tariff bill until recommended by the president, is not only absurd but is revolutionary, utterly subversive of our theory of legislation, if submitted to, will be only another long step in the process of usurpation, which in late years has so greatly increased the powers of the executive at the expense of the legislative branch of government.

"For the last thirty odd years, the enormously increased patronage of the executive has increased his power in an extent never dreamed of by the founders of the Republic and which should set men to seriously thinking as to whether so much power in the hands of one man is entirely salutary.

"It is written: 'By their fruits ye shall know them.' That test for human conduct was established by highest authority. By it, democrats are willing to be judged, for it is a fair and just standard. By it, we stand or fall. We feel certain that a verdict in our favor will be rendered by the grand inquest of the American people. We await that verdict with supreme confidence."

C. M. A. C. MEETING

HELD LAST NIGHT AND WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the C. M. A. C. was held last night to the club rooms in Pawtucket street. The meeting was presided over by President Xavier Delisle and a grist of business was transacted and several new members were initiated.

A committee was named to arrange plans for the annual pilgrimage of the society at St. Joseph's cemetery. This event will take place on the last Sunday in October and the committee in charge is as follows: Joseph Payette, Adolphe Brassard, Adelard Payette, George Simars and M. Beaulieu.

The members of the society headed by Garde d'Honneur and a band, will leave the club house at 2 o'clock and march to St. Jean Baptiste church where a Mhera will be sung at 2.30 o'clock for the repose of the souls of the deceased members. Then special electric cars will convey them to St. Joseph's cemetery, where taps will be sounded by a squad from the guard. This ceremony will be held at the grave of the late Rev. A. M. Garin, O. M. I., where a sermon will be delivered by a renowned preacher.

At last night's meeting the members of the C. M. A. C. also voted to keep open house tomorrow evening for everybody. The reports of the Canadian elections will be given out on a white screen through a stereopticon machine, as well as the pictures of the different candidates, the latter to number over one hundred.

Admission to the hall will be free and as a number of people besides the French speaking element are interested in those elections on account of the reciprocity question, everybody is invited to be present. The election reports will be given in the upper hall which will be opened at 9 o'clock.

NUMBER OF OFFENDERS

Appeared in Police Court This Morning

"We have enough to take care of our own drunkards without being bothered with drunks from other places," was the statement made by Judge Hadley in police court this morning when he learned that several of the offenders in the dock belonged in places other than Lowell. Judge Hadley has intimated, from time to time, that he does not intend to have Lowell made a rendevous for drunks and that if there is an increase it will warrant his imposing heavy fines or jail sentences.

The case of William O'Hare and James J. Lannon of Boston charged with breaking and entering the building of Josephine Dixon in Billerica, on August 17, and the larceny therefrom of carpenters tools and an umbrella, was called for trial this morning, but inasmuch as one of the men mentioned in the complaint has not yet been apprehended the case was continued for one week.

Stole a Watch

Henry Fletcher was charged with stealing a watch valued at $15 from Edward Fitzgerald on September 2. Fletcher admitted that he purloined the timepiece and later pawned it. The court found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to five months in jail.

Neglected His Wife

"My husband hasn't given me a cent to support myself or family for the past year," said Mrs. Matilda Guimond in court this morning when she testified against her husband whom she had brought into court on a complaint charging him with neglect. The court after considering the testimony offered in the case found the man guilty and ordered him placed in the hands of the probation officer on condition that he pay $4 a week towards the support of his wife.

Using Profane Language

Drunken Offenders

There were 17 persons arrested for drunkenness during the 24 hours which elapsed between the sessions of court yesterday and this morning. Twelve of the persons were arraigned in court this morning and five were released by the probation officer before the opening of court.

Thomas Hefferman was charged with being drunk and he made an able plea for another chance in order that he might reform and make a man of himself but after Deputy Downey had produced the man's record and Probation Officer Slattery informed the court that the defendant had been on probation on five occasions the court sentenced the man to five months in jail.

Albert Frechette was found drunk in an alleyway last night by Patrolman P. B. Clark. Inasmuch as the man is a good worker and unfortunately gets drunk only now and then and also has a family to support, Judge Hadley thought it would be advisable to give the man a chance and imposed a suspended sentence of five months in jail.

Dennis O'Neil appeared in court this morning on a complaint charging him with being drunk. The court sentenced him to two months in jail.

John Hayes was on parole from the state farm and he will be returned to that institution. Owen McKenna will spend the next three months in jail.

John Mullen and Harrison Tyler were ordered to pay fines of $6 each.

There were five first offenders who were fined $2 each.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

In Sacred Heart Parish Has 637 Pupils—No Danger From Scarlet Fever

Since the opening of the schools in this city the attendance at the Sacred Heart school has been astonishing. The new school has been a great attraction to the parents on account of its admirable equipment, its modern appliances, and its perfect system of ventilation by which the air in every room is steadily changed, the fresh air being taken in and in cold weather seated without any draught on the children.

Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., was annoyed this morning when he read that the Sacred Heart school was mentioned at the board of health meeting in connection with scarlet fever cases that occurred before the school opened.

Dr. Fred Murphy, the medical inspector of the school, when seen today by a Sun reporter, said there was no carelessness anywhere in connection with the cases of scarlet fever, except on the part of one family who was slow to call in a physician.

"There is no danger of an epidemic in that district?" the doctor was asked.

"Certainly not," he replied. "The cases are now quarantined and the prospect is, that few, if any new cases will develop."

"Did any of the cases originate in the Sacred Heart school?" the doctor was asked.

"I suspect that one case originated there but I am not positive of that."

"Are the 637 children attending that school exposed to any danger?"

"None whatever," said the doctor. "This school is the most airy, the best ventilated and the most sanitary in the city and the utmost precautions have been taken since the first case was reported. Every child that showed any sign of illness, a headache or a sore throat, was sent home to await developments and they are all back again in good health. I now inspect the school daily and I am certain that the pupils attending are not exposed to the slightest danger."

PAWNED JEWELRY

To Get Money to Support Her Children

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Elbridge Gerry Snow, 3d, and Dorothy Violet Snow—the children who were conspicuous in the marital troubles of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Gerry Snow, Jr.,—have again become a source of anxiety to their mother.

The former Mrs. Snow, who is now the wife of Louis L. Debost, in applying to Supreme Court Justice McCall for double the allowance she is now receiving from her former husband for the support of the children, declared she had been obliged during the past year to pawn some of her jewels to obtain money to support young Elbridge and Dorothy. Despite this fact she is $760 in debt for their maintenance.

Mrs. Snow divorced Elbridge Gerry Snow, Jr., millionaire insurance officer, seven years ago, and was awarded the custody of the two children. Snow was ordered to pay her $333 a month for the support and education of the children. His wife afterward married Debost and Snow married Mrs. Marie Antoinette Hoppe of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Snow-Debost, in asking for $666 a month allowance, declared that her former husband's position in life and manner of living warrants this expenditure on his part. Last year, she said, she spent about $2000 more than the $4000 allowance upon the two children.

The coming year, Mrs. Depost asserts, will be an expensive one for young Elbridge and Dorothy, because they should both be sent to boarding school. Dorothy must be placed under the care of a dentist for two years to straighten her teeth. The cost of this is estimated at $500. Mrs. Depost says she has instructed the children in dancing, vocal and instrumental music, drawing and painting.

Mrs. Depost told the court her divorced husband has an income of $75,000, lives in a Riverside Drive mansion, spends $60,000 a year for his present wife's dresses, and is helping support five children of his second wife's brother.

Snow characterized the $50,000 dress item as "absurd." He admitted his income to be about $40,000. He said he thought $333 a month was sufficient to provide for a boy of thirteen and a girl of twelve.

Snow admits paying $350 a year for tuition of his second wife's son, but denies that he supports the five children of his wife's brother is false.

"I am willing," he told the court, "to provide for Elbridge and Dorothy if Mrs. Debose will surrender them to me."

Justice McCall denied the application to double the allowance.

PATROLMAN COGGER

Has Been Assigned to Liquor Squad

Patrolman Daniel W. Cogger has been appointed to act temporarily as an inspector on the liquor squad of the police department, but it is understood that eventually the temporary appointment will be made permanent.

The assignment was brought about as a result of a vacancy in the quota of the department. When Inspector Frank Goodwin, who acted as court officer, was pensioned on June 4, 1910, the vacancy was not filled, but Inspector Philip Dwyer of the liquor squad was assigned to do the work and from time to time other members of the department assisted. Recently the board decided that it would be necessary to fill the vacancy and Inspector Dwyer will now devote his time to the court work and for the present at least Patrolman Cogger will act as a liquor inspector.

PATROLMAN COGGER

Patrolman Cogger is one of the most efficient men in the department and he has been publicly commended on several occasions for good work. He was appointed to the force in December, 1892, and Supt. Welch considers him one of the best members of the force.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH

Heard Complaint Against a Local Milk Dealer

At a meeting of the board of health held yesterday afternoon a letter was read in which it was stated that the milk delivered by Frank L. Peabody of Bridge street, Lowell, is peculiar appearing. It was stated in the letter that the milk is unnatural in appearance and looks as if it had been adulterated. Milk Inspector Melvin M. Master stated that eight samples of milk had been taken from Mr. Peabody's wagon and that the samples varied a great deal. He said the samples indicated that something foreign had been put in the milk, gelatine or some sugary substance. He also believed that it had been watered.

Mr. Peabody was present at the meeting and stated to the board that he had six raisers, and asked the board to send out a man to look over the milk of the raisers. It was voted to prosecute the case against Mr. Peabody in the police court.

The complaint against the keeping of pigeons at 52 Fifth street was discussed. The chairman said he had visited the premises and had found everything all right. He said the place was clean and that there was an entire absence of odor.

Had talked with neighbors and none seemed to have any complaint to make. Mr. Osgood said that he considered the place not only clean, but exceptionally so. Dr. Brunelle, who had visited the house in question, could see nothing to complain of there. It was voted to give complainant leave to withdraw.

David Ziskind and company were granted a license to erect a stable in Cambridge street, to accommodate five horses. The proviso attached was that he connect the stable with the main sewer and remove manure every two weeks.

Complaint was received that Louis Lambros and George Simodes are conducting a milk business at 66 Jefferson street without a license so to do. Melvin M. Master said he had issued a license to do business at this address, but that the license was issued to one Ahilleas Daffos, and not to Lambros or Simodes. There being a ban against Lambros participating in the milk business in this city, it was voted to ask Ahilleas Daffos to attend the next regular meeting and explain just who the real owner of the place is.

The report of the inspector on scarlet fever cases showed that there are eight in the entire city, an unusually small number. Four of these are on Watson avenue; one on South Whipple street and one on Meadowcroft street. Agent Bates reported the case of a small boy on Watson avenue who had been sick a week before a doctor was called and this undoubtedly is responsible for some, if not all of the other cases on that street, two families being involved. The parents of the boy not knowing the nature of the disease let his two sisters attend the Sacred Heart school for a few days but they were excluded as soon as Dr. Boyle diagnosed the case as scarlet fever.

Inspector O'Heir reported that some of the cases are very slight and for that reason it is difficult to maintain a strict quarantine, but the attending physicians have the cases now under control and with the aid of the board, it is hoped the disease will be prevented from spreading.

A LIVELY SESSION

Attempt Made to Abolish the Office of Clerk of Committees

The board of aldermen held a late meeting last night and went over quite a raft of business. The board favored the appropriation of $2700 for the continuation of smooth paving from Howe street to Fayette street in East Merrimack street. The order was introduced by Ald. Flanagan. An ordinance repealing the ordinance constituting the office of clerk of committees was defeated. The ordinance was introduced by Ald. Barrett, who said that the office of clerk of committees was an "absolutely unnecessary part of the city government." The order for $15,000 for a sewer across the Concord river at the plant of the American Hide and Leather company did not get to the meeting it having been side-tracked at a meeting of the committee on sewers held previous to the meeting of the board of aldermen. Sixteen jurors were drawn, eight to serve in this city and eight in Cambridge.

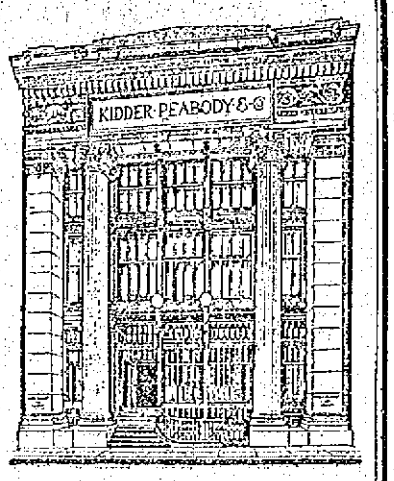

Supt. Charles A. Whittet of the park department was before the board to answer questions relative to the bill of Olmstead Brothers for work on the city hall grounds. Mr. Whittet said that the Olmstead Brothers, landscape architects, had been employed to draft a plan of the grounds, not to set out plants or shrubs, as seemed the opinion of the aldermen. Mr. Whittet said that so far as he was concerned he took his orders from the park commission and was in the habit of doing just what the commission told him to do.

The meeting didn't get started until 9.35 o'clock and the lateness of it was due to committee meetings and a caucus that preceded it.

STOCK MARKET

WAS FIRM AT THE CLOSING HOUR TODAY

U. S. Steel 5s Went Down to 100.—A Weakness in Stocks of Industrial Combinations.—Rallies Were Made in Some Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Heavy selling was resumed at the opening of the market today and prices of most of the active issues declined. U. S. Steel, which bore the brunt of yesterday's attack on the market, was sold heavily and fell ⅞. International Harvester also reached a new low figure for the year, selling at 99⅞. Union Pacific fell back 1½ and Reading, Western Maryland and St. Paul a point. Can. Pac. gained ⅝.

Liquidation was resumed on a large scale in the industrials, especially U. S. Steel and the copper group, which made new low record. United States Steel reached 63¼, a loss of 1⅜, the pfd. 110¼, a decline of 3⅝, and the five per cent. bonds 102, a fall of 1½. Amal. Copper, American Smelting and Lehigh Valley all scored losses of a point and many other leading stocks were down nearly as much.

After U. P. had touched a new low record for the year, 156⅜, and N. P., S. P., and several of the active industrials had lost 1 to 2 points, supporting orders were distributed and the list recovered slightly. Liquidation, however, was resumed in U. S. Steel after a while and when it broke to 63⅜ the rest of the list weakened.

Announcement that the federal government would permit the International Harvester Co. to adapt itself to the requirements of the Sherman law without bringing suit for dissolution, effected a marked change in speculative sentiment and the market grew stronger after pronounced weakness early in the session. Heavy selling of United States Steel and the refusal of the Interstate commerce commission to suspend the Minnesota freight rates at the request of eastern railroads were the most depressing factors in the early decline. Recoveries in the second hour were general and most of the standard railroad stocks sold a trifle above yesterday's closing. U. S. Steel got back to 64 7-8 or within 1½ of yesterday's final price. International Harvester also made up virtually all of its loss. Bonds were easy.

The demand abated at the recovery but there was no renewal of selling pressure, the market instead lapsing into extreme dullness. U. S. Steel pfd. and the 5 per cent bonds clung to their low prices of the year at 112¾ and 102½ respectively, although the common stock was well supported.

The market closed firm. U. S. Steel 5's went down to 100 with wide gaps between transactions before the support became effective enough to check the demoralization in the United States Steel securities. Circumstantial reports were circulated that wages in the steel trade would be cut. Fear of government prosecution of various industrial combinations were reflected in the widespread weakness in this class of stocks. Rallies of a point or more were made in many issues before the session ended, with the railroad stocks benefiting most.

TWO BIG BATTLESHIPS

Congress Will be Asked to Authorize Their Construction

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Estimates for the maintainance of the navy for the next fiscal year have been made with one exception—the provision for new ships. This item has been permitted to remain open, awaiting the personal consideration of Secretary Meyer and it is expected that he will take up the subject in the course of a week or so, as the estimates must be in the hands of the secretary of the treasury before the 15th of October. It is pretty well understood that the secretary will adhere to the program which has governed for the past two years and suggest to congress the addition of two first class battleships and a corresponding number of submarines, torpedoboat destroyers, colliers and other auxiliaries.

It is urged that the recent striking tests of the effects of high powered naval ordinance upon armor belts as demonstrataed in the firing upon the San Marcos, once known as the Texas, has made it plain that none of the battleships now afloat is safe against such guns as it carried.

The practical objects, however, to further increase in the size of battleships, such as the limited number of harbors that would be open to such big ships and the excessive cost and difference difficult handling are believed to incline the majority of the members of the boards which submit recommendations to the secretary of the navy for new construction to a conservative course at present.

THE PRICE OF MILK

Has Been Advanced by the Farmers

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—Milk at wholesale was advanced 2 cents per can of 8 1-2 quarts at a meeting of the directors of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' company yesterday at the American house. A short hay crop and government reports of enormous grain shortages were given as reasons for this advance to 37 1-2 cents per can for the next six months. The action of the milk contractors now is awaited. An all-day meeting was held behind closed doors.

"A meeting of the directors of the B. C. M. P. Co. was held today, at which were present representatives from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine and Connecticut. A full discussion of the situation disclosed the fact that, owing to the drought, the hay crop was very short and high in price. Other feeds are rapidly advancing, as the government crop reports indicate enormous shortages of grain production. We have also had the severest frost experienced for many years, which has greatly injured the forage crops. Because of these and other reasons, milk production will be very expensive the coming season. Accordingly, it was voted that we demand a minimum price 37 1-2 cents per 8 1-2-quart can for the coming six months, to be paid on the middle zone (55 to 75 miles from Boston).

"This is an advance of 2 cents per can over the corresponding price of last winter. This minimum price was presented by committees to various dealers. The producers adjourned for one week in order that dealers might consider the proposition and consult the producers to find out more definitely their attitude on this issue."

Asked whether the directors had taken action in reference to the proceedings of the federal courts against some of the officers, Mr. Abbot said:

"The only officer who has been indicted is the secretary, Mr. Hunter, because he was the most active man in the company. The feeling of the directors is that we should go right ahead, regardless of anything which has happened in the federal courts. There will be arguments on demurrers perhaps within a week."

A CARGO OF SUGAR

Worth $700,000 Reached Boston Last Night

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—More than $700,000 worth of sugar floated into the harbor last evening in the hold of the British steamer Imani, Capt. Penberthy, from ports in the island of Java.

All hands were glad that the long passage was ended, for there had been sickness among the crew and two of the Lascar sailors were down with beri-beri and were taken off at quarantine by the health boat Vigilant. They will be kept at Gallups island until they recover.

Since the steamer left Tjilatjap on July 30 the value of her cargo has increased $150,000. The officers of the steamer appeared very much elated when they learned of the sharp advance in sugar.

Capt. Penberthy, the commander of the big freighter, said his vessel had steamed 26,000 miles since she left England in April. She went to Rio Janeiro and, after discharging, went to Java, where she loaded 13,207 baskets and 21,022 bags of sugar. On the way to Boston the steamer encountered very fair weather up to four days ago, when she struck into easterly gales and very heavy seas. The decks were buried most of the time and the greatest care had to be exercised by the men to keep from being swept overboard.

The Imani came to anchor in the stream and this morning she will proceed to her discharging berth at the refinery wharf in South Boston. Uncle Sam will be about $250,000 richer when the duty on the cargo is paid.

AERONAUT INJURED

He Attempted a Double Parachute Drop

HARTFORD, Sept. 20. — Edward Berlinger of Woonsocket, R. I., an aeronaut, is reported this morning as in a very critical condition at St. Francis' hospital in this city as a result of injuries suffered when he fell late yesterday at the Rockville fair grounds while attempting a double parachute drop.

Prof. Marsh, another balloonist, was slightly hurt in an attempted triple drop from the same balloon. Berlinger cut loose first and when nearing the ground attempted to use his second parachute. Owing to his proximity to earth, however, the parachute failed to open and he was dashed to the ground, where he lay unconscious. He was brought to this city and an examination at the hospital showed that his spine was injured, his left shoulder broken and several ribs fractured.

BROKE INTO A BANK

PETERBORO, N. H., Sept. 20.—A small amount of stamps and a small sum of money stolen from the post office here composed the booty which burglars collected in a raid on the village of East Jaffrey some time last night. They entered the Monadnock national bank and broke the knob off the safe but did not reach the cash. It is thought the bank was the last place visited, as burglars' tools were found there and it is thought that the men were frightened away by fear of discovery before they completed their work. The post office is in a general store, to which entrance was gained through a window. The post office safe was wrapped in horse blankets stolen from a nearby livery stable and blown open with nitro glycerine. Nothing was taken from the store. Some of the tools used by the burglars and found today in the bank had been stolen from a local blacksmith shop. The authorities are inclined to think that the burglars came and went in an automobile, as fresh tracks of auto wheels were found today in the vicinity of the store and bank and on a road leading toward Monadnock mountain. A posse today began a search for the men.

INSANITY PLEA

Set Forth in the Case of Melvin

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—At today's session of the trial of Edward Melvin, charged with murder in the second degree of John W. Carey in Charlestown, John J. Bresnahan, mate on the U. S. S. Wabash, identified the pistol with which it is alleged Carey was shot as one which he had sold to Melvin some time before the shooting. Bresnahan testified that Melvin was an excellent marksman.

That the defense would attempt to prove that Melvin was weak mentally and that he was under the influence of drink at the time of the alleged crime was shown when Dr. Breman Benner was called as its first witness. The physician said that the excessive use of liquor, as testified to, would weaken the defendant's self control. He then attempted to show that there was insanity in Melvin's ancestry.

A delightful entertainment program was carried out during the evening, which was enjoyed by all present. The program was as follows: Piano selections, Miss Blanche Jodoin. Miss Margaret McCormick and Mr. George Laurier; whistling solos by Mr. Robert McManus and Mr. James McNally; song, "All Alone," by Mr. Fred Mulver; recitation by Miss Elizabeth Catterall; song, "All That I Ask Is Love," by Miss Mary Carroll. The party dispersed at a reasonable hour, all wishing Miss Glynn luck and happiness in her new life. Refreshments were served.

"BATTLING" NELSON

Was Given the Decision Over Billy Nixon Last Night

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—Fifteen seconds after the start of the 10th round in the bout between Battling Nelson, ex-lightweight champion, and Billy Nixon of Cambridge, at the Armory A. A. last night, Referee Sheehan parted the boxers and sending both to their corners, declared Nelson the winner.

The referee did the right thing, for Nixon had no chance and would have probably been knocked out before the round ended.

The battle that Nelson put up did not show he was a come back, but it will take a rugged fellow with a good punch to whip him.

The Battler did not box fair, according to the rules. Nixon was examined by a physician after the bout and it was shown that Nixon had been hit low in the ninth round.

The referee declared that the punch referred to was fair. There were those at the ringside who thought otherwise. Nelson, however, had Nixon beaten, but the latter might have gone through the 12 rounds had he not received the punch.

Nixon showed poor judgment in the way he boxed. Instead of stepping around, he preferred to take Nelson at his own style, which is at close quarters.

Did Not Mind the Blows

The Battler did not mind the blows and kept coming all the time till he got Nixon to clinch. Then the Battler got his arms working. He kept driving short rights and lefts into the body, to the kidneys and up to Nixon's face. In the third round one of the rights caught Nixon on the eye and put that optic out of commission. It proved a big handicap to Nixon.

While the Battler missed many times with his stiff right and left-arm swings he landed many of them on Nixon's face. He also sent Nixon's head back many times with straight lefts on the mouth and nose. Often, however, Nixon landed some good counters with both hands to the face and jaw.

Several times the hopes of Nixon's friends were raised by the fast attack he made on Nelson's jaw and face with both hands. Several times Nelson wobbled for an instant.

Nixon was continually advised to keep out of the clinches, but he did not pay a great deal of heed to it. In the clinches Nelson did not forget to resort to his old trick of rubbing his hair in his opponent's face. Once he grabbed Nixon by the nose and wrung it.

The body punching that Nelson had been handing out to Nixon began to show its effect after the fifth round. Nelson, evidently, too, felt the hard work, for he was continually working to get his right over on the jaw for a knockout. A number of times he succeeded in getting it over, but it landed too high to bring about the result he sought.

Nixon Grows Weaker

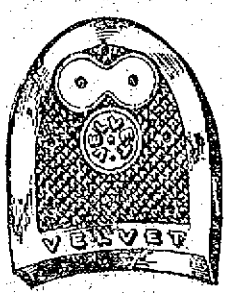

Up to the ninth round Nixon continued to get weaker, although occasionally he made a spurt and dashed in with a right or left to the face or jaw. He could not stop the Battler, however, who kept forcing him about the ring, sending stiff jabs and swings to the face and jaw. Nixon did more clinching only to get more punishment.

That Nixon was certain to be defeated was evident to the fans, but they figured he would go the limit. Near the close of the ninth round, Nixon went into a clinch, and when the referee ordered them to break Nixon had his left arm around Nelson's neck. He started to pull it away when Nelson whipped over the stiff left-hand blow that is claimed to be the low one.

The minute's rest in his corner did not help Nixon any and when he answered the sound of the bell for the 10th round he was in a bad way. The battler started in to finish up the job and was in a fair way of doing so when the referee stopped the contest and declared Nelson the winner. The battler looked and acted as fresh as when he started and made a short speech.

A FAST ELEVEN

PROMISED AT THE HIGH SCHOOL THIS YEAR

The second day of football practice by the candidates for positions on the High school football team was held yesterday afternoon at Washington park under the supervision of Coach Mahoney. There was an increased attendance yesterday, and it is the opinion of those who have watched the candidates work that Lowell should have a fast team this year.

Yesterday the back line candidates were given starts and dashes of five and ten yards, stop watches "clocking" the young men.

BOYS DISAPPEARED

NASHUA MAN SAYS HIS MONEY ALSO IS MISSING

NASHUA, N. H., Sept. 20.—The police last night stated that Joseph Salman, who lives on a farm on the Pine Hill road, three miles from the city, reported that $400 was missing from his house.

He wished the police to find two boys, one of whom worked on the farm. The other came to visit him and the pair were left alone in the house. When the family returned the boys had disappeared and the money, which was between the matresses of a bed, was gone. Mr. Salman got the money to pay a mortgage on the place.

The boys are Joseph Kissell, who lived in School street, and Michael Nefallvigh, who lived in Pattens court. The lads, who are each about 15 years old, were traced to Haverhill, where one has relatives, but disappeared from that city before being overtaken.

SERIOUSLY INJURED

REV. J. F. GILLIS WAS RUN OVER BY AN AUTO

BURLINGTON, Vt., Sept. 20.—Rev. J. F. Gillis, V. G., rector of the cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, was seriously injured yesterday when he was run over by an automobile driven by Miss Anna Reynolds of South Willard street.

Fr. Gillis was rushed to the Fanny Allen hospital, where his injuries were found to consist of several bad gashes about the face and head. The wounds were dressed at the hospital and the patient was reported last night as resting comfortably.

The accident occurred near Hoods crossing in the village of Winooski. Fr. Gillis was riding a motorcycle, which he uses to make his parish calls, and was going toward the Fanny Allen hospital. When nearing the Hood crossing he attempted to turn out to avoid striking a workman who was on foot. The roadway is steep at this point and in turning out Fr. Gillis lost control of his machine and fell.

The automobile driven by Miss Reynolds was following close behind and had gathered some speed in order to make the steep hill. Before Miss Reynolds could turn her machine aside the front wheel passed over Fr. Gillis' face.

LOWERS THE RECORD

Peter Thompson Made a New World Mark at Detroit

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—In a brilliant contest, Peter Thompson won the trotting division of the Matron stakes at the state fair track yesterday and in so doing reduced his own world's record for 3-year-old trotting geldings to 2.08¼.

Three heats were necessary, Atlantic Express having won the first one by a superb sprint through the stretch, while Peter Thompson beat him by a head in the same sort of a finish in the second.

The third heat saw Atlantic Express in front at the end, but he had been caught beyond the distance by Peter Thompson and ran the last part, so the judges awarded the verdict to the colt, which had stuck to his gait.

Each of the heat winners took a race record of 2.08¼, and as the track and day formed a condition that many experts estimated cut off two seconds, the exhibition of speed was impressive.

Another feature was the dropping of the red flag in the face of Thomas H. Murphy, who has won nearly all of the stakes of consequence this year. This occurred in the $5000 event for 2.11 pacers, in which Sir R was the logical favorite. He jumped in the Chamber of Commerce stake and he did it again yesterday, falling so far back that he could not beat the distance. Murphy, however, won the first race on the card with Charley Mitchell, who had the speed of the party.

Atlantic Express Drew the Pole

The 2.11 pacing event went to Hal B Jr. and the Canadians profited thereby.

The trotting division of the Matron stakes was third on the card. Mainleaf, which beat Miss Stokes, was a strong favorite and brought $100 in pools of $190 in which Atlantic Express sold for $45 and Peter Thompson $10.

Atlantic Express drew the pole, while Mainleaf was on the outside. At the quarter Margaret had half a length on Mainleaf, and Atlantic Express was several lengths back, and Jack Swift lapped him.

The filly was leading as they passed the three-quarters, with Mainleaf hanging on and Atlantic Express was lapped on Jack Swift. Mainleaf and Margaret Parish raced their limit in the stretch.

The fast first half was telling, and bringing Atlantic Express up on the outside, Dickerson gave that colt a drive for his life, catching the others two yards from the end and beating them half a length.

In the second heat Margaret led Atlantic Express to the quarter with Mainleaf, Margaret Parish and Peter Thompson in close attendance. The order was much the same as the half in slower time than in the other heat. On the far turn Mainleaf began to drop back, Peter Thompson coming to him.

Atlantic Express was leading halfway down when Peter Thompson began to step and in a superb burst of speed gained at every stride, getting to Atlantic Express in the last few yards and beating him by a head in 2.08¼, a new world's record for 3-year-old trotting geldings.

In the third heat Atlantic Express was leading in the stretch with the bunch close behind him. Peter Thompson drew up at the seven-eighth and was within striking distance. As he collared Atlantic Express inside the distance that colt made a tired break under the drive and ran to the end in front.

The $5000 event for 2.11 pacers brought but only four, and Sir R sold at more than 2 to 1 over the others. Just after passing the half Sir R made a desperate break, and in a few seconds the others had swept by. Murphy had to bring him to a standstill to get him righted. Zulu Hal kept on, but at the head of the stretch Hal B Jr. whizzed by, winning easily. Sir R had paced very fast, but what slight chance he had went glimmering when he made a second break in the stretch, and the red flag fell. Hal B Jr. had the race to himself after this.

Cox tried at different points with Branham Baughman, but he could not reach. Hal B Jr. paced the second quarter of the second mile in 30¼s and the last in 30½s, pulled up. He went the first quarter in the third mile in 30s.

Miss De Forest defeated a select company in the Matron stake for pacers. The purse distribution was: Miss De Forest, $1075.94; Olive O'Beirne, $448.44; Fred De Forest, $269.06.

DR. HOLMES, HEAD OF MOVEMENT TO REDUCE MINE FATALITIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The great conference of miners at Pittsburg during the last week of October to discuss methods of reducing the fatalities in mine accidents will, from all indications, be attended by no less than 30,000 men. President Taft will deliver an address. Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the United States bureau of mines, originated the idea of the conference, and is now working on the plans to make the meeting one of pronounced value.

THE WATER BOARD MET

Looked Over the Plans for the New Pumping Station

The water board held a long meeting last night. The board looked over charts describing buildings for the new pumping station at the boulevard and considered a raft of petitions.

The charts for the new pumping station were received from F. A. Barber of Boston. One of the charts were accepted, and it was voted to have specified plans drawn up within the next two weeks and presented to the board, so that work might be begun on or before Oct. 15. A letter from Mr. Barber stated that the station would be completed by the end of the year if begun on that date.

The board decided not to begin any of the proposed concrete work on the new reservoir until next spring, but to have the work of excavation begun and completed as soon as possible, so that the construction of the reservoir might be started early in the spring.

There was a petition by Fred W. Holmes for 200 feet of piping to be laid from Stevens street to Preston avenue, where he is constructing a new house. The board voted a view of the premises.

Mr. O'Neil requested that a pipe be laid from Weed street to Stromquist avenue. The board decided to view this property, also, at some early date.

Mr. George F. Libboy petitioned the board for a rebate on a bill which he claimed called for more than should have been charged, the question arising from a leak in the city pipe which was not discovered until much water had been wasted. It was voted to grant a rebate of $35 on the bill in question.

Patrick Owens petitioned the board for 150 feet of pipe, to be laid from Stevens street to Lake avenue. Mr. Owens is building a house on that avenue. It was voted to instruct the commissioner to view the property and report the matter to the committee at the next meeting.

Property which was recently seized by the water board brought a protest from Albert Winslow & Co. of Boston, from the fact that two corner lots were not taken, but were not so valuable as formerly on account of the wells being sunk in the next lot. Robert Ellis represented the company and said that it was anxious to sell these two lots with the rest of the property. The committee agreed to look into the matter and visit the lots.

A petition to lay water pipes from Stevens street through Fairfax park, and also from Fairfax street through Highland avenue to Waite street was presented by Eugene G Russell. Mr. Russell recently purchased the property from Shepard & Fuller and, as it includes 15 lots that are soon to be built on, he is anxious to have the matter considerd. The committee voted to view the district before taking definite action in regard to the laying of the proposed water system.

Mr. Byam, of Byam Bros., appeared to ask the board to consider the matter of buying a shanty belonging to one Caronious, whose property on the boulevard has been recently seized for the construction of the new wells. The matter was laid on the table until after the committee had seen the property and the lumber.

DENTAL SOCIETY

TENDERED FAREWELL BANQUET TO DR. KINNEY

Dr. E. E. Kinney, who leaves soon for Vancouver, B. C., to practice his profession, was tendered a banquet at the New American hotel last night, by about a score of members of the Lowell Dental society, of which he is a member.

All sat down around the table shortly after 7 o'clock and after an excellent menu had been discussed Dr. Hugh Walker, acting as toastmaster, called to order. Dr. V. E. Darling made a short speech in which he reviewed Dr. Kinney's work in this city and told of the high esteem in which the doctor was held by the fellow members of his profession, presented the guest of the evening with a handsome picture of the forum in Rome. Dr. Kinney responded in an appropriate manner, after which short speeches were made by those present.

Dr. Kinney has practiced in this city for 14 years and is considered one of the best dentists in this city.

TERRACE GABLES

FASHIONABLE HOTEL AT FALMOUTH RAIDED

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The fashionable Terrace Gables at Falmouth, one of the largest hotels on Cape Cod, was raided yesterday by representatives of the Law Enforcement league, and from evidence secured, a warrant was granted by Judge Frederick C. Swift, charging Proprietor Draper of the hotel with the illegal sale of liquor. It is expected that the warrant will be served today, and that the case will come up for trial Friday in the Barnstable district court.

Hundreds of the summer guests of the hotel were about at the time the representatives of the league, disguised as yachtsmen and golfers, entered the hotel in search of evidence. In this they had little difficulty, according to James Ray, a private detective in the employ of the Law Enforcement league, who with Felix W. McGettrick, attorney for the league, made the trip to Falmouth and return by automobile. "We obtained clear evidence of the sale of cocktails, rye whiskeys, gin fizzes and other liquors," he said, "and downstairs our men bought liquor at the bar, besides seeing other sales." Ray swore out the warrant.

GENERAL TREPOFF

Man Who Protects Jews From Mobs

KIEV, Russia, Sept. 20.—To General Trepoff, one of the sternest military men in the Russian empire, has devolved the task of preserving order in districts where disturbances are threatened owing to the death of Premier Stolypin from an assassin's bullet. Reports of threatened massacres in the Jewish districts of the big cities are frequently heard, as Stolypin's assassin, Bogroff, is a Jew, but, according to the authorities, every possible precaution will be taken to preserve the lives of the natives.

That was a frightful accident that occurred at the grounds of the state fair in Syracuse, N. Y., when an automobile going at high speed left the course and dashed into a crowd of people, killing ten outright and wounding many others. This is one of the results of the prevailing high speed mania that revels in such dangerous contests. What occurred at Syracuse might occur at any of the automobile races where the people line up in dense masses along the course if an accident turns a machine from its course. The drivers are usually the ones to suffer, but in the Syracuse accident the spectators were the victims. The people are now learning that the elevated seat on the grand stand either at auto or aviation races is none too safe.

THE PRESIDENT'S DEFENSE OF THE TRUST DECISIONS

The president's speech in defense of the supreme court decision in the trust cases, notably the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust, is an able argument from the legal standpoint and would doubtless have more influence on public opinion if the president were not on a political tour of the country. He argues strongly in favor of the construction of the Sherman law laid down by the United States supreme court when it decides that trusts that are not guilty of "unreasonable" restraint of trade are not guilty of violating the law. His whole speech is a plea for the "reasonable" construction of the act and against any amendment of the Sherman law. His challenge to Mr. Bryan and others to show any trust guilty of unreasonable restraint of trade that this law will not put out of business is immaterial. The Standard Oil company as a trust was put out of business nominally, but reduced to its component parts it is conducting its business the same as ever. The various branches can act on a private understanding instead of all acting as a united whole. President Taft in this speech, however, puts the decision in the best possible light. The whole address has the judicial tone and the smooth and polished diction so characteristic of all the president's legal utterances. In this address he puts forth all his legal ability and it is not improbable that the points made were adopted after consultation with the justices of the United States supreme court responsible for the recent decisions. But the president is responsible for his own utterances and this speech will stand as the strongest defense yet made of the position of the supreme court on the trust question.

THE RUSSIAN TRAGEDY

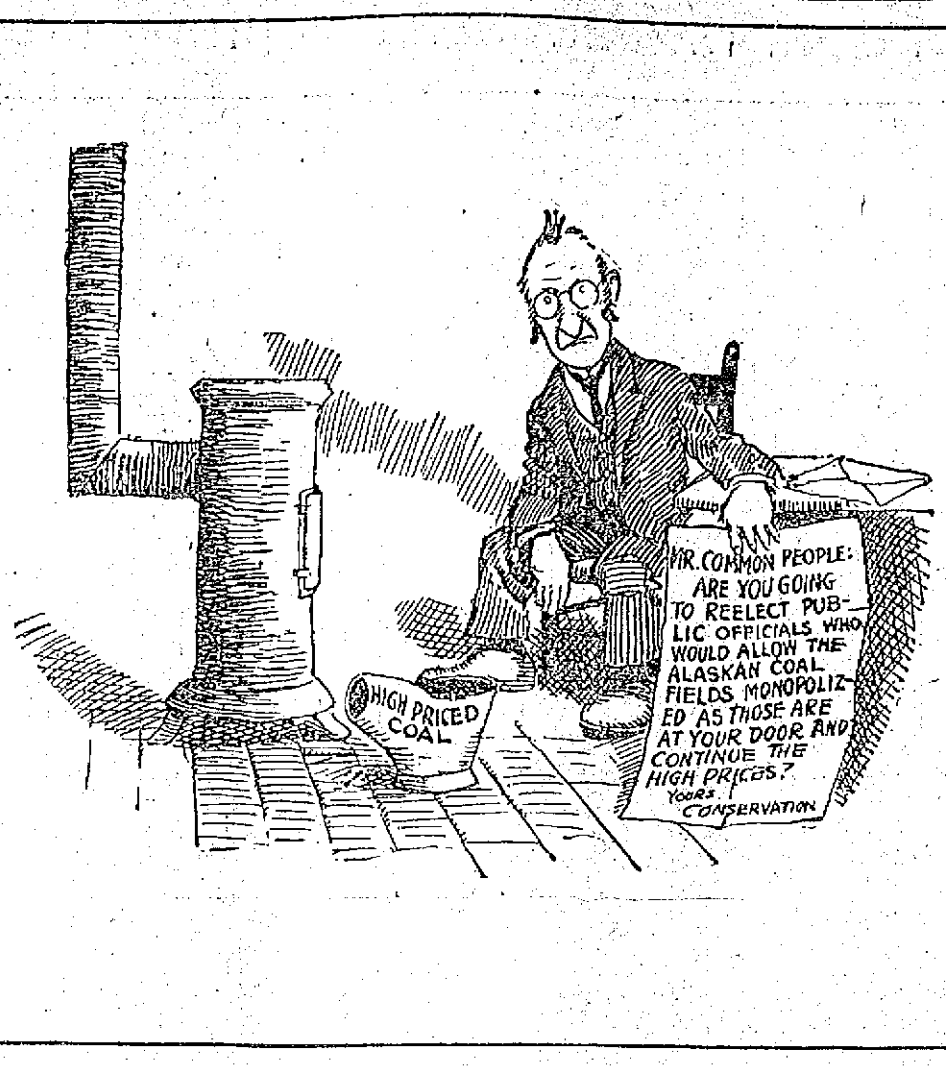

The Russian Premier Stolypin is dead, as a result of being shot at a theatre at Kiev last Thursday night. It appears that this act is the beginning of a new reign of terror in Russia. The revolutionists are determined to make more trouble, and it is rather surprising that the emperor who was present at the same performance was not also fired upon. The reforms that have been promised in Russia have miscarried to a great extent, and it is not at all surprising that some revolutionary movement lifts its head to combat the absolutism that seems to reign supreme in Russia. However just the cause of the people may be, their course cannot be approved when they resort to assassination, the dynamite bomb and other methods favored by anarchists and nihilists. The late premier was an able man, but if he had induced the emperor to promote reforms more generously instead of helping him to maintain despotic sway, regardless of popular rights, the situation today might be very much different.

It is true that Russia has a nominal constitution and that the douma has at least the privilege of expressing its opinions. One douma after another had to yield to the imperious will of the emperor and in every conflict Stolypin steered what he believed to be the middle course between reform and despotism. He restored order in a degree by the harsh application of force and he applied the death penalty so readily on the slightest appearance of resistance to the government that a large portion of the Russian people will rejoice at his assassination, cowardly and treacherous though it was. Russia has few men competent to fill the place occupied by Stolypin and it is not improbable that the revolutionists encouraged by his removal will endeavor to wreak their vengeance upon other high officials.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER'S GREAT BATTLE

The province of Quebec is said to be loyal to Laurier in his fight for reciprocity. This was demonstrated the other day when Henri Bourassa was howled down at a meeting in that province while attempting to follow Premier Laurier. Bourassa is a skilful speaker and has carried audiences with him on many occasions when the sentiment seemed strongly against him. He has been doing his utmost to turn the French Canadians against Laurier, but this rebuff at Saulanges in the heat of the campaign would indicate that Laurier is master of the situation. If the province of Quebec stands solidly with Laurier, it will be very difficult for the other provinces to beat him.

In spite of all the protestations of Mr. Laurier that reciprocity has no other motive than improved trade between the United States and Canada, his opponents hold out the annexation bogey and unfortunately they are able to quote some statements from publications on this side the border to give their charge the color of confirmation. These statements have been put out for the purpose of defeating reciprocity and it would appear that the high protectionists on this side the line, including the lumber trusts, have a finger in the pie. It was a paper representing the lumber interests that said this country will ultimately annex Cuba, Mexico and Canada. Premier Asquith, Chancellor George and other liberal leaders in England have expressed their utmost confidence in the honesty of purpose on the part of the United States in seeking reciprocity. They further assert that Canada is likely to gain fully as much from the change as would the United States. The battle is being bitterly fought and Sir Wilfrid Laurier for a man of seventy is making a noble fight. He is a wonderful campaigner and the greatest statesman Canada has seen for a generation. The Canadian opposition to Laurier is undoubtedly receiving assistance from the trusts and high protectionists of this country and all are combined to defeat reciprocity for which he is making such a vigorous fight. If he wins he will have vanquished immense odds by his own native ability. If he loses he will go down with flying colors, a victim of deceit, distortion and the corrupt use of money. The loss of reciprocity would be worse for Canada than for the United States and it would probably result in higher duties against Canadian imports than have formerly prevailed.

A TIMELY QUESTION

SEEN AND HEARD

In his book, lately published in the Hungarian language and translated into almost every modern tongue, Dr. Lorand says that from recent reports of the register offices of Austria, Germany, be able to prolong the lives of many are justified in assuming that though life is usually limited to 55 or 60 years it may occasionally be prolonged to 100, or even more, by the operation of certain internal and external agencies.

By studying these, we may eventually be able to prolong the lives of many individuals beyond 80 or even 90, and to prolong our term of youthfulness by 10 or 20 years. We need no longer grow old at 40 or 50. This can be brought about by improving the functions of a certain few of the glandular structures of the body, provided one or more of the main organs have not already been too gravely compromised by incurable organic disorders.

To prevent old age coming on too soon, the first condition necessary is the possession of healthy ductless glands (chief among them being the thyroid, the adrenals, the pancreas and the liver), and this depends upon heredity.

Marriage is an invaluable aid in the struggle against old age. If married life is one of the best means of resisting the approach of old age, on the other hand, it is positively certain that unhappy marriages are the surest means of hastening its oncoming.

To avoid premature old age and early death we have to follow the rules:

Do not take too much meat, because abundance of meat alters the ductless glands.

Take large quantities of milk, this being the extract of various glands, and especially that of the thyroid.

Be as much as possible in the open air, and especially in the sunshine; and take plenty of exercise, taking care to breathe deeply and regularly.

Take a bath daily, and, in addition, once a week or every two weeks take a Turkish or vapour bath.

Wear porous clothing, light hat, and low shoes.

Go early to bed and rise early.

Sleep in a very dark, very quiet room and with a window open; and do not sleep less than 6 nor more than 7½ hours.

Have one complete day's rest in each week, without even reading or writing.

Avoid mental disturbances or worries.

Be temperate in the use of alcohol and also in the use of coffee or tea.

Avoid places that are overheated, especially by steam, and badly ventilated.

Replace or reinforce the functions of the organs which may have become changed by age or disease, by means of the extracts from the corresponding organs of healthy animals. But, of course, the application of this precept must be adapted to the individual case

Sir: The rather remarkable poem, or fragment, given below is taken from a volume published recently in London entitled "The Pillow Book." No author is given credit, and search has so far failed to find one. A thought so striking, so well expressed and so much a part of the philosophy of so many high minds ought not to remain long anonymous as to authorship.

Media, Pa., May 20, 1911.

"GOD AND I"

God and I in space alone,
And nobody else in view,
"And where are the people, O Lord?" I said,
"The earth beneath and the sky o'erhead,
And the dead whom once I knew"

"That was a dream," God smiled and said,
"A dream that has ceased to be true.
There were no people, living or dead,
No earth beneath and no sky o'erhead,
There was only Myself and You!"

"And why do I feel no fear," I said
"Meeting you here this way?
For I have sinned I know full well,
And is there heaven, and is there hell,
And is this judgment day?"

"Nay, those were but dreams," the great God said,
"Dreams that have ceased to be.
There are no such things as fear and sin,
And you yourself—you have never been;
There is nothing at all but Me."

WHEN MY SHIP COMES HOME

If all my ships come home, my dear,
Deep-laden from bottom to deck,
I'll buy you bright diamonds to hang on your ear
And rubies to twine round your neck;
No queen shall be fine as this lady of mine
If all my ships come home.

If half my ships come home, my dear,
We'll travel to look for the rest;
The near shall be the far and the far shall be the near,
You shall journey in state, love with me for your mate,
If half my ships come home.

If one of my ships comes home, my dear
With a garden to work in all through the sweet year,
And roses to pluck at your will.
If one of my ships comes home.

But if none of my ships come home, my dear,
If all of them sink in the wave
Then, bankrupt, with nothing to forfeit or fear,
I'll bind me to service, your slave,
And proudly I'll take what you give for love's sake,
If none of my ships come home.—
—Stephen Gwynn in the Pall Mall Magazine.

BY A SPECIALIST

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well known fact, but when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many of the worst cases of catarrh and consumption, we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are, therefore, particularly pleased to give herewith the prescription which an eminent scientist states he has found, after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hairgrowth after years of baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you: 6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavona de Composee, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after standing half an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the fingertips. If you wish it perfumed, add half a teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. While this preparation is not a dye, it is unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color.

Before publication we presented this prescription to Riker-Jaynes Drug Co., of this city, and they state that they have filled it many times for their patrons who report most astonishing results from its use.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Chicago Evening Post: A political judge is a constant affliction to a community. A local bench is as strong only as its weakest link. If there is but one judge who places personal party obligations above justice and public duty, all cases involving politics invariably drift into his court. And there is then and there created new sentiment in favor of judicial recall.

The fact that the public notice is fixed upon the judiciary with unusual intentness, owing to the recall propaganda, is a potent argument in favor of the nomination of men who will make able and upright judges.

PRESIDENT MELLEN'S ASSURANCE

Fall River Herald: The assurance by President Mellen that nothing short of a "business cataclysm," which he does not foresee, will make it necessary for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company to reduce its annual dividend from eight per cent will be cheering to the thousands of investors in the railroad company's stock in this vicinity. Lack of business and increase of operating expenses have cut down the earnings of all the railroads, and for that reason the rumors that the New Haven road would reduce, following the reduction of the Boston & Maine dividend, seemed to have good foundation. President Mellen's recent announcement will dispell the uncertainty.

HEADED FOR THE DITCH

Boston Post: Perhaps the republican "machine" of Massachusetts is putting subterranean props under the candidacy of Mr. Frothingham; perhaps Senator Crane has whispered that Mr. White is a fine young fellow—yes, a very fine young fellow; perhaps Mr Lodge has sent a snake-skin of bullets to Mr. Walker. Perhaps a dozen or so of the charges and counter-charges, rumors and suppositions flying around the tripartite camp of the faithful are true.

What difference does it make, anyway?

Mr. White sourly accuses the republican bosses of trying to "put the party in a ditch," by their support of Frothingham. But it is not they who will do that particular act, but the people in November. The crowd seems headed for the ditch, no matter who drives.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK

Haverhill Gazette: The most important step in the development of the postal savings banks system is its extension to the four leading cities of the Union. The test of the value of the postal savings banks will be supplied in these cities, where there are dense wage-earning populations. Foreign-born persons aggregate in the four cities 1,850,000 and their savings sent abroad reach the great sum of $17,800,000. Every postmaster general for a score of years has called attention to the outgo of American money because of our refusal to adopt the postal savings bank system. The American congress cannot be accused of acting hastily in some matters.

LEDUC'S EXCUSE

Boston Globe: R. Leduc, Laurier's political opponent in Quebec, who was said to have withdrawn from the contest in favor of the premier, now comes forward to say that he did no such a thing. He alleges that he drank with strangers, got doped, and when he came back to consciousness found that he had signed his own resignation from the contest. We don't know how these things work in Canada, but if M. Leduc were running on this side of the line he would do just as well to resign anyway, after a confession like that.

WALTER SUYDAM JR.

REQUESTS HIS WIFE TO MARRY YOUNG NOBLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Stipulating that his young wife should first enter into an agreement to marry young Frederick Noble, the plumber's son, with whom she recently ran away from her home in Blue Point, L. I., Walter Lispenard Suydam, Jr. offered yesterday to free her by suing her for divorce.

Suydam, his millionaire father, and a lawyer called upon the young woman at the flat where she and Noble have been living and made the stipulation as an alternative to never having a divorce suit begun. They demanded also that the agreement be signed by Noble.

Previous to their arrival Mrs. Suydam complained of her husband's delay in starting divorce proceedings. She said she had no intention of going back to her husband and wanted a divorce immediately. Young Suydam had hoped for a reconciliation, but finding it hopeless began to consider the divorce situation.

His one thought, he announced, was that the future of his wife should be provided for.

CHELMSFORD

An important meeting of the voters of the town of Chelmsford was held Monday evening in the Centre town hall, the purpose of which was to discuss the question of a lighting system in the town. After considerable discussion on the question a vote was taken and by a majority of 30 it was decided to authorize the board of selectmen to enter into a contract with the Lowell Electric Light Corporation to light up the town irrespective of location, for a term of five years at a rate not to exceed $19.50 per light per year. An amendment to the effect that the price for East Chelmsford be $23.25 instead of $19.50 was defeated by a large majority who were willing, however, to contract for a five year contract over the entire town at the lower rate.

The question now is to find out how far the selectmen can go in the event of the Lowell Electric Light corporation refusing to lower their terms for the lighting of East Chelmsford. Can the selectmen enter into a five-year contract for a certain portion of the town and leave the remainder to be charged for under a yearly contract at a higher rate? Many voters claim that no authority has been given the selectmen to sign up the town for different rates and various periods of time. If that is the case, East Chelmsford, which section was the bone of contention, may find itself without any electric lights at all, unless the corporation sees fit to accept the terms of the voters. In the opinion of others, it would be possible for the selectmen and the corporation to sign the proposed contract at $19.50, with the elimination of the East section, but some doubt as to whether the majority of the board, in all fairness, would sanction such a course. The question has now become one of a complex nature, unless the Lowell Electric Light corporation is willing to accede to the terms as voted upon—a flat rate of $19.50 over the entire town. Otherwise, it looks as though no contract could be legally entered into, which would allow conditions to remain as they are for some little time longer.

FOWLER'S MOTHER

SAYS THAT HER SON WILL WIN BIG PRIZE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 20.—"My boy's going to win. I admire his nerve. He is a born birdman. I will not worry at all over his flight through space from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast. Why I am so happy over his grit that I am accompanying the special train across the continent that is following him." This tersely shows the grit of Mrs. Robert Fowler, mother of Bob Fowler, the California aviator who is flying a Cole motor equipped Wright biplane for a $50,000 prize.

Mrs. Fowler, a middle-aged motherly woman, full of American grit and keen for progression, is truly proud of her boy. She is confident that he will win and recalls incidents that have happened during his life to show "he was the one destined to make a successful cross country flight in an airship."

The big blue eyed chap who has worked unceasingly since last January preparing for the great flight loves his mother. He has asked her time and time again to tell him truthfully if she regrets the decision he has made. Each time the motherly face of the California widow has looked straight into the manly face of the son and said: "No Robert. You are sensible. You know what you are about. I have confidence in you. Mr. Cole, Mr. Henderson and Mr. Grundy also have confidence in you. Mother will not worry. Just go in and win."

The grit and determination of the mother is the talk of the western coast. She is admired for her spirit, for the western citizens know that the motherly confidence will do much to inspire the youth to victory.

Mrs. Fowler is solicitous because her son does not get what she believes is sufficient sleep. He is working day and night. When not on his plane or motor, he is taking sky observations. He does not, however, neglect proper nourishment, and this pleases his mother and C. Fred Grundy, his manager.

"When Bob was a youngster," his mother says, "he was always keen for kite flying. When four years old he fell from a four story window and was picked up unhurt. The first words from him were, 'mother the wind hurt me.' He was able to judge the speed of a ball through the air, and when playing the games with his companions he would stop and gaze at something that made his companions feel he was not right. When he came home he would propound the most peculiar questions about the air. He knew more about air currents than anyone I ever knew.

"From the first he was wild about flying machines. It seems as if he was born under an aviation star, if there is such a thing. It might be called hereditary, for our family throughout have been of an astronomical turn of mind. When driving an automobile he has shown an ability to determine things along the road before the machine reached the place that was wonderful. It was always the subject of comment among those riding with him. Many called it second sight, but neither Robert nor I believe such a thing. Then that argument would not hold good because it is only in matters where road or air conditions are concerned that my boy's mind is so acute."

Fowler is 28 years old. His home is at Gilroy, Cal. He is a graduate of Leland Stanford university.

POLYGAMY CHARGE

CAHILL ON TRIAL IN COURT IN LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Sept. 20.—In superior court yesterday Judge Brown sentenced Robert Peterson of North Andover to not less than two and a half and not more than four years in state prison for attacking a child.

Charles L. Corey of North Andover, for a statutory offence, was given not less than four and not more than five years in state prison.

Joseph Plouff of Salisbury was sentenced to nine months in the house of correction, and Thomas Hamel for four months for breaking and entering.

Patrick J. Cahill was on trial on a charge of polygamy. Evidence was offered that he married Mary C. Haggerty in Nashua, N. H., and deserted her in this city. He was found in Providence, where it is alleged he had a wife and three children. Defendant denied that he was legally married to the second wife. Both women were in court, the Providence woman with her three children.

MR. I. L. SHOWEM VISITS THE DOCTOR AND FINDS OUT WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH HIM

WIGGINVILLE SEWER

The Committee Could Not Agree on a Definite Plan

The committee on sewers met last night ostensibly for the purpose of arriving at something definite relative to the Wigginville sewer proposition and incidentally to juggle with other matters. The committee could not agree on a plan for the Wigginville sewer though it was stated that the members had agreed upon a sewer under the Concord river at a point on the premises of the American Hide & Leather company. Ald. Daly said that this was not the proper time to start so important a work and refused to sign the order already signed by Ald. Rountree to start the work. Ald. Jodoin, the third member of the committee, also refused to sign the order until certain promises had been obtained, in writing, from companies interested.

Another Chance, Boys!

Because of the demand for another chance to register for the state primaries, the registrars of voters have decided to hold an extra session on Friday night from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Widen Rogers Street

At a brief meeting of the streets committee held last night it was voted to recommend that Rogers street be widened from Knapp avenue to Boylston street, at an estimated cost of $700. It was also voted to recommend that the name of Merrill street be changed to Munroe street.

The Outing Committee

The outing committee met last night to take action on the invitation extended by the Manchester, N. H., city government to the local city fathers to visit the up-river community. An "inter-city athletic carnival" was proposed by the New Hampshire statesmen, which is probably intended to mean a baseball game.

The committee decided to suggest Thursday, Sept. 28, as the date on which the local members would find it most convenient for them to attend, and the clerk was advised to communicate with the up-state brothers and find out if the suggestion was agreeable.

Councilman Coughlin was unanimously elected manager-captain for the Spindle City representatives, and Clerk Dowling was appointed a subcommittee of one to look after transportation.

LEAKING GAS

CAUSED FIRE IN A BROCKTON HOME

BROCKTON, Sept. 20.—Thomas Madden of 22 Kingsman avenue heard a noise that sounded like one of his children falling out of bed shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday evening and, getting a lantern, went to the floor above to investigate. Suddenly there was an explosion and Madden found himself surrounded by flames. He jumped back and then ascertained that there was a leak in a gas pipe. The fire was quickly extinguished by Madden and neighbors. Madden's right hand was slightly burned. The damage to the house was slight.

CARS NOT RUNNING

Street Railway Men in Detroit on Strike

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—Fifteen hundred employes of the Detroit United Railway company went on strike this morning and no street car is running in the city. The men get 23, 25 and 28 cents an hour. They asked 25 and 30 cents an hour.

Last night the leaders of the local street car men's association took up headquarters in the Knights of Equity hall and as soon as crews finished their respective runs they marched to the hall. At dawn hundreds of the men still wearing their uniforms came marching in every direction toward the hall.

"Practically all of the men were at the meeting this morning," said one of the men. "There was not a dissenting vote on the strike proposition."

A great array of workmen early this morning found deserted car tracks. State fair officials were out early, worried about the conditions about the fair. With the big fair in progress and with thousands of people expected today and all the rest of the week it means to them a great loss.

Out of the 2400 men employed by the D. U. railroad 1700 are members of the association. The remaining 700 are men who have been employed by the company for less than 90 days and who are not entitled to membership until they have worked that length of time. The men assert, however, the 700 will go out.

BILLERICA

The board of selectment of the town of Billerica met in regular session on Monday night in the office in the town hall, and considerable business was transacted. It was expected that the board would elect a police officer to fill the vacancy caused by the death of late Police Officer Livingston, but the members failed to agree on a man.

Two ballots were taken, the vote on each being: Henry D. Livingston, 1; William J. Canning, 1. For Livingston, Selectman Sheridan; for Canning, Selectman Singhi; Selectman Sanford not voting. The police work at the Centre is at present being done by Chief Conway and Special Officer Livingston, the latter also having the care of the town hall, which is a part of the regular officer's duties. This arrangement will probably continue until the appointment of a permanent officer is made. During the session John Conley and William Ballington were drawn to serve as jurors at the coming term of the superior court, which sits Oct. 2.

The following were appointed to serve as election officers for the next year: Precinct 1, John Reardon, warden; Michael H. McElligott, deputy warden; Daniel J. Donohue, inspector; Alfred Lyons, deputy inspector; Clarence A. Bowman, clerk; Charles A. Wright, deputy clerk; Herbert A. King, inspector; Warren Holden, deputy inspector. Precinct 2: Natt H. Hutchins, warden; Frederick Waln, deputy warden; William B. Chambers, inspector; Joseph Brown, deputy inspector; Edward Riley, clerk; John J. McSweeney, deputy clerk; John Twomey, inspector; Bartholomew Hayes, deputy inspector.

BOSTON'S MAYOR

Hands Out Some Advice to Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Branding Chicago's union loop structure as a disgrace to the city and denouncing traffic conditions as shameful, John F. Fitzgerald, Boston's aggressive mayor, said yesterday that this city should expend $250,000,000 in the next ten years for the installation of a complete subway system and in driving the Illinois Central railway off the lake front downtown.

Mayor Fitzgerald is in Chicago to attend the international municipal congress. At his hotel he kept his family awaiting breakfast while he plunged into the subway question. Meantime delegates to the congress acknowledged him to be the greatest municipal expert in the country.

"Chicago's debt is a paltry sum compared with the indebtedness of other cities at home and abroad," said the mayor. "The city easily could expend $250,000,000 in installing a complete subway system and in wiping out the Illinois Central nuisance.

"I visited one of the busy downtown elevated stations at the evening rush hour. The wild scramble of men, women and children is a disgrace to the city. I would not think of permitting members of my family to become entangled in that crowd for a moment. It appears to me it is about time the city harkened to the cry of the strap-hanger.

"Boston has expended $18,000,000 in preliminary work on a system which will reach the outskirts of the city. I expect to sign an enabling act when a return which will permit the expenditure of $20,000,000 more. Ultimately, the subway will come under the complete control of the city.

"Chicago practically has no debt. You have unlimited money to spend for public improvements and any sum almost would be paltry compared to the proportionate indebtedness of other cities.

"This is a city of unequaled opportunities. I like your enterprise and public spirit. I like the big scale on which you do things.

"Without presuming to tell how to run Chicago affairs, I do believe that in failure to carry out plans for a subway the progress of the city has been hampered."

"DON" NICHOLS

FORMER HARVARD MAN TO WED A COUNTESS

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The engagement of John Donaldson Nichols, Harvard '06, and Countess Beatrice von Beylandt of The Hague, daughter of a member of the Dutch parliament, is announced. Mr. Nichols is the son of the Rev. Harry P. Nichols of New York, and was once half-back on the Harvard football team. He is known to Harvard men as "Don" Nichols. He was instructor in Groton school, where he prepared for Harvard, a short time, but is now in the mercantile business in New York.

DODGED THE VOTE

Senators Fled From the Senate Chamber

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 20.—During discussion of the Connecticut River Company's charter, which had just been passed in the house over the governor's veto, senators left the chamber yesterday and refused to return when sent for by the lieutenant-governor. Two senators were accused of having gifts made them ostensibly from the rest of the senators, but actually from other people.

Senator Hooker of Hartford offered a resolution to the effect that lawyers and and lobbyists in the employ of the Connecticut River company be excluded from the floor and the ante-rooms. He said: "I wish to voice my disgust at the action of lawyers and lobbyists employed by the company. They have caused senators to be absent when their case has been in doubt. They walk in and out among us and tell us what to do. Was there ever a state in such disgrace? The senator from the 35th district (Stiles Judson, Republican leader of the senate) is above corruption, but he was influenced by them. We all recall the picture a few days ago when these lawyers stood on both sides of him at his desk over there during the debate and dictated the only amendment we are allowed to pass."

The point of no quorum was raised. Senators sent out into the corridors to bring in others were unsuccessful. After a recess the chair was asked to have the doors locked. Senator Spellacy said that he would go out whether the doors were locked or not, but he was willing to stay until 7 o'clock in order to vote. A few minutes later he disappeared.

Senator Mahan of New London said that 48 hours after the passing of the franchise to the Connecticut River Company it would be sold to parties outside the state.

Senator Hooker, a member of a committee that bought loving cups for senate officers, said that at a recent dinner given by Senator Mahan substantial gifts were made to Senators Spellacy and Barnum. Afterward some other senators, he said, demanded the committee the reason for spending money for those gifts. "We explained," he continued, "that the committee did not buy those gifts with money collected of the senators. The gifts were engraved as coming from the senate. They did not come from the senators as represented by the contributors."

Adjournment then was taken.

FIRE IN BILLERICA

Caused a Loss That is Estimated at $1200

The cottage on High street, North Billerica, owned by Allan Bottomley and occupied by Henry Lutender and family, was practically destroyed by fire last night. The main part of the building was gutted but the ell was saved. The loss is estimated at about $1200, which is covered by insurance.

The fire had its origin in one of the sleeping rooms on the second floor, and is thought to have been due to a defective chimney. The blaze spread rapidly and when discovered the whole upper portion of the house was afire.

The North Billerica fire company was summoned and the apparatus responded quickly and did effective work but the flames had reached such proportions before the department arrived that it was found impossible to save the main portion of the building.

FORMER PRISONER

WOMAN SAYS HE IS NOT HER SON

NILES, Mich., Sept. 20.—Almost the entire population of Niles met at the railroad station yesterday the prisoner from Auburn, N. Y., who represents himself to be George A. Kimmel, the son of Mrs. Stella Kimmel, but who she denounces as an imposter trying to deprive her of $25,000 insurance which she held on the life of her son, who, she asserts, is dead.

Up to late last night crowds thronged the station expecting to see the prisoner who says he lived here 13 years ago. Meantime, secluded in her little home, Mrs. Kimmel, who is 70 years old, bitterly denounced the expected visitor.

"He is not my son," cried Mrs. Kimmel yesterday in unison with her daughter, Mrs. Edna Kimmel Bonslett. "My son died long ago and this is only a weird trick to rob me of the insurance."

The real Kimmel is said to have left here 13 years ago. Evidence came later suggesting that he had died, and the insurance money was asked for. The insurance company is then said to have expended thousands of dollars in running down a theory that Kimmel did not die. He was traced to Arkansas, Kan., where, so far as his family profess to know, he was last seen.

Then a man answering the description of Kimmel was found in a dazed condition in St. Louis. He recovered in a hospital and later left for New York, where, under the name of Andrew J. White, he was arrested on a larceny charge. After more wanderings he was found in an asylum in New York, and afterward traced to Auburn penitentiary. This is the man who, the insurance company says, is the real Kimmel.

PACIFIC FLEET

WILL BE HELD IN SAN FRANCISCO FOR THE FAIR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—After having declined to postpone the cruise of the Pacific fleet to the Hawaiian Islands, on the ground that it would interfere with the efficiency of the navy, the navy department yesterday took an "about face" and ordered the vessels detained until after President Taft's visit to San Francisco, Oct. 14, to attend the groundbreaking ceremonies of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. This action, it is understood, was taken on instructions from the president.

The fleet was scheduled to sail for Honolulu Oct. 1. As the postponement of the trip for more than two weeks will bring the ships so close to the date for their fall target practice and manoeuvres, it is probable that the Hawaiian cruise will be abandoned.

Numerous petitions have reached the navy department, urging that the ships be held in California waters until after the exposition ceremonies. A week ago the department announced that this would be inadvisable as most of the vessels had been undergoing repairs for some time past and had had no opportunity for cruising, manoeuvres and target practice. As their detention, it was said, would work detriment to the efficiency of the fleet the requests were denied.

REFUSED WHISKEY

WOMEN SAID THEY WOULD NOT PAY BILL

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 20.—Because they could not have whiskey served with their lunch, two well dressed women started a small riot in the business centre Monday. After spending several hours shopping the women entered a restaurant and ordered an elaborate meal, including liquor.

"We do not serve bar orders to ladies unaccompanied by gentlemen," the waitress told them.

The women protested, but when they found the rules of the house could not be modified they left, refusing to pay the bill.

The proprietor of the restaurant followed to the street. The women ran, and the proprietor and a policeman gave chase, followed by 300 men and boys. After going three blocks the women were surrounded by the crowd. The policeman told them they must pay the bill or submit to arrest. They paid.

LOCAL POLICE BOARD

Granted a Few Minor Licenses Last Night

The board of police met in regular session last night but the meeting was a comparatively short one.

The principal business before the body was the reading of the complaint brought by Martin F. Cashman against Frank C. Surprenant, licensee of the New Merrimack hotel. In the complaint Cashman alleges that while on the premises occupied by the licensee he was assaulted by Surprenant and employes of the latter and when he threatened to use his legal rights against Surprenant that the latter caused him to be discharged from the position he then occupied.

It was the opinion of the members of the board that the complainant should have brought the matter before the court or bring civil suit, but in order to ascertain the merits of the complaint Supt. Welch was instructed to make an investigation.

William J. Griffin applied for a billiards and pool license at 18 Adams street but inasmuch as J. Joseph Hennessy, acting for a client, remonstrated, action on the matter was deferred until Friday morning.

The following minor licenses were granted:

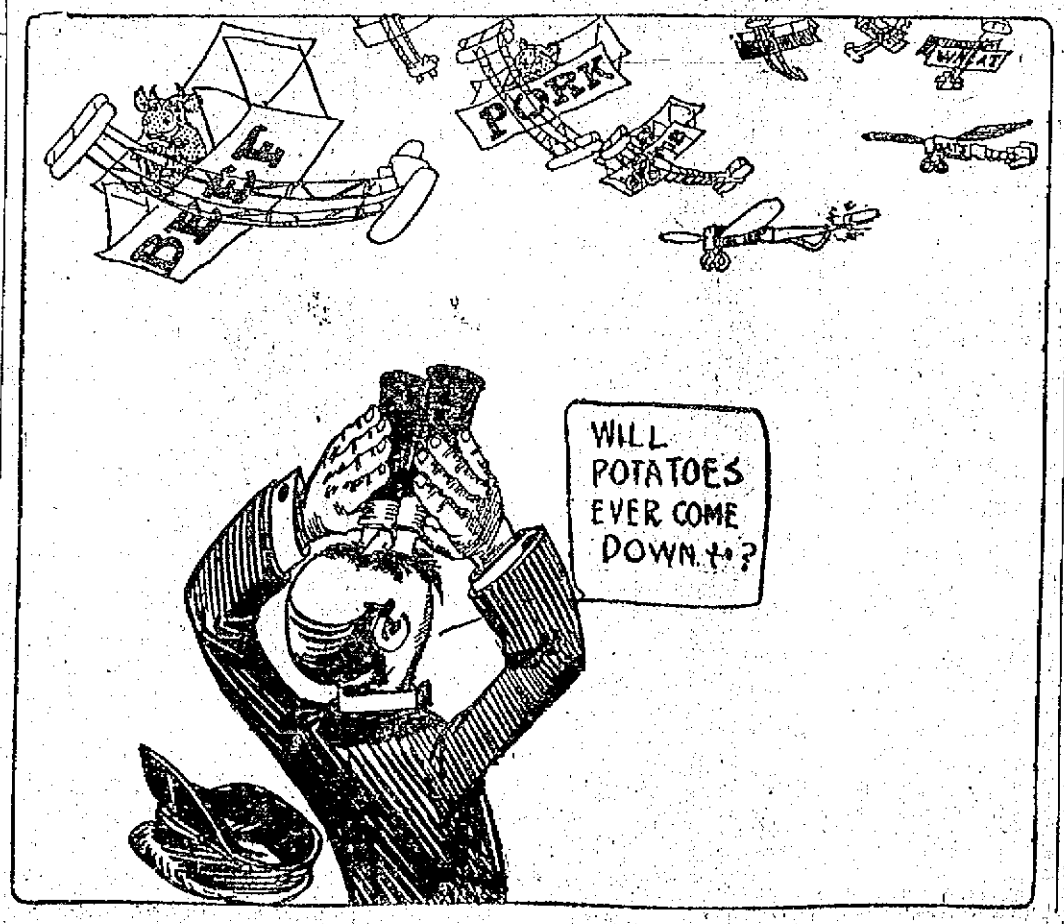

Second hand articles, Joseph Parmentier, 705 Aiken street. To sell ice cream, fruit, etc., on Sunday, Haralamtos Lowres, 20 Tremont street. Hawker and peddler, Simon Blavaski, 23 Davidson street.

Surrendered and cancelled: Druggist's sixth class license to sell liquor, William A. Burton, Hall & Lyon Co.; billiard and pool, James A. Dugdale, 359 Market street; Joseph A. Dumais, 386 Moody street.

MAKING ALTITUDE RECORDS

BOARD OF CHARITIES

Discussed the Necessity of an Automobile Ambulance

The board of charities met last night and discussed at great length the necessity of an auto ambulance. The matter was introduced by Commissioner Howe. Commissioner Coupe was opposed to the proposition and while the chairman, Dr. McCarty, believed that the ambulance auto was a necessity, he did not think that the board was going at it in the right way. Commissioners Burns and Ricard favored the proposition. It was finally voted to recommend to the appropriations committee a special appropriation of $5000 for an auto ambulance, Commissioners Howe, Ricard and Burns voting in favor and Commissioners McCarty and Coupe against.

The regular monthly report of Supt. Conley was submitted, showing a trifle above $4300 remaining with which to piece out expenses at the Chelmsford Street hospital for the remainder of the year. This sum will not more than carry through the month of September, and a call on the appropriations committee is scheduled for the immediate future. The figures submitted by Supt. Conley showed that the expenses of this year compared favorably with those of the year previous.

Supt. Conley reported that the meat which had been delivered at the institution of late had improved somewhat over what had been previously delivered.

On motion of Commissioner Ricard it was voted to visit the French-American orphanage in Pawtucket street, and also St. Peter's orphanage, on Thursday afternoon of this week.

When the matter of an automobile ambulance was introduced by Mr. Howe, Mr. Burns gave his hearty endorsement, and said he would vote for it. Chairman McCarthy said that he believed in an auto ambulance, but that it would prove rather indefinite to ask the city government for a sum of money to cover the proposed work without first finding out more of the detail, how the service should be conducted, where it would be placed and under what conditions it would be used. Mr. Coupe said that he knew in his own mind that such a proposition would be turned down by the city government, more especially when it is known that the department will soon be obliged to go before the appropriations committee and ask for money to pay the current expenses of the department for the last few months of the year.

Mr. Howe believed that something definite should be done at once. "I am sure we all realize," he said, "that as a board we are here to conserve and promote the interests of the people of this city in every way possible through this department. It is the duty, the responsibility and obligation of this board of charities to improve the service and increase the efficiency in the various branches of this department. One of the most important responsibilities which is ours, is the cares and supervision of the ambulance service. When we stop to consider the question of aiding the injured or saving human life through the present methods of our ambulance system, and if we become convinced that there is a way that the service can be improved upon, insuring a greater possibility in the saving of life, then it's the duty and obligation of this board of charities to put into effect, without delay, any improvement in the service that lies within its power.

There recently occurred on the Pawtucket Boulevard, a most unfortunate casuality, in which one person lost his life and several others were injured, and removed to one of our hospitals.

We have with much concern and interest read from day to day of the improved condition of one of the injured persons.

You let a man of prominence, or possibly a member of his family, meet with some fatality, and it is heralded far and wide by the public press, but let the person occupying some humble station in life meet with an accident and it's hardly mentioned.

This accident occurred three miles from the center of the city. The ambulance was called by phone and so was the Auto-fire-protective and they hastened with all possible speed to the scene.

Two men were found lying in the roadway in a pool of blood, and two or three others were lying about badly injured. The men with the Auto-protective arrived on the scene first. They placed the almost lifeless bodies of two men on the Auto-protective and then seeing the lights of the horse drawn ambulance coming in the distance, they waited until the ambulance arrived.

The injured men were transferred to the ambulance, the horses were turned about and started on a mad pace, and after another two miles hard drive, they pulled up to the hospital entrance.

I want to say right here, that I am a lover of horses and realize that even a horse has its limitations, and if it were an individual instead of a municipal body, that was forcing a horse on a dead run for several miles with a heavy wagon attached, that person would be brought before the court, charged with cruelty to animals.

We pride ourselves on being a humane board, but let us be consistent. Let us be humanely concerned in the horse as well as in the human being.

Nearly forty minutes were consumed from the time the accident occurred until the injured were placed upon the cots in the hospital where proper attention could be given them.

Now ,no matter how splendid may be our present horse-drawn ambulance service, there is one thing certain: that when an accident occurs in the suburbs or outskirts of our city, every sensible, logical, reasonable person knows that an auto ambulance can reach the place of accident in one-half the time that a horse-drawn ambulance will require. If an auto can reach the scene of accident a long distance away in one-half the time as can the horse-drawn wagon, then when a person who is injured, lies bleeding and dying, it's the duty of this board, with the responsibility of the ambulance service in our care to put into commission any improvement in the service which may aid in the saving of human life. A human life is a "human life" and we should have an ambulance service that would reach the place of accident in the quickest possible time to aid the person injured, whether he be the most prominent and influential citizen in our community, or the very most humble.

I have been opposed to installing the auto ambulance in this department unless it was proposed to do it right, and have an all-round up-to-date, efficient service, and being on the scene of that accident on the Pawtucket boulevard a few minutes after it happened that night, I made up my mind then and there that if there was anything that I could do to secure the quick service of an auto ambulance for the people of Lowell, it was my duty to do so. I am not going to propose a radical change in the system of the ambulance service at present. The auto ambulance must come in the near future, and the horse-drawn ambulance for emergency calls will be as much out of place as would the old horse cars if drawn through our city streets today.

I have always believed that the ambulance service for emergency calls should be under the police department control, but I am frank enough to admit that I am not in favor of this being done under our present political system.

This department is free from politics at present, and I am not in favor of having this important department of the board of charities, thrown upon the present political checker board to be tossed and pushed and pulled, and dickered and traded with, as is in nearly every instance where anything of importance is considered under our present political system.

If I had my way gentlemen, I would instruct our superintendent to cast aside all red-tape, and tomorrow morning put in a requisition for a first class auto ambulance for immediate delivery.

I would retain our present system for the time being. I would have that auto-ambulance placed in one of our garages, centrally located under the control of Dr. Sparks, and I would direct him that it should be used in long distance emergency calls, or whenever in his judgment it should be used.

Then to have the service what it ought to be, I would put on another ambulance doctor, pay him at least five hundred dollars a year and have the doctor on call for eight hours continuous service. The ambulance, in my opinion should never be sent out on an accident call without a doctor, and the doctor should be in that immediate vicinity to accompany the ambulance at all times.

Mr. Howe then made a motion to purchase an ambulance auto. The motion was seconded by Commissioner Burns and after some discussion it became a vote.

THE NEW PRIMARY LAW

Will be Given Its First Test Next Tuesday

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—The first trial of the new primary method of selecting candidates for the state election will take place in Massachusetts on Tuesday. In addition to a dozen aspirants for places on the state tickets of the different parties there are more than 7000 names for minor offices throughout the state, ranging from members of the governor's council and the legislature to town and ward committees.

General interest, however, centered in a three-cornered struggle for the republican nomination for governor by Louis Frothingham, Speaker Walker and Rep. Norman White. The renomination of Gov. Foss by the democrats is contested by Thomas Hisgen of Springfield, the presidential candidate of the Independence league three years ago.

Neither Gov. Foss nor Mr. Hisgen has done any campaigning, although the latter has spoken at a few autumn fairs. Mr. Frothingham, Mr. Walker and Mr. White have been actively at work for more than six months and during the past four weeks have visited nearly every city and town in the state seeking support.

While the primaries will be held in all the cities and towns on Tuesday in many of the little communities the polling of the vote will occupy but a few hours and will be carried on during the early evening. It is anticipated that about half the republican vote cast at last year's election will come out and about one-third of the democratic vote, and that owing to the evening voting the results will not be known until very late Tuesday night.

HARRY W. J. HOWE.

LEAVES HOSPITAL

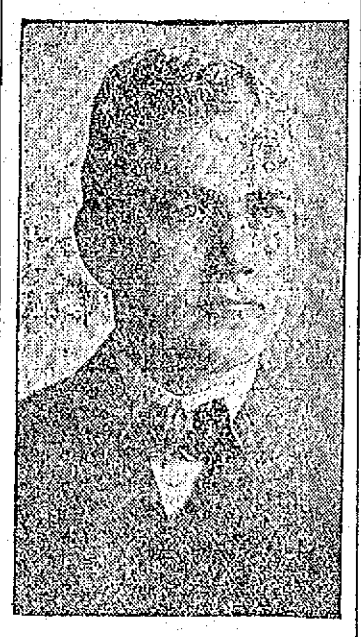

Fred H. Rourke Able to Return Home

Fred H. Rourke, the well known coal dealer, returned home yesterday afternoon from the Charles Choate Memorial hospital at Woburn, where he has been confined since a week ago today when he met with a very serious automobile accident. Mr. Rourke sustained very painful injuries, including fractured ribs, crushed shoulder and severe bruises about the arms and body.

A reporter for The Sun called on Mr. Rourke at the latter's home in Central street last evening. Mr. Rourke had made the trip from the hospital in Woburn to his home in an automobile. He was tired and suffering considerable pain when the reporter saw him, but he has good courage and tries hard to keep the bright side out. The doctors did not want him to leave the hospital, but he was anxious to get home and decided to take a chance. This is his busy season of the year in the coal business and he wanted to be in a position to keep in touch with the business. "I admire your courage," said the hospital physician to Mr. Rourke as the automobile left the hospital.

It will be some time before he will be able to be about again. While his condition is much better than might be expected under the circumstances, he suffers a great deal of pain and cannot move without assistance. He has some difficulty in breathing and to take a long breath is out of the question.

Despite all this, however, he is as optimistic as ever and says he's glad to be living. "I pulled out of a tight hole," he said, "and I'm thankful that I'm alive. I'm sorry it happened, but it was an accident, pure and simple. I presume I should have remained at the hospital a little longer, but I know that I could get good care at home and you know this is a very busy season of the year. At a long distance I would do more or less worrying but at home and knowing that everything is going along all right the worry is eliminated. My customers will not suffer at all on account of my mishap. They will receive the same treatment as though I were up and about and the business will go along just the same. Every order will be filled as promptly and cheerfully as though nothing had happened, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank my friends for their many kind inquiries during my stay at the hospital."

FRED H. ROURKE.

The men who were in the automobile with Mr. Rourke at the time of the accident, Messrs. Michael Lynch, George B. McKenna and Andrew J. Donohoe, and who were all more or less injured, are getting along all right. Mr. Rourke said to the reporter that it was a great comfort to know that his comrades had escaped without serious injury. "It was a narrow escape for us all," he said, "and I thank God that we were not killed."

BOY WAS KILLED

HE WAS RUN OVER BY AN AUTOMOBILE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—"Hitching" on a wagon cost the life of Frank McQuillan, thirteen years old, of New Rochelle, last night. He was struck and instantly killed by the automobile of Stanley L. Silver, a wealthy cloak manufacturer, of No. 10 East Thirty-sixth street, Manhattan, who was hurrying to his residence on Beechmont Drive, Beechmont.

The victim was the son of Daniel McQuillan, a member of the executive committee of the democratic city committee of New Rochelle. The McQuillans live on Summit avenue, New Rochelle. The boy was a favorite in his class in High school and was a promising athlete.

Silver, when he heard the boy was dead, ordered his chauffeur, Fred Wrieth, to drive to police headquarters, where he asked Police Captain Edward J. Timmons to hold him. The chauffeur later was paroled by Coroner Brennan in Silver's custody.

OF COURSE.

Mrs. Wise—Ah, Mrs. De Rich, when in Europe I suppose you took a trip up the Seine?

Mrs. De Rich—Oh, of course, and the beastly climb was fully made up for by the grand view from the peak, don't you know?

PERHAPS.

Men are nothing; principles everything.
But wouldn't men be something if they had more principle?

He and Jones.

"I HEARD this morning that Jones was dead," said Smith as he overtook Brown on the street.

"Yes, poor fellow."

"You knew him well, didn't you?"

"Over forty years."

"And he was a good man?"

"I never expect to find his equal. He was honest, just and truthful, and he has surely gone to his reward."

"Forty years, eh? And you never had a hard word between you?"

"Never. We were like brothers."

"Can you recall what first attracted you to him?"

"As if it were but yesterday. I had been up to Big Lake on a fishing trip, and had caught over 200 pickerel. When I got home and told of my luck—"

"No one believed you, of course."

"No one but Jones. He believed and embraced and we became friends, and—and—excuse this emotion, sir, but I must hurry along and make arrangements for the funeral."

SAILING THE SKY SEAS.

First Aviator—You had a lot of trouble on this trip, didn't you?

Second Aviator—Yes; I got into the trough of the breeze and couldn't get out.

That Home Run.

"YES, I'm a baseball enthusiast," said the insurance clerk, "and I got my wife to attend a game the other day for the first time in her life. When the game began I began to find things to holler about, but she sat there without the slightest enthusiasm. Once she remarked that she wished she had gone to a moving picture show instead, but I didn't say anything until Wiggs made his home run. Then I hollered to beat the band and begged my wife to holler with me."

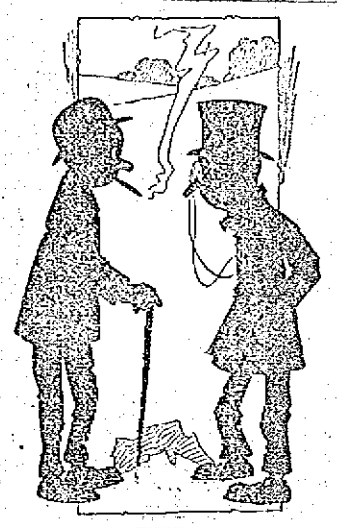

"'What for?'" she asked.

"'Why, for that home run.'" I replied.

"'Did he run home?'"

"'Slick and clean. It was great!'"

"'Well, if he ran home,' she said with a sigh, 'he must have had trouble with his wife, for there he is back again. Let's go home, Fred. We don't want to get mixed up in any family rows!'"

WISE.

I just bought my wife a new fall hat and had to hurry home before the style changed.

NOW-A-DAYS.

Turn around and let me see the back of it, dear. (Shortly)—Why, it's perfectly splendid!

The Girls of Yore

In the good old days of yore,
To Polly, and Molly, and Dolly, and Sue,

BUT I'm still heart-free, and it's simply due
To the fact that I can't wed four!

He Never Dies.

THE open car will vanish soon,
Like landscape in a fog;
And then, oh, friends, what will become
Of that 'ere street car hog?

For five long months and twice a day
In weather foul or fine;
You've seen him seated at the end,
A playing up the swine.

His weight has been two hundred pounds—
We've had to crowd and jam;
We've had to clamber o'er his legs,
And give his knees a slam.

But will it better us?
Will we no longer glare and glint,
And in good English cuss?

Don't bet we won't, ye weary souls,
There'll be no brighter skies;
The street car hog is sometimes ill,
But never, never dies.

The first closed car will see him there,
With that same porky smile;
Two hundred pounds—he fills two seats,
And feet across the aisle!

Fair Warning.

DO you think the President has injured his prospects by vetoing the free wool bill?" I asked of a farmer whom I found at the village postoffice.

"I dunno," was his reply.

"Perhaps you are not a wool-grower?"

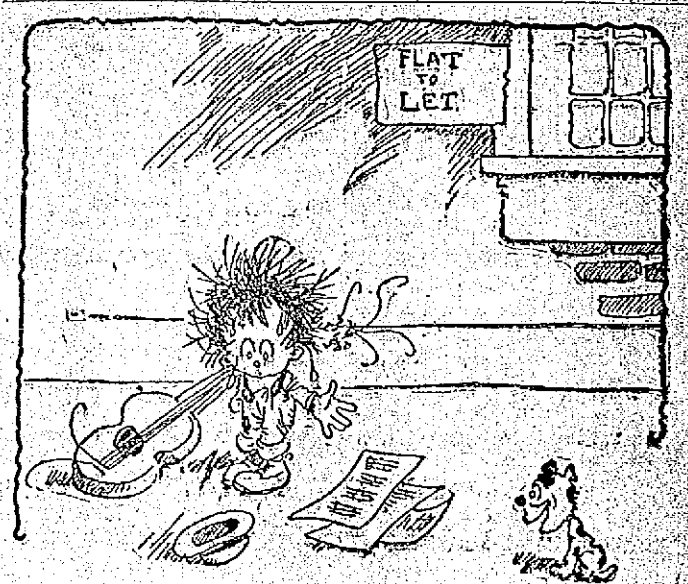

"No, hain't got no sheep."

"Then you can't be greatly interested."

"Indeed."

"I hain't carin' a durn what Mr. Taft does with wool, but I want him to distinctly understand that the minute he lays his paw on coonskins the farming community in this county will rise up and frizzle him to a frazzle!"

LOVE'S LABOR LOST.

The Musician: Well! If I ain't de prize goat! Here I been serenadin' me gall 'till I'm blue in de face, an' de family's done moved away!

ALL IN THE BUSINESS.

"I HAVE been in the retail grocery trade for the last ten years," said the man with the bad cigar, "and up to three months ago I had given all my orders to a certain drummer. I liked him and liked his house, and although other drummers came along and sought my trade I held steadfast. About a year ago, however, I did yield enough to promise a certain man that if anything happened to my favorite he should come next. He came into the store occasionally, but did no more soliciting. He said he was willing to wait, and felt that Providence would befriend him."

"And did it?" was asked.

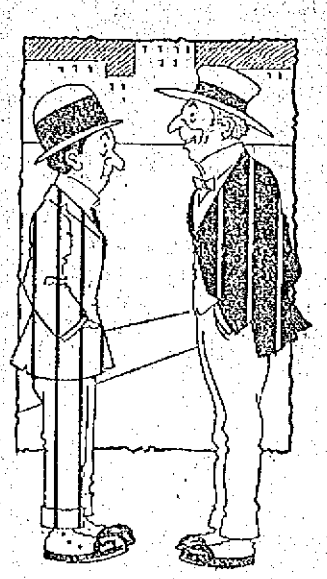

"You shall hear. About four weeks ago he and my favorite came to town on the same train. When they arrived at the depot a thunderstorm was raging and they were detained there. They were not ten feet apart when a thunderbolt struck the building, and queerly enough my favorite drummer was the only one killed. In the pouring rain, and with the lightning playing around his hat, the other man reached my store, gave himself a shake, and then pulled out his order book and said:

"'What shall it be today, Mr. Williams?'

"'But I order from Pete, as you know.'

"'I know you did, but you won't again. Pete has just been struck by lightning at the depot.'

"It may seem heartless," continued the grocer, "but business is business and can't be delayed, and I gave the enterprising man a $600 order and sent him on his way rejoicing."

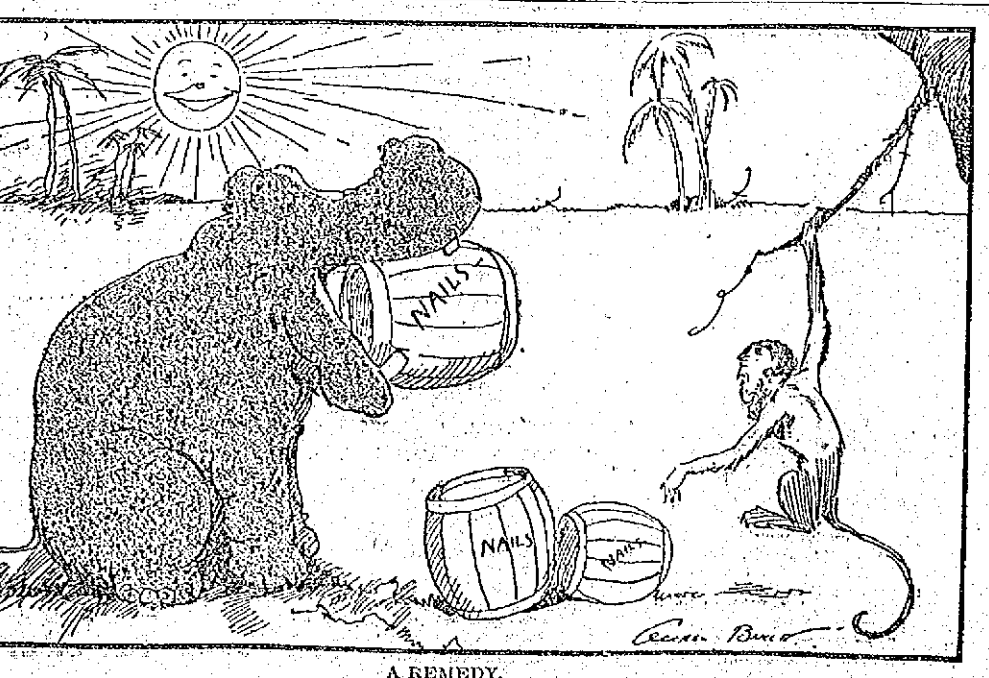

HIS FORTE.

What are you doing, old man?

Looking for a place as night watchman.

How's that?

Well, I was making love to a girl at Narragansett Pier all summer and I don't sleep nights any more.

A REMEDY.

Monk—What are you doing with that keg of nails?

Hippo—Why, they told me my system needed a little iron.

THIS AGE OF PROGRESS.

But you must remember I've had it for some time. It's a 1912 model.

A GOOD START.

The paper tells about a wedding where rice was thrown at the bride and bridegroom and some of it lodged in the ear of the bridegroom and made him deaf.

I don't see what more a married man could ask.

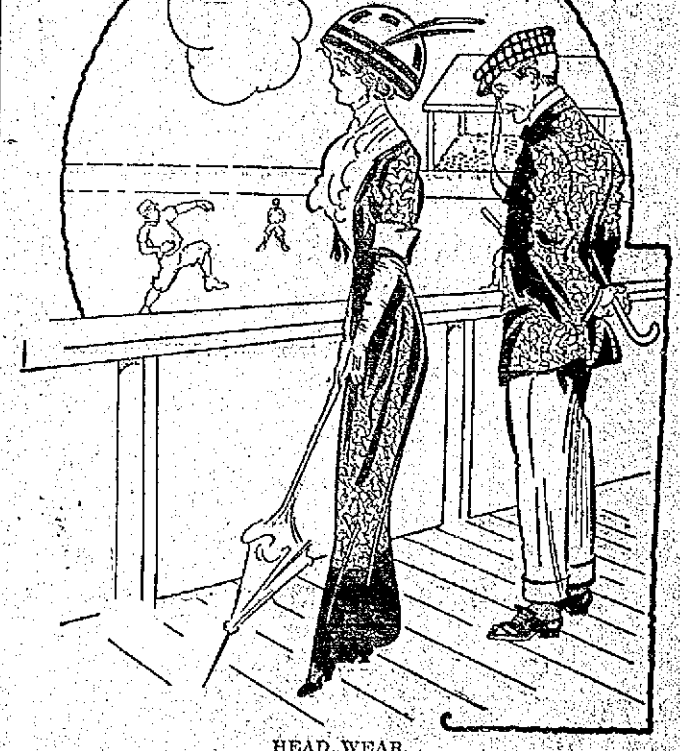

STUNG.

Virginia—Did you hear about the awful way in which Mrs. De Swell was stung by that wealthy contractor?

Gwendolyn—Mercy, no. How?

Virginia—Why, she was foolish enough to marry him without making any investigation of his finances and didn't find out he was hopelessly involved until she asked for alimony.

Gwendolyn—Goodness! How careless of her.

HEAD WEAR.

"Every now and then you see a woman take her hat off at a baseball game."

RECIPROCITY FIGHT

The Final Rallies Were Held in Montreal Last Night

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—The reciprocity campaign, which has been the most bitterly contested in the history of the Canadian regions and has made Dominion politics as never before a matter of world knowledge and interest was brought practically to a close last night, when enormous outdoor meetings in French districts of this city were addressed by two leading and strikingly contrasting figures in the contest, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Henri Bourassa.

Both the premier, who has been reciprocity's most prominent exponent, and the national leader, whose unique opposition and propaganda probably have done more than anything else to increase the number of question marks set against names of constituencies by political forecasters, were greeted with enthusiasm.

Sir Wilfrid's first speech was delivered from a stand on Atwater avenue, the dividing line between two important west end constituencies. Thousands of persons solidly packed the converging thoroughfares. From this meeting he was escorted by a torchlight procession through streets in gala decoration and illumination to St. James Market at the East end. Hundreds joined the procession which was loudly greeted by the thousands assembled in the market area. The premier addressed this meeting in French. Mr. Bourassa's followers were recruited at a skating rink a few blocks from the Laurier meeting in the East end.

The Monument National, a large auditorium, was filled with those anxious to hear Sir William Van Horne, former president of the Canadian Pacific railway, express his views in opposition to reciprocity.

Although obviously worn by his five weeks of travel and speechmaking, the premier made his appeal for ratification of reciprocity with notable vigor and was alternately severe and facetious in assailing those who, he said, had sought to insult the intelligence of the Canadian voter by persisting in the attempt to substitute the dead bogey of annexation for the live issue of reciprocity.

"I admire the great American republic," said the premier. "I was born in Canada. It is my land, and I do not want it merged into the American republic. Under reciprocity we shall be even better friends and furnish in the American continent an example of great peoples living on either side of an invisible line in peace and amity. This is the goal desired by my friends and party, and if there be ulterior motives, it is not with us, and I believe it is not to be found the other side of that line."

The government, he declared, would not remove the protective tariffs, which had nursed and were still to nurse the manufacturing industries of the Dominion.

"It indeed would be suicidal to throw Canadian manufacturers into open competition with American manufacturers," he said.

Sir Wilfrid declared that if the manufacturer persisted in refusing to accede to the request of the farmers for the American market and should make their refusal effective, it would not be surprising if the farmers would refuse to bear the burden of the protective tariff which was fostering Canadian industries. The farmers might go even a step further and ask for more drastic tariff changes, said the premier. However, he did not intend to make any threats.

FOR LAURIER

ALBERTA AND SASKATCHEWAN HOPE FOR RECIPROCITY

CALGARY, Alberta, Sept. 20.—One does not need to spend much time in what is still spoken of as the ranch country to form a definite idea as to the trend of sentiment in the present campaign. It is distinctly pro-reciprocity, and if all the settlers who have come in within the last 10 years could exercise the franchise to which they are morally entitled, there would be no doubt about the result on Thursday next. As it is, the Liberals are confident of sweeping Alberta and Saskatchewan. In the late parliament they had four members to their opponents' three in the former, and nine to one in the latter, or 13 to four for the two new provinces. This time they expect to make gains in Alberta—the more sanguine talk of a clean sweep—and they have no doubt of holding their own in Saskatchewan.

There were some divisions in the Liberal camp at the outset of the campaign. Frank Oliver, minister of the interior, and member for Edmonton, had been accused during the last parliament of what amounted to malfeasance in office. The charges had been referred to a parliamentary committee, but parliament had dissolved before the inquiry had gone far. Thus Mr. Oliver came back to his constituents under a cloud. The conservatives naturally made the most of it, going as far as to say that the government had dissolved parliament in a hurry to choke off the revelations which the inquiry would lead to. In his own party Mr. Oliver found himself opposed by a faction headed by F. W. Rutherford, former premier of Alberta. However, he faced the situation manfully, and pleaded for fair play. He denied categorically the wrongdoing imputed to him as head of his department, and demanded at least suspension of judgment until the case had been fully investigated. The reasonableness of this was felt by his party, and Mr. Rutherford withdrew his candidate, leaving the field to Mr. Oliver and his conservative opponent, W. A. Griesbach. From all appearances Mr. Oliver is sure of a large majority.

Changes of a Decade

They still raise cattle in Alberta, and connoisseurs praise the flavor of the range-fed beef. In this favored region the Canadian climate is tempered by physical conditions. The great plains in the shelter of the Rockies owe much to that great natural barrier, and the best known breeze is the zephyr-like Chinook which early banishes the winter's snow that lies like a pall over the East. Cattle feed out of doors all the year, and the virgin pastures give all that is needed for the raising of the choicest stock.

Still, the character of the country is changing. Dollar wheat is doing it. There is still much unsettled land, but vast tracts have been cut up into quarter sections, and one can travel for miles through fields of waving grain. Once land was going a-begging on these prairies; today you must travel 75 to 100 miles from the railway if you want free government land worth taking.

Dollar wheat is doing it. We Canadians of earlier migrations take a lot of the credit of Canada's progress to ourselves. We are an enterprising, intelligent, energetic, thrifty and industrious people. We have been told it hundreds of times. We are being told it every day now, and we believe it. Still, it cannot be denied that the demand for fresh sources of food supply which has been so persistent for 15 years, has had much to do with present flourishing conditions. But for that demand we should still be raising stock, an excellent business; but calling for more capital, not so profitable as wheat-raising, and not employing so many persons.

As the cattlemen of 20 years ago were fascinated by Sir Charles Tupper's scheme of imperial preference, by which Canadian beeves were to be admitted free into Britain, while Texas steers, alive or dead, were to be subject to tariff duties, so today the agricultural population of Alberta and Saskatchewan takes kindly to the idea of reciprocity with the United States. Imperial preference by all means; but why not both? In fact, the farmers of the west have formally demanded both. They want the imperial preference rate raised to 50 per cent., besides supporting the reciprocity agreement. But reciprocity is the present question, and reciprocity they mean to have. They pay no heed to the loyalty cry. The men who have come over the border to settle are thoroughly well affected to the British connection. They came here to build up homes for themselves and not to tear down institutions. It suits certain tory organs to represent them as plotting the destruction of the British empire; but no one takes that seriously.

FINAL ORDERS

WERE SENT TO THE POLITICAL WORKERS TODAY

HALIFA, N. S., Sept. 20.—Politicians were everywhere today closing the seven week's campaign which has stirred Vancouver to Halifax as never before. Final instructions were sent to the political workers today and complete arrangements for getting out a tremendous vote tomorrow were made by both parties. The liberals are making a determined attempt to defeat Robert L. Borden, the conservative leader in one of the Halifax divisions which he represented in parliament at the time of the dissolution of the house of commons, and that General Leman has been devoting much time to the situation in Halifax city and county. Mr. Borden expects to receive a large personal, complimentary vote, which he believes will offset any strength which pro-reciprocity conservatives may throw his opponent.

Another prominent man, Hon. W. S. Fielding, finance minister of Canada and Premier Laurier's lieutenant, who was largely instrumental in perfecting the reciprocity agreement, is having a stiff fight in the Queens Shelbourne district at the southern extremity of the province. The finance minister is opposed by G. B. McCurdy, a leading citizen of Halifax. It has been reported that several hundred employes of American fishing firms, which are opposed to reciprocity, will vote the conservative ticket in Nova Scotia tomorrow. Many of these Canadian fishermen are residents of Mr. Fielding's district. The liberal leaders, however, say that they will not be injured by this vote, as many of the fishermen are in favor of the party.

The Anglican archbishop of Rupertsland, Most Rev. Matheson, primate of Canada, and Most Rev. Dr. Hamilton, archbishop of Ottawa, acting for all the bishops of the church in Canada, have issued the following appeal to the voters:

"In view of the near approach of election day the bishops of the church of England in Canada hereby appeal to the Christian public throughout the dominion to promote at this time by every means at its command a high standard of political morality and a greater sensitiveness of conscience respecting the exercise of a voter's responsibility.

"If this dominion is to attain thorough and lasting greatness and to accomplish the position of influence which would appear to be offered it by Divine Providence, it must set its face against all practices that threaten the foundations of truth and righteousness amongst us.

"The bishops, therefore, desire at this time to remind men of all political views and parties that political purity is one of the essential foundation stones upon which national greatness and prosperity must rest, and in particular that to buy or sell a vote is to act the part of a traitor to our country and to invite the just contempt and condemnation of all good men.

"S. P., Rupertsland, Primate,
"Charles, Ottawa, Metropolitan."

The Macartney employes of Lowell and Lawrence will be given an outing tomorrow afternoon at the Fleur de Lis camp, Long pond. The Lawrence employes will leave in special electric cars from opposite the store in Essex street, and will meet the Lowell employes at Merrimack square, where they also will board a special car. A dinner will be served in the open air at the camp and the feature of the afternoon will be a baseball game between the Lowell and Lawrence men.

tition of the New England Telegraph & Telephone company for pole locations in Third street. W. D. Brown appeared as a remonstrant. He said he had recently purchased some land with about 225 feet of frontage in Third street and that he intended to build houses there. He didn't relish the idea of unsightly poles directly in front of his buildings and he thought the company ought to be made to put its wires under ground. Mr. Brown was informed by the company's representative at the meeting that the poles were needed to hold the wires for the fire alarm box at the corner of Burnham and Third streets. The matter was referred to the committee on wires.

The names of eight men to serve as traverse jurors of the superior court for the October term, to be holden in Lowell, were drawn by Ald. Barrett, as follows: Charles E. Thurston, 24 Lane street, teamster; Greenleaf C. Brock, 118 First street, druggist; John J. Cassidy, 263 Thorndike street, machinist; Donat Rousseau, 185 Salem street, clerk; Frank L. Weaver, 479 Westford street, gravel roofer; Frederick L. Welch, 466 Fletcher street, furniture repairer; Fred C. Amadon, 760 Stevens street, clerk, and Arthur W. Saunders, 18 Georgia avenue, shuttle manufacturer.

Ald. Flanagan drew the names of eight men to serve as traverse jurors in Cambridge the first Monday of October, as follows: Chester S. Goodwin, 880 Gorham street, shipper; Edwin

ALDERMAN CONNORS.

Cote, 342 Pawtucket street, retired; Leon Mullin, 232 Moore street, coal dealer; James Gilligan, 392 Concord street, currier; Charles H. Hobson, 164 Holyrood avenue, president and treasurer; Edward F. Gormley, 31 Washington street, foreman; George H. Dozois, 171 School street, machinist, and Arthur J. French, 35 Victoria street, paper cutter.

The mayor's appointments of Thos. McDowell, Walter S. Kelman and E. C. Walker to be weighers of hay and other articles were confirmed.

Various street petitions were read and referred to the committee on streets.

A petition asking compensation for injuries received by James L. Crann and a petition from Walter L. Booth, asking damages for injuries to his horse were referred to the committee on claims in concurrence.

Sidewalk assessments for residents on the north and south sides of Corbett street, as recommended by the city auditor, were read. Mr. Barrett wanted to know the authority of the city to assess sidewalks to the abuttors. Statute law says not more than one-half the assessment shall be levied on the abuttor, he said. There is no law which allows the city to assess for the total amount. The assessments were referred to the city solicitor for an opinion.

A joint order for $200 for the additional care of trees was taken from the table on motion of Alderman Rountree. Alderman Connors said that the order had been laid on the table at the last meeting, pending the taking down of some trees in Lakeview avenue by persons in that vicinity who would do it for the wood that they could get out of them. Wires run through the trees and when it was made known that danger lurked in the branches the proposition was all off with those who had intended to take them down for the wood that was in them.

Alderman Barrett said he understood that the park department had about $100 that it was holding in reserve in case of a wind storm and he said the department ought to use that money to cut down the trees in question. Alderman Rountree said people of the section had been told of the danger attached to the work of removing the trees and the reports so scared them that they would not attempt it. Alderman Flanagan said the trees were delaying and obstructing building progress there. The question came on the adoption of the order for $200 additional for the removal of the trees and it was adopted. Alderman Barrett voted against.

A joint communication from the committee on accounts protesting against the bill of $106.47 of Olmstead Brothers, for planting trees and shrubs about city hall was read.

Supt. Whittet of the park department was asked to explain. He said it had been the policy of the park department to secure good landscape architects and plan for the future. He said that Olmstead Brothers were employed by order of the park commission and that they were employed to prepare plans for the city hall and memorial building grounds, not to plant flowers and shrubs as seemed to be the opinion of the critics.

Alderman Barrett said that Mr. Green, a member of the park commission, told him he would not have voted for the work if he had known.

"I can't help what Mr. Greene told you," said Mr. Whittet.

Mr. Barrett asked Mr. Whittet about the money expended by the park department. "The report will tell you that. I don't carry those things in my head," said Mr. Whittet.

Mr. Barrett then said something about Shedd park, and Mr. Whittet said that Shedd park had nothing to do with the bill under discussion.

"I see by the report," said Alderman Barrett, "that the park department has spent $45,000, and that money of course was spent under your direction. I should think that a man capable of looking after the proper expenditure of that amount should be able to take care of the grounds about city hall without the assistance of a landscape architect."

"I followed the instructions of my superiors, and will continue to follow them," said Mr. Whittet. Then the communication was referred back to the committee on accounts with the recommendation that the bill be paid.

A communication from the park board, recommending the purchase of land in Livingston street for playground purposes for the Butler school, was laid over to the next meeting.

Alderman Barrett's ordinance to repeal the ordinance creating the office of clerk of committees was read. Mr. Barrett said that this reason for bringing in the ordinance was because he thought the office of clerk of committees was an absolutely unnecessary part of the city government. He said that the work done by the clerk of committees could be taken care of by other employes. He said that the work connected with the committee on appropriations should be done by the city auditor and that the city should be saved $1600 a year by abolishing the office of clerk of committees. He further stated that the work of the two biggest committees, streets and sewers, was taken care of by the city engineer. "The job of clerk of committees is nothing but a soft snap, and the people who know about it refer to it as a joke," said the alderman.

"From my experience," said Alderman Connors, "I believe the present incumbent of the office in question to be a very competent servant." He said he had never heard his sincerity, honesty or integrity questioned. He said it was not a matter of friendship or protection and if there were any personal feeling between the author of the ordinance and the present incumbent of the office of clerk of committees the matter should not be considered by the board. He didn't know, he said, that there was any personal feeling. He moved that the ordinance be rejected. Alderman Jodoin seconded the motion.

Alderman Barrett asked a ruling from the chair as to whether Alderman Connors' motion was out of order. Alderman Barrett wanted to know if it were not an order rather than an ordinance and the chair ruled the point well taken on the technicality of designation. The question would be, he said, on referring the matter to the committee on ordinances and legislation.

Alderman Barrett referred to the absence from Lowell last spring of the clerk of committees, Frank M. Dowling, and said that Mr. Dowling was paid $141.66 for the time he was absent and that he sent in a bill of $25 to pay a man for doing his work while he was gone. He said that he protested against it at a meeting of the committee on accounts, but that nothing was said about it in the public press. He said that the clerk of committees should be removed from office. The question came on referring the ordinance and it was not referred. Aldermen Barrett and Daly voted to refer, and Messrs. Burns and Gallagher didn't vote. Alderman Barrett gave notice of reconsideration to be acted upon at the next meeting.

A joint order to borrow $2700 for paving East Merrimack street between Howe street and Fayette street was read. The order was introduced by Ald. Flanagan and he explained it. He said it meant a short continuation of smooth paving and that it was badly needed could not be questioned.

Ald. Barrett believed that the portion of the street mentioned in the order should be paved but he did not believe there was any necessity to borrow money for that purpose. He said that the superintendent of streets has money enough to do the job. Ald. Flanagan hoped the order would pass and it did pass, unanimously.

A resolution to lay a sidewalk, to be laid on the easterly side of Tremont street, was ordered to remain several days in the city clerk's office. Adjourned.

TWO ENGLISHMEN

SUSPECTED OF BEING GUILTY OF ESPIONAGE

EMDEN, Prussia, Sept. 20.—Two Englishmen stated to be officers of the British army are detained here because of the suspicion that they have been guilty of espionage. The men were arrested yesterday and released after examination. They were again taken into custody upon orders from Berlin.

HANDS WOULD CRACK OPEN AND BLEED

"About two months ago my hands started to crack open and bleed, the skin would scale off, and the good flesh would burn and itch dreadfully. When my hands first started to get sore, there were small blisters like water blisters which formed. They itched dreadfully, it just seemed as though I could tear the skin all off. I would scratch them and the skin would peel off, and the flesh would be all red and crack open and bleed. It worried me very much, as I had never had anything the matter with my skin. I was so afraid I would have to give up my employment.

"I consulted my doctor, and he said he didn't think it would amount to anything. But it kept getting worse. One day I saw a piece in one of the papers about a lady who had the same trouble with her hands. She had used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was cured. I decided to try them, and my hands were all healed before I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment. I am truly thankful for the good results from the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, for thanks to them I was cured, and did not have to lose a day from work. I have had no return of the skin trouble." (Signed) Mrs. Mary E. Breig, 2322 Brown Street, Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 12, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are for sale everywhere, but those who wish to try them without charge may do so by sending to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 6A, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, together with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

BATTLE OF SEBASTOPOL

SEPT. 20.—The Russians had been looking with wolfish eyes to the dismemberment of Turkey, and had asked England to join in the spoils. The latter refused, and instead effected an alliance with France and both in turn cast their lot with the Turk to repel the invaders. The Russians were encamped at Sebastopol where they had stored great munitions of war and had a great army in addition to the fleet lying sheltered in the Black Sea. The allies under Lord Raglon and Marshal St. Arnaud started after the Russians and on September 20, 1854, the clash occurred. It wasn't exactly a clash but rather a push. The allies never stopped running in one direction and the Russians never stopped running in another. Prince Mentschikoff who should have known better than to go into any kind of a fight with such a name tried to hold his forces but they had important business up the road, and they kept running for three days, while the allies sat around counting the spoils of war.

MATRIMONIAL

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Joseph's rectory when Mr. Olivier Desaulniers, a popular member of the C. M. A. C., and Miss Severine Leclair, the well known milliner, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock in the private chapel of the rectory, Rev. Fr. Baron, O. M. I. officiating.

The happy couple were attended by Messrs. Zoel Leclair and Clovis Dessaulniers, the former father of the bride and the latter brother of the bridegroom. After the ceremony the party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zoel Leclair, 14 West Bowers street, where a dainty wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives of the contracting couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Desaulniers who received many costly gifts left on the 12 o'clock train for a brief honeymoon trip in the White mountains. They will return Monday and make their home at 14 West Bowers street.

Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Leclair, the former a brother of the bride, of Lawrence.

FAY—SHEEHAN

Thomas J. Fay, the popular president of the Gotham club, and member of several other fraternal organizations, and Miss Margaret Sheehan, a well known resident of St. Peter's parish, were united in matrimony at St. Peter's rectory this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John T. O'Brien. The bridemaid was Miss Catherine Sheehan, sister of the bride, and Mr. Andrew Fay, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

After the ceremony the couple repaired to the home of the bride, where supper was served. They will leave Lowell tonight on an extended wedding tour and will be home to their friends after Oct. 1.

Last evening at the home of the bride in Mead street a reception was tendered the happy couple. A large number of guests were present including many from out of town. An excellent musical program was given. Selections were rendered by the Manhattan orchestra. Songs were sung by Miss Katherine Fay and selections by the Bleachery quartet, Philip Baxter director. The orchestra selections were well received and greatly enjoyed. At 10 o'clock there was a lull in the festivities, during which time a sumptuous supper was served. After supper, the merriment was resumed and continued till midnight.

The couple had on exhibition in two large rooms the gifts received from their friends. That they are popular was attested by the preponderance of articles received.

At the close of the affair all departed wishing the young couple success and prosperity.

BADLY WRECKED

TRAINS WERE IN COLLISION AT SOMERSWORTH

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., Sept. 20.—An excursion train on the Boston & Maine railroad bound from Boston to lake Winnipesaukee, was run into by a switching engine here today. One or two passengers were slightly cut and both engines were badly wrecked. The cars were subsequently sent north on a regular train with most of the excursionists.

THE OPERA HOUSE

"The Climax," one of the most interesting of plays, was presented at the Opera House last night. Strange as it may seem, the company includes only four people and they are decidedly clever, and it would be difficult to select any one individual as the star. The cast is as follows:

Luigi Golganti, the teacher,
Theodore Kerwald
Pietro Golfati, his son....Walter Dale
John Raymond, the doctor,
Arthur Linden
Gretchen Wieke

Mr. Kerwald as the old Italian teacher is an artist. He is an accomplished actor and his delightful work was most pleasing. Miss Wieke was most pleasing and carried out the difficult work that came to her as a pupil in a most satisfactory manner. Mr. Dale as the son of the Italian teacher, and Mr. Linden as the doctor were excellent and carried out their parts in such a manner as to win the plaudits of the audience.

The story of the play is most interesting. The girl whose mother has been a public singer is being trained in New York by her Italian uncle for the operatic stage. She is loved by his son—a young teacher and prospective composer—and by a physician who does not approve of her contemplated stage career. While treating her for a throat trouble, he gives her the mental suggestion that she can never sing again, and her voice apparently fails. At the end of six months they are about to be married, when she makes the discovery that she can sing, and he confesses his unprofessional conduct. She denounces him; the old teacher, whose fortunes are bound up in her own, advises her to abandon even a career for love; and the play ends with her singing the song that the young music teacher has composed, and the audience remains in some doubt as to which course she finally elects to follow.

"HIS HONOR, THE MAYOR"

Mr. Harry Kelly, who is appearing in a revival of his greatest success, "His Honor the Mayor" will be the attraction at the Opera House tomorrow night.

Mr. Kelly needs no introduction to the public of Lowell as he has played here many times before and is an old favorite of this city. The cast includes Miss Nellie Daly, Geo. T. Reed, John H. Pratt and others, all of whom were with the original Wallack's theatre production.

"THE NEST EGG"

Annie Caldwell's latest comedy of American type, "The Nest Egg" with Zelda Sears in the stellar role, will be the attraction at the Opera House for the day beginning Monday, Sept. 25.

This comedy of semi-rural life tells the story of a middle-aged spinster, who by taking in sewing by the day and raising chickens succeeds in keeping the wolf from the door. The one sole object of her life is to get a husband, and as a last resort she writes a message on one of her eggs, which she sends to the market. The egg instead of being sold is placed in cold storage where it remains for three years, and she has almost forgotten about it, when she gets a telegram stating that the sender has received her message, and will arrive on the noon train the following day. Of course the message is taken for a proposal of marriage, but instead it develops that a spinster is wanted as principal witness in a Pure Food Trial, which is at that time being held in Albany.

The complications arising afford more than plenty of possibilities for the unique work that Miss Sears has been identified with. The cast and production are the same that played for for five months at the Bijou theatre, New York and the Chicago Opera House, Chicago and came here direct from the Park theatre, Boston.—Adv.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

concerns the escapades of pretty Mignon, wife of a perfume manufacturer, and the efforts of Bertie Stewart to keep an appointment with her for a midnight supper at the Cafe Churchill. Papa Stewart, Bertie's father, while posing as the possessor of all the domestic virtues, goes away to the same restaurant to meet a couple of chorus girls. Bertie's cousin from Philadelphia, Percy by name, who has come to New York for throat treatment by a physician who practices chiefly among girls of the stage, turns up at the same dining room to keep an appointment with a vaudeville artiste. Father, son and nephew meet under rather embarrassing and laughable conditions and confusion runs rampant. The third act unsnarls the mix-ups in a way least expected and all the guilty parties swear, with hands upraised, that it will never occur again.

"THE NEWLYWEDS AND THEIR BABY"

Charles A. Morgan as Ferdinand Newlywed, the father, in "The Newlyweds and Their Baby" company, is all that could be desired. His makeup as the McManus here is a wonderful piece of work. He is also a singer and dancer of much ability.—Adv.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

The bill at this theatre this week is bound to satisfy the most fastidious patron. If variety will give satisfaction, this week's offering is certainly as varied as the vaudeville goer would care to have it. As the leading feature of the bill which has several acts of headline calibre is Rose Coghlan, the popular star, who, for several years, has been prominently associated with all the leading comedies. She is presenting a sketch, written by herself, called "Between Matinee and Night," showing how a young woman, with an ambition for the footlights, is prevented from sacrificing her all in the attaining of a position as a star by the leading woman of a traveling company, who graphically describes to her what is expected from a newcomer to the stage. The actress through her conversations with the young woman discovers that she is talking to her own daughter, and is about to tell the girl, when her former husband appears and begs of her not to make herself known. The piece gives herself and the other members of her company opportunities for excellent acting, and they make the most of them. Miss Rosalind Coghlan, daughter of the actress, plays the part of the stagestruck girl admirably.

The remainder of the bill is made up of: Leo Carello, the mimic and monologist, who dispenses more humorous sayings in five minutes than the average monologist does in his entire act. "The Iceman," an excellent exemplification of how an innocent man is made the object of undue notoriety, is given by Thomas Moir and his company; Hilda Haythorne, the lady ventriloquist, has an act different from the others, and her yodeling is a pleasure to hear; the Great Santell, a modern Hercules, juggles with monster dumbbells and weights with as much ease as the average man carries a newspaper. His comedy is a good asset to his act; Boulden and Cutter are entertainers with various talents; Kit Karson, with his rifle can hit an object at a great distance. His display of marksmanship while swinging on a wire is the best ever seen in this city. Moving pictures close the bill.

Tickets for the remaining performances of the week can be ordered in advance by 'phone 28.—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

In selecting "The Barrier" as the third week offering at this playhouse, Donald Meek, stage director of the Donald Meek Stock company, picked a drama which shows the ability of each member of the company. "The Barrier" is founded on the novel of the same name, and a work, of Rex Beach, author of several thrilling books of the frozen north and northwest. As the place for the development of his novel, Mr. Beach selected the little hamlet of Flambeau, in the Yukon river valley, inhabited by a few prospectors and their families. The first act of the drama shows the general store of the little town, which is also the distributing station of supplies. The quietude of a typical village with few inhabitants changes to city-like activity and it becomes a place reeking with industry, after the first successful strike of gold is made in the property of No Creek Lee. Among the new comers there are some men of questionable character who have come from the state of New York for the purpose of trying their machinations among the people of the village having claims in the new mines. The United States government sends a detachment of soldiers under the command of Lieut. Burrell, to prevent the outbreak of violence and thievery. It is with the coming of the lieutenant and his command to the town that the romantic love match between Necia and Lieut. Burrell has its origination.

Donald Meek, the talented comedian of the company, is cast as Poleon Dorcel, "the man of the great heart," and in this character, which is a departure from the ones he most generally assumes, he is a success. Miss Marie Horton plays the part of Necia, who is thought to be a half-breed, but who, is in reality a white girl, and Rockcliffe Fellowes, as Lieut. Burrell, is excellently cast and displays his thorough training as a dramatic actor.

Tickets for the coming performance may be ordered in advance by 'phone 811.—Adv.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

One of the best bills of the season is drawing large and enthusiastic audiences at the Merrimack Square theatre afternoon and evening. Miss Mabel McKinley, the talented soprano and song writer of note, continues to receive generous recognition on her every appearance and the other acts also share in the honors of the week. "For Him," the pretty one-act play by Henry D. Coolidge, presented by the members of Our Stock company, is the most entertaining bits of entertainment that a Lowell audience has had an opportunity to enjoy in some time. Kendal Weston, Miss Phelps and Mr. Reese, are all pleasingly cast and their interpretation of the piece is very cleverly done. The stage effects are elaborate and quite up to the minute in every detail. Nelson and Milledge are most amusing in their latest success "The Secret," and Miss Anna McMahon, soloist, continues to win popularity in her rendition of the latest song hits. Ed. Winchester's act is a real winner for its kind and is sure to please. The photo-plays are the best to be secured from American and foreign markets. Tonight, which will be observed as "Anniversary Night," the Merrimack Square theatre concert orchestra, Phil M. Lederman, leader, will play for the first time "The Anniversary March," a composition by Mr. Lederman and dedicated to the theatre on its completion of the first year in Lowell. Box office telephone No. 2063.—Adv.
